FARM BOARD IS NEARING CRISIS; LOSS 70 MILLION

Showdown Is Likely in Next Congress.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Affairs of the federal farm board are approaching a crisis. It is expected that the last 100 million dollars of the authorized 500 million dollar revolving loan fund will be appropriated before the present congress adjourns, but that there will be a showdown in next winter's session.

ALEXANDER LEGGE [Harris & Ewing.]

Criticism of the board's policies during the last few days in the senate, where the appropriation bill carrying funds for the board for the next fiscal year is pending, have shown the trend of sentiment. The board's critics, however, have not developed a definite program and are not disposed to cut off appropriations until another crop season has gone by.

It is recognized that American farmers might not have fared any better under the present world-wide economic condition through any other scheme for agricultural relief.

Seventy Millions Lost.

Attacks upon the board center around its stabilization operations in wheat and cotton. Chairman Alexander Legge who, according to report, is preparing to resign to return to the presidency of the International Harvester company soon after March 4, told the house appropriations committee that on a basis of present market prices the stabilization operations had resulted in a loss of $30,000,000 on wheat and $10,000,000 on cotton, a total of $70,000,000.

One phase of the criticisms of the board's operations deals with the question whether the bankers or the farmers have obtained the greater benefits from the government's money. In connection with wheat stabilization, it is asserted that these operations commenced in November, on the 1930 crop, after two-thirds or more of the wheat had passed from the hands of the farmers and that the real benefit resulting was to banks which had loaned money to coöperatives who had bought wheat that was not hedged when the price was considerably higher and that faced disaster through a further decline.

Banks at Least Aided.

Those who stress this point refer to the fact that Bert Lang, who is connected with one of the leading banks in St. Louis, also is a member of the wheat advisory council and a director of the Grain Stabilization corporation.

Members of the farm board admit that operations have saved many banks from failure, one estimate being that five hundred small banks, particularly southwest, might have failed but for the board's support of the wheat market.

At the same time, it is asserted that the board's operations primarily helped the farmer. As proof, Mr. Legge points to figures which show that about twice as much wheat has moved from the farmer to the primary markets during recent weeks as a year ago. In the last week in January the movement from the farm to the fourteen primary markets totalled 7,153,000 bushels, as compared with 3,390,000 bushels in the same week the previous year.

In the previous week in January, the movement this year was 6,810,000 bushels, as compared with 3,216,000 bushels a year ago.

Legge Makes Estimates.

"On the average consumption, the farmer is getting about $3,000,000 a week out of this stabilization on the amount that is actually going into flour in a week in the United States," said Mr. Legge, speaking before the house appropriations committee.

"Now we think that is worth while. I do not know what the final outcome may be, but we feel that if wheat had been allowed to drop 25 cents a bushel, and that is where it would be on the Liverpool market today, we would have had another series of bank failures and everything that goes with it here would be pretty serious."

Says It Has Injured Cotton.

While the board's critics in the wheat areas think the bankers may have benefited more than the farmers, it is contended by senators from southern states that both the bankers and the farmers have been actually

PASTOR BATTLES LUDENDORFF IN RELIGIOUS 'WAR'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 8.—Gen. Eric Ludendorff of war fame and a pastor at Seelenfeld, near Minden, are waging a desperate battle for the 297 souls of Seelenfeld. Shall Seelenfeld pray to the God of Christianity or shall they revere Wotan, the old Germanic god, is the question under discussion.

Seelenfeld is famous for its sepulchral mounds dating back to prehistoric times. In Wotan was the German god. In the midst of these mounds Gen. Ludendorff has purchased a cemetery. There, by the will of the general, his own remains, as well as those of his wife, will be buried. Inhabitants of Seelenfeld, who share Ludendorff's faith that Wotan rules the world, will be allowed graves in his cemetery.

The entire village has renounced the doctrines of Christianity and joined Gen. Ludendorff, who preaches the "Germanic creed," a revival of the ancient Germanic religion before the country was converted to Christendom. The pastor is struggling to woo Seelenfeld back to the Christian faith.

MOTORIST DRIVES IN AND BREAKS UP CARD PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Esau Matthews were entertaining friends at bridge last evening in their English basement flat at 4210 West Jackson boulevard when they were interrupted by an automobile. It was driven by James Toomey, 38 years old, a horseshoer, 4912 West Adams street, and had crashed through the two front windows, after first wrecking part of the porch. Mr. Matthews called the Fillmore police, who pried Mr. Toomey out of the car and put him in a cell charged with reckless driving.

Leaps Off Bridge to End Life, but He Is Rescued

Peter Hansen, 67 years old, 615 West Adams street, stood on the bridge at Monroe street last night. He scribbled a note on an envelope, "I am tired of life," removed his clothing, climbed on the rail and leaped in the river. Charles Marone, bridge tender, saw him and dived after him. Patrolman John Kucifer also happened along. Marone rescued Hansen, and led him back to the bridge, where Patrolman Kucifer arrested him for disorderly conduct. "Don't you know that it's against the law to commit suicide?" demanded Kucifer. "You can't do anything like that on my beat."

Cabby Fires on Bandits; He's Held as Gun Toter

Joseph Winklebauer, 26 years old, 4926 West Quincy street, a cab driver, was arrested yesterday charged with carrying concealed weapons. He told police he had fired five shots when two men attempted to steal his cab in front of 1811 North Washtenaw avenue. They jumped out of the cab and he captured one, John Tomlison, 2935 South Canal street. Tomlison was charged with theft, but Winklebauer was also held because the police said he had no business with a gun.

Save 17 Adrift on an Ice Floe for 36 Hours

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 8.—(AP)—An airplane, swinging low out of leaden skies, brought a message of life today to 19 fishermen and a 9 year old boy who for almost 36 hours faced freezing death by exposure, hunger, or drowning on a drifting ice floe in the choppy, wind swept waters of Lake Erie.

Late tonight the boy and all but three of the men had found warmth, shelter, and food on shore, thanks to the heroic rescue efforts of coast guard seamen. These last three were reported to be in the coast guard rescue boat stuck in an ice jam three miles off shore.

The coast guard crew consisted of seven men. Lieutenant Commander Martin W. Rasmussen expressed belief that the ten men were in no immediate danger, but took the precaution of dispatching a mortar crew to a new base off Pinehurst.

Rescue had been slow work, but the marooned men, their ebbing vitality and deadened hopes revived by the knowledge that help was near, kept up their icy vigil while a small boat [a larger one could not be used] struggled back and forth through miles of thick slush ice and open water to bring them to shore in relays.

Five Hours for Each Trip.

Five hours were required for a single trip, on which only five persons could be carried to safety.

The drifting fishermen were located by the plane, chartered by the Buffalo Courier-Express, five miles out from shore and about 18 miles south of Buffalo. All morning the plane had searched in vain for sight of the stranded men.

Then the pitiful crew was found. The plane swept low over the ice floe, dropping notes. Pike poles in eager hands spelled frantic words upon the surface of the ice. The plane turned and again swept low over the floe. From it dropped a huge can, a parachute attached to it opened and the can, filled with steaming hot coffee, settled near the men.

Long Wait for Rescue.

The plane sped back to shore and the fishermen settled down to wait through the long cold hours before they could be brought to safety.

The rescue boat was forced to struggle through two miles of ice slush and then across a mile and a half of open, choppy water to the floe on which the men waited for deliverance. Then the long struggle back to shore.

When the marooned men were found by the plane cut off from the solid ice by water still tossing fiercely after the all day blizzard which swept the lake yesterday, a frantic waving of arms assured the flyers these were the men they sought. Men rushed to collect bits of wood. Circling above them, the flyers read the thought which was uppermost in the minds of these men, who had lived through 36 hours of horror. Just one word: "Eat."

Then another word picture formed upon the ice: "Help." And finally: "Charcoal."

One of the first brought ashore by rescuers, Elmer Schreiber, 9, told reporters he wasn't a bit afraid. He cried once—because he was hungry. Then he curled up on a sled in the lee of a crude windbreak and slept. When the rescued men reached solid ice tonight, he walked ashore between his father and another man.

Throughout that long night, the thoughts of 31 year old Hank Willis of Lackawanna, were not so much for himself as for his wife and the son to whom she had given birth Friday night.

"How's my wife?" were the words with which he greeted friends who waited on shore. He was assured that both she and the baby were well.

Anthony Gutkowski, 28, of Lackawanna, one of the first brought ashore, told a vivid story of the long hours of waiting in the darkness for rescue.

Tells How Floe Broke Away.

He told of the vicious "crack" with which the ice floe parted from the main body and of the consternation with which the men learned they were cut off from safety.

"Everybody realized what had happened at about the same time," he said. "We knew we were in trouble. It was awful quiet. Nobody said anything. We could feel the ice moving and we just stood there and watched it move.

"The thing we were worried about was that the wind might shift from east to southwest and send us in toward the American shore and crack us up there. If that had happened we were goners."

A Night Letter from Ring Lardner

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Well, here I am back in old New York after a brief sojourn in the sunny climes of Florida and it brings a tear to my eyes when I compare my welcome down there amidst strangers to the way I was received today in what I have learned to call my home town.

I had hardly lighted from the train at Miami when I was photographed four times, interviewed three times and invited to make a speech before a junior Bible class. My reception committee at the Pennsylvania station today was composed of one black boy with a red cap and he didn't have a pocket kodak or even ask me to autograph the dime I gave him for carrying my laundry to the waiting barouche.

I will not attempt at this time to compare the two cities, Miami Beach and New York, but will only suggest to the ladies of the latter that they adopt the Florida gal's custom of waiting around the streets in their pajamas. It kind of makes things seem more cozy and hospitable.

BROKER TRICKS KINSMEN, KILLS WIFE AND SELF

Financial Troubles Are Blamed.

Evading the vigilance of his brother-in-law, who was sleeping in an adjoining room, Charles Shipman, live stock broker and former advertising executive, shot and killed his wife, Mercedes, early yesterday in his apartment at 5350 Drexel avenue and then committed suicide.

The bodies of the couple, who had been married 34 years, were discovered at 5:30 a. m. by the brother-in-law, Charles Meyerholz, formerly connected with the extension department of the University of Pittsburgh. Forewarned of Shipman's purpose, Meyerholz had hastened here from Pittsburgh to prevent the deed.

Blame Financial Affairs.

Financial difficulties impelled his brother-in-law to commit the murder and suicide, Meyerholz told the police. Shipman was 60 years old and his wife was 58.

Until two years ago, Meyerholz said, Shipman was advertising representative for a number of live stock firms, among them Cochrane, Henneberry & Wallace and the Thomas Sennert company. He possessed an ample income, owned his home and had stock holdings valued in excess of $50,000.

The market crash of 1929 practically swept away Shipman's fortune, the brother-in-law said. Resorting to further speculation in an effort to recoup, Shipman contracted debts which, with in a year, amounted to $50,000.

Makes Threat to Kill Self.

Desperate for funds, Shipman began betting at the race tracks. Meyerholz, learning of the plight of his brother-in-law, advanced him sufficient funds to purchase a seat on the Chicago Live Stock exchange. At that time, Meyerholz said, Shipman declared that if this venture failed he would kill himself and his wife also, because he felt she would be helpless without him.

Meyerholz believed Shipman's affairs were improving until, last Friday afternoon, he received a telegram at Pittsburgh signed by Shipman. The message was as follows:

"Come at once. Minnie [Mercedes] is dead and I will be dead before you arrive. CHARLES SHIPMAN."

Before boarding a train Meyerholz telephoned his two brothers, Fred and Frank Meyerholz, in Wapello, Ia., advising them of the situation and urging them to hasten to Chicago. He and his brothers were to meet at the Englewood Union station.

Greets Police with Laughter.

Before leaving Pittsburgh Meyerholz also telephoned the Chicago police. Arriving here, he met his brothers and their cousin, Herbert Tillman, at 5 a. m. All four went to Hye Park police station, where they were informed that Lieut. Albert Booth and a squad had previously called at the Shipman apartment.

Shipman, the lieutenant explained, had greeted the squad with laughter, explaining that his telegram to Meyerholz was a ruse to bring the brother-in-law here in haste so that he [Shipman] might collect a sum Meyerholz owed him.

However, Meyerholz, his brothers and the cousin were still apprehensive. They went to the Shipman apartment, accompanied by the squad. There Shipman confessed he had considered suicide, but, pretending to succumb to the pleadings of his relatives, promised to abandon the idea.

The relatives promised to advance him $1,500 to begin anew. For his part, Shipman agreed to return a rifle he had purchased two weeks ago from a mail order house. Fred and Frank Meyerholz and their cousin left for Wapello and Charles Meyerholz agreed to stay on until arrangements for the $1,500 loan were completed.

Forces Door to Room.

About 8 p. m. Saturday Shipman announced he was weary and wished to retire. Meyerholz, who is partly deaf, also went to bed. He slept undisturbed by the shots which ended his sister's and her husband's lives.

Awakening before dawn yesterday, Meyerholz noticed a light burning above the transom in the next room. He knocked, and, receiving no answer, forced the locked door. He then called the police.

Reconstructing the tragedy, the police decided that Shipman shot his wife as she slept, the bullet entering the head. With the first shot undetected, Shipman then sat on the edge of the bed, the police decided, placed the rifle stock on the floor, and with the barrel between his knees pressed the trigger with his thumb. The bullet entered his head.

An inquest over both bodies was set for 1:30 p. m. today. Thereafter the bodies will be sent to Wapello, Ia., Shipman's birthplace, for burial.

A Chronicle of Travels of Gerald P. Nye

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8. — [Special.]—Various titles have been suggested for the recently disclosed $96,503 expense account of Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota and his special committee investigating senatorial campaign expenditures. The most popular title today among those who have examined the account since its introduction into the Congressional Record a few days ago is something like "a radical's summer tour."

SENATOR G. P. NYE. [Harris & Ewing.]

For, the examiners point out, Senator Nye's record and opinions win him the title of radical and the expense account shows that from last May until last fall he certainly did considerable touring at the taxpayers' expense.

Jaunts Start in May.

His jaunting began, so the items in the account show, on May 7, when he traveled from Washington to Chicago and return. No sooner back in Washington, than, on May 12, he went to Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and return. On May 29, with John Andrews, secretary to the committee, he was again on the road, this time to Philadelphia, via Harrisburg and return. These three trips cost the taxpayers $361.12. June was a quiet month for Chairman Nye, only one trip—from Washington via Chicago to St. Paul and return—being recorded.

The cost, including a clerk's expenses, is listed as $260.64.

July was busier, not so much with travel as with hearings. There was a trip from Washington to Chicago and return on July 7, followed by a trip to Chicago to hold hearings from July 14 to 17.

Then Into Nebraska.

Then into Nebraska for the famous hearings in Broken Bow on July 19, and in Lincoln on July 21, when Senator Nye investigated lone-handed—and a month before the Nebraska primary was held—the filing of the candidacy of George W. Norris, the grocer's clerk, against Senator George W. Norris, Senator Nye's friend and fellow insurgent.

These were the hearings which began with Senator Nye's denial that he was investigating in Senator Norris' interest. He stated, among other things, "I find that there is some feeling prevalent to the effect that presence of the committee [himself] here now is in the interest of some one's campaign for the United States senate. I am not going to deny that that is the case, even though it is not the case, and I hope that in the conduct of this hearing we can make manifest such a complete impartiality as will convince one and all that that is not our purpose at all."

One Witness Came Armed.

How well "the committee" convinced at least one person appeared in the testimony of Grand Dragon Reed of the Nebraska K. K. K. Dragon Reed was the final witness at hearings held at Lincoln in September. It was he who brought his six-shooter with him, he said, so that the committee wouldn't intimidate him. "It just occurred to me yesterday," remarked Dragon Reed, that this was just a simple campaign here in the interest of Senator Norris."

But to return to the month of Au-

MARINE OFFICER IS EXPECTED TO RESIGN IN FALL

Signs Contract for Lecture Tour.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Secretary of the Navy Charles F. Adams announced today this conclusion of the incident, which arose when the fiery general spoke his mind too freely about Mussolini in a speech before the Contemporary club of Philadelphia.

In a formal reprimand Secretary Adams informed Gen. Butler that such remarks, tending to embarrass the international relations of the government, merit "unqualified condemnation," and that he hopes the affair will have a salutary effect upon his "future conduct in matters of this character."

Administration Takes Initiative.

It was learned late tonight that the Hoover administration took the initiative in calling off the Butler court martial proceedings. According to information disclosed here, an emissary of the White House called on counsel for Maj. Gen. Butler Friday and urged that they coöperate with the administration in finding a solution that would make it possible to drop the court martial.

As a result, Butler, together with Maj. Henry Leonard and Col. Jesse Dwyer, called at the navy department today and conferred for two hours with Secretary of the Navy Adams. It was at this conference that Gen. Butler agreed to express his regrets that the United States government had been embarrassed by his Philadelphia speech. Gen. Butler then returned to Quantico, Va.

By dismissing the case, which already has been marked by a formal apology by Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson to the Italian government, the administration will avoid becoming mixed up in a spectacular trial, such as the court martial scheduled to commence at Philadelphia on Feb. 16 was certain to be.

Expect Return to Duty.

It is assumed that Gen. Butler will be restored to active duty in command of the marine camp at Quantico, where he has been under technical arrest during the last ten days.

Retirement of Gen. Butler from the marine corps within the next year is anticipated. It is known that he has entered into a lecture contract which becomes effective next fall. His plan, it is understood, has been to take advantage in October of several months' accrued leave and to make his retirement effective about Jan. 1 of next year. With considerably more than the required 30 years' service to his credit, he can retire with an annual compensation of $6,000.

Text of Announcement.

The navy department's announcement of the withdrawal of court martial charges against Gen. Butler was as follows:

"The navy department has this day received a letter from Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, U. S. marine corps, explaining the circumstances under which his speech before the Contemporary club of Philadelphia was delivered and also expressing regret that his indiscreet remarks on that occasion should have caused embarrassment to the government.

"In view of the statement made by Gen. Butler in the above mentioned letter, taken in conjunction with the outstanding military record of the general, the secretary of the navy has decided to withdraw the charges and specifications recently preferred against him and to dissolve the general court martial. Gen. Butler will be reprimanded by the secretary of the navy."

Gen. Butler's letter to Secretary Adams was as follows:

"In connection with the decision of the department to try me by general court martial, it is requested that consideration be given to the matters hereinafter set forth.

"I was told by the president of the Contemporary club, before which I spoke, on Jan. 19, 1931, that I could speak 'my mind freely' and from his remarks, taken in their entirety, I understood that the club was composed of responsible members of the community, interested in public questions, and that my statements were to be confined to the limits of the four walls.

"This information is submitted on the assumption that it was not in the department's possession when it was decided to bring me to trial.

"I very greatly regret this incident and the fact that my indiscreet remarks have caused embarrassment to the government."

Both Gen. Butler's letter and Secretary Adams' reply, containing a formal reprimand, were dated today.

Formally Reprimanded.

"The navy department is in receipt of your letter of Feb. 8, 1931," said Secretary Adams in his letter, "in which you express regret for the character of the remarks made by you before the Contemporary club of Philadelphia on Jan. 19, 1931, and in which you invite attention to the fact that prior to delivering your extemporaneous talk at the club, you had been assured by the president of the club that you could speak your 'mind freely,' and that 'from his remarks, taken in their entirety' you understood that the club was composed of responsible members of the community, interested in public questions, and that your statements were to be confined to the limits of the four walls. It has also just been brought to the attention of the navy department that the membership of the club had been instructed accordingly, pursuant to a resolution previously adopted.

Disapproval Expressed.

"You are informed in this connection that the navy department cannot express too clearly its disapproval of the conduct of any officer of the naval establishment in making remarks which tend to embarrass the international relations of the government. Such action on the part of an officer of your rank and length of service merits and receives the unqualified condemnation of the navy department and for their utterance, which you admit, you are hereby reprimanded.

"In view of your letter expressing regret, taken in connection with your long record of brilliant service, the navy department feels that it is no longer necessary to resort to proceedings by general court martial, and expects that this incident will have a salutary effect upon your future conduct in matters of this character."

Charges Not Made Public.

It is the understanding that Secretary Adams originally recommended that Gen. Butler be reprimanded, but that President Hoover ordered the court martial. While the exact charges have not been made public, it is believed that they had to do with "conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline."

In his Philadelphia speech Gen. Butler engaged in a debate with two pacifist speakers. Replying to their remarks, he sought to emphasize the futility of relying upon treaties to insure peace. Referring to the situation in Italy, as an example of a nation where there was likely to be a tendency toward war, despite any treaties to the contrary, Gen. Butler said he had heard a friend say that, on an automobile trip with Mussolini, the car ran over a child and that the Italian premier brushed the incident aside with the remark that "it was only one life and the affairs of state couldn't be stopped by one life." Gen. Butler told his audience that you couldn't talk disarmament "with a man like that."

Ambassador Protests.

Formal protest was made by the Italian ambassador against Gen. Butler's remarks, with the result that Secretary Stimson expressed regrets of this government "for this discourteous and unwarranted utterance by a commissioned officer of this government on active duty."

An imposing array of counsel, headed by Roland Morris of Philadelphia, had been assembled to defend Gen. Butler in the court martial. The court martial board, as appointed, consisted of six admirals of the navy and a retired major general of the marine corps.

It was the plan of the defense to show that Gen. Butler had referred to the Mussolini story only as an illustration of his general theme and that it was not intended as a personal attack upon the Italian premier. Persons who heard the speech were to be called to testify that the significance of this part of his remarks had been greatly overemphasized. It also was the intention to call an imposing group of witnesses, headed by Gen. John J. Pershing, to testify to Gen. Butler's brilliant record of service in France, China, Haiti and elsewhere.

He'll Be 50 in July.

Gen. Butler will be 50 years of age in July. As the ranking major general of the marine corps his friends thought he was entitled to appointment as major general commandant of the marine corps. When President Hoover appointed Brig. Gen. B. H. Fuller to that post last fall, Gen. Butler is known to have been greatly disappointed and to have felt that it was useless for him to remain in the service longer. It is taken for granted that Gen. Butler will not retire earlier than next fall, unless an effort should be made to discipline him further by shifting him from his present post at Quantico to a less desirable assignment.

Butler's Friends Delighted.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Abandonment of plans for a court-martial of Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler was hailed with delight tonight by his friends in this city.

Members of the Contemporary club, before whom Gen. Butler's reference to Premier Mussolini was made, were particularly happy. Some of these members had felt the publication of Gen. Butler's remarks was a violation of confidence, for the club previously had voted to exclude newspaper reporters from all its meetings.

Many friends of the general called at the home of his mother in West Chester to extend their congratulations. His aged mother was not at home when the news was telephoned from Quantico, Va., where the general is stationed. The call was received by Butler's aunt, Miss Crissie Cochrane.

Roland S. Morris, former ambassador to Japan, who was to have been associate counsel for the general at his trial, said, "Secretary Adams' decision is very gratifying to me. I am delighted with it."

LYLE CUTS LOOSE AT MAYOR; TALKS IN LOOP TONIGHT

Judge Opens Fiery Attack on Thompson Tactics.

Preparing to invade the loop for the final two weeks of the campaign, Judge John H. Lyle ripped off the lid last night in his fight for the Republican mayoralty nomination, launching a scathing attack against Mayor Thompson.

Judge Lyle, speaking before the congregation of the Messiah Lutheran church at 64th and Lincoln streets, announced that he would enter the downtown campaign at a mass-meeting in the Apollo theater tonight with a speech that would show his opposition the "battle had just begun."

"Mayor Thompson has made charges against me that no man in his right mind would have dared to utter," Judge Lyle asserted, "and I will leave no stone unturned.

Rips Into Thompson.

"The attitude of Thompson indicates that his mind has been affected," the judge declared, "but if he isn't now an imbecile he hasn't far to go.

"I am saying this calmly, deliberately, fully realizing what I am doing, but I could no longer remain silent unless I wished to sacrifice the honor of myself and the happiness of my daughter.

"I did not want to be drawn into a campaign of vituperation and vilification, but now that he has forced me into it, let him bring on his filthy and faked affidavits, the handiwork of the Guziks, the Morans, the Capones, and the rest of Thompson's bedfellows. For every lie he hurls at me, I'll have ten truths to make him cringe.

"I'll Meet Him Any Time."

"I'll meet him at any time, or at any place. He can't bluff me. He has muddled the public treasury, upset the school funds, and under the guise of public benefactor he has become the champion confidence man of all time and a cowardly character assassin.

"I have a wheelbarrow load of evidence against this man, and I will not let up on him until the polls have closed on Feb. 24. The next mayor will find evidence in the city hall suited to prosecution.

"When I became a candidate I had hoped that the campaign would be confined to the discussion of the issues, and with my friends and advisers I had attempted to work out an answer and denial of his scurrilous charges, but it was of no use. My conscience will not permit me to phrase soft mellow language when even the answer I now make is inadequate."

Indicates Some Disclosures.

Judge Lyle indicated he would disclose startling evidence against Thompson in his first loop speech tonight. "This house of worship is not the place for me to go into these charges now," he said, "but I assure you that when I open fire in my campaign downtown there'll be no idle moments until after election day."

The judge's meeting at the Apollo tonight has been arranged by the Lyle-for-Mayor Citizens' committee, headed by E. F. Mansure, vice president of the E. F. Mansure Manufacturing company. Besides Judge Lyle, Mr. Mansure and Dr. Rufus A. White, pastor of the People's Liberal church, 64th street and Stewart avenue, will speak.

Albert Renews Challenge.

Ald. Arthur F. Albert, in his campaign for the Republican mayoralty nomination, renewed his challenge yesterday to Judge Lyle and Thompson to join him in a debate on the issues of the campaign, particularly crime. He reviewed the city council investigation of the police department last summer, based on his resolution.

Anton J. Cermak, Democratic candidate for mayor, announced yesterday that he would open his campaign today with a series of five speeches, one in the loop and the others in north side wards.

VANDERBILT JR. STILL SILENT ON BUTLER EPISODE

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Cancellation of court martial proceedings against Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler failed tonight to unseal the lips of Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr.

The young newspaper man interviewed Premier Mussolini of Italy in 1926, and has admitted he told "in strictest confidence" a story upon which was based Gen. Butler's Philadelphia Contemporary club anecdote which presented il duce as a hit and run driver. He said tonight the matter was a "closed incident" as far as he was concerned.

Vanderbilt declined to say, however, that he never would discuss the incident. He explained that monetary offers for his story had "nothing to do with it."

Previously Vanderbilt has said Gen. Butler in the Philadelphia speech "did not use my words," and Gen. Butler "inaccurately quoted me."

He had explained his continued silence by reference to confidence of others, including Gen. Butler, who told several stories in the affiliated lecture bureau of New York, in November, with the understanding "none of this will ever get out of this room."

"Why doesn't some one ask Gen. Butler what he said there?" he asked. "And if the newspapers really want to run this down why don't they find what some others told there? The public would be more interested in what one other person, more prominent than Gen. Butler or myself, said."

RADICALS' HOPE FOR A SPECIAL SESSION FADES

Relief Compromise Balks Their Plan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Possibility of a special session of congress now is regarded as remote. The compromise on relief legislation, which has apparently satisfied most of the Democratic senators who were threatening to force a special session, leaves the burden of such action upon the radicals.

Some of the Republicans were fearful today that Secretary of Agriculture Hyde's letter declaring that no charity will be countenanced under the guise of loans may bring criticisms from some of the Democrats who have supported the compromise.

While a number of the radicals would like a special session, it now seems unlikely that there will be a filibuster against appropriation bills of sufficient strength to prevent their passage. Only through the failure of necessary appropriation measures would President Hoover be forced to convene the new congress in special session.

Radicals' Opposition Seen.

Tomorrow the senate will take up the conference report on the interior department appropriation bill, which contains the compromise amendment liberalizing the present drought loan act and adding $20,000,000 to the $45,000,000 already appropriated. It is expected that there will be a lively controversy.

Opposition will come chiefly from the radical group, which will object to failure to provide direct relief for the unemployed.

Bonus Dispute Up Next.

With the controversy over relief legislation likely to be out of the way within the next few days the administration's chief concern then will be over proposals for increased loans or immediate retirement of bonus certificates held by world war veterans.

While Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has refused to approve, as yet, any of the schemes, it is possible that he may accept a modified proposal, of which the cost will be well below half a billion dollars.

The house ways and means committee will meet on Wednesday to consider bonus legislation. The senate finance committee is scheduled to meet on Thursday. It is expected that the conferences of the next two days will develop a definite administration program, which will make possible controversy and that more than one some action on Wednesday.

WOLFE DECLINES DISCUSSION OF FLOOD FUND SUIT

"All in Mayor's Hands," His Only Comment.

Richard W. Wolfe, commissioner of public works, remained silent yesterday on the charges that money contributed by school children, city employés and others in 1927 for the relief of flood sufferers in the Mississippi valley had not been used for that purpose.

In the bill of complaint filed in Superior court on Saturday in which Mayor Thompson is accused of failure to disburse $103,855 of the $139,772 contributed for relief, Wolfe was revealed for the first time as treasurer of the fund and of the Waterways and Flood Control Association of the Mississippi Valley. According to the allegations in the bill, some of the relief money was diverted to the latter organization.

Wolfe Declines Comment.

Wolfe refused to answer queries about the fund when questioned on the phone at his summer estate in southern Michigan.

"I don't know a thing about it," he said. "It is all in the mayor's hands. I won't discuss it."

The bill of complaint recited the conditions that existed in the flooded regions of the Mississippi valley three years ago, describing the sufferings of the flood victims. Then it quoted Thompson's proclamation calling for relief contributions. "The need is great. Your response should be immediate," the proclamation said.

In a reply to the bill, issued on Saturday, Thompson declared that approximately $90,000 of the fund collected for purposes of relief is now in the Foreman-State National bank.

Money Withdrawn from Bank.

After listing checks that had been drawn against the fund in 1927, 1928, and 1929, the bill of complaint charged that the total amount used for the authorized purposes of the fund amounted to only $18,500, and that during 1929 and 1930 there was still $103,855 left in the fund. Documents attached to the bill showed that all of the balance of the fund was withdrawn from the Prudential State Savings bank in December, 1930, and January, 1931, and turned over to Commissioner Wolfe.

Former City Controller George K. Schmidt is president of the Prudential bank. Thompson's statement said that he withdrew the fund when Schmidt announced his candidacy for mayor. Schmidt announced his candidacy on Jan. 13, resigning as controller.

James W. Breen, assistant corporation counsel, who with Thompson and Wolfe was one of the incorporators last December of the Waterways and Flood Control association and was named a co-defendant with them in the bill of complaint, said yesterday that he had opened the new account of the fund at the Foreman bank. He said he does not know how much the account now contains.

Payment to Bishop Carey.

Among the earlier payments from the relief fund noted in the bill was one to Bishop A. J. Carey, colored member of the civil service commission, also made a defendant. This check for $3,500 was drawn on May 1, 1928. This payment, according to the bill, was a "personal transaction" between Thompson and Carey and was not made in accordance with the terms of the trust fund.

Associates of Bishop Carey recalled that he attended the Republican national convention in Kansas City in June of 1928. At that time it was reported that Thompson was courting colored delegates with the assistance of Bishop Carey for his "Draft Coolidge" movement.

Another defendant named in the bill of complaint is James P. Davis, who is not otherwise identified. The documentary evidence shows that seven payments were made from the fund to Davis in amounts ranging from $150 to $220. These checks were drawn at intervals of about two weeks, according to the records. The suit charges that they were "a private arrangement between Thompson and Davis."

The records show, according to the complaint, that the last check drawn against the fund before the withdrawals from the Prudential bank was dated Jan. 31, 1929. This was near the time that Thompson virtually went into retirement, it is charged, and the fund lay dormant, according to the allegations, until the mayoralty campaign became active.

The documents accompanying the complaint include the three large checks by which most of the fund in the Prudential bank was withdrawn. These were for $26,831 on Dec. 18, $25,095 on Dec. 22, and $46,290 on Jan. 8. Another document attached to the bill is Wolfe's final statement of the account at the Prudential bank. One item of $5,636 is explained in this statement as "various payments made in accordance with the instructions of the mayor, as shown by separate statement rendered."

Counsel for the complainant, a Charles S. Smith, described as a contributor to the fund, announced that witnesses will be served with summonses today and that an effort will be made to get the witnesses before a master-in-chancery for the taking of depositions.

Flood Relief Fund Treasurer Fails to Explain

Facsimile of the $46,290.74 cashier's check, made out to the order of the William Hale Thompson Flood Relief fund, through which the money in the fund was paid out of the Prudential State Savings bank on Jan. 8.

Reverse of the above facsimile check, showing the stamp that indicates it was paid on Jan. 10 to the Foreman-State National bank. There is nothing to indicate to what account the money was credited and the only indorsement is a typewritten one, "William Hale Thompson Flood Relief fund."

MRS. M. A. O'MARA DIES IN PLUNGE OF 13 STORIES

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Mrs. Catherine O'Mara, 37 years old, wife of Martin A. O'Mara, until last fall president of the Brockway Motor Truck corporation, fell or jumped to her death from a 13th story window in the apartment of William McDaniels at 210 East Sixty-eighth street this evening.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Mara and others were attending a party given by Mr. McDaniels. Mrs. O'Mara left the living room. A minute later the superintendent of the apartment house heard the thud as her body hit in the courtyard.

Although the first police report said Mrs. O'Mara "jumped or fell," detectives later said indications were that she had committed suicide.

Mr. O'Mara was formerly vice president of the White Motor company, resigning in 1928 to head the Brockway corporation. He resigned last November, a week before called upon, together with David Lamar, the "Wolf of Wall Street," and George C. Van Tuyl Jr. to show cause why they should not be restrained from participation in stock pools.

The younger boy obtained the gun, which belongs to his father, in a dresser drawer and was playing with it when it discharged. The wounded boy was taken to St. Therese hospital in Waukegan.

M. V. L. ATTACKS OUSTER RULINGS IN COUNCIL RACE

Charges Politics Influenced Protest Decisions

Charges that the board of election commissioners were influenced by political expediencies in rulings on protests against aldermanic candidates were made yesterday by the Municipal Voters league in a statement calling on County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki to undertake an investigation of the election board.

In the statement, Voters league officials said the election board had acted contrary to assurances, given by Judge Jarecki to the league, that the objections would be decided on their legal merits and not on political considerations.

The statement, signed by Herbert J. Friedman, president; H. Clay Judson and Eldridge Bancroft Pierce, members of the executive committee, cited several rulings of the board as "flagrant cases."

Pages Not Numbered.

The league referred to the case involving Robert E. Barbee, former alderman of the Seventeenth ward, whose candidacy was ruled out by the election board because the pages of his nominating petition were not numbered. The league said Mr. Barbee had made a good record as a former alderman and had he been permitted to stay in the race he would have been a strong contender for the election "because of the poor record of Ald. James G. Coyle."

The league's statement contended that the election law on which Barbee's petition was thrown out merely directed that the sheets in the petition should be securely fastened together and numbered consecutively, but that the directions are not mandatory, although the election board so ruled.

"Another illustration of a flagrant ruling," the statement said, "is in the Forty-sixth ward. There Ald. Oscar Nelson, Mayor Thompson's floor leader, is running for reelection.

"Feigen Strong Opponent."

"A strong opponent had an excellent opportunity to defeat Nelson and there was much to be feared by him had Arthur P. Feigen been permitted to remain in the field. Nelson filed objections against Feigen and at 1 o'clock of the last day on which objections could be filed, Feigen was notified of the Nelson objections.

"Feigen then in turn prepared objections to Nelson's petition as quickly as he could and rushed over to the election board, arriving there about 10 minutes until 5 p. m. Because of the crowds in the board rooms Feigen was compelled to remain in line some 8 or 10 minutes. When he reached the clerk and handed in the objections the clerk stated: 'It is too late; it is 2 minutes past 5.'

Ask for Investigation.

"The board ruled that Feigen's nominating petition did not comply with the law and threw out his candidacy, but as far as the league can ascertain the board has not ruled on Feigen's objections to the Nelson petition which Feigen had filed a few minutes late."

"The conclusion is inescapable," the league said, "that the board in these cases was actuated by purely political considerations. Having relied on Judge Jarecki's promise that he would not allow the board to be guided by political expediency and knowing the interest that he has always taken to bring about honest elections, the Municipal Voters league now asks him to cause an investigation to be made of the actions of the election commission in its recent rulings."

NEGRO STABBED TO DEATH.

Benjamin Walker, 20 years old, 3501 Wabash avenue, colored, was stabbed to death last night in an argument over a card game at 3133 Cottage Grove avenue by Roteso Gilbert, 19 years old, who escaped.

COUNTY BUDGET OF $47,564,000 WILL BE GIVEN BOARD TODAY

A total budget for the county of $47,564,000 to be expended in 1931 was tentatively approved yesterday by the finance staff of the county board and will be submitted to the board today. Included in this total is the corporate budget of $25,949,000.

To avoid making cuts in the corporate budget to balance the proposed expenditures with the estimated revenues, the staff agreed to recommend an increase of $810,000 in the estimate of delinquent taxes that would be paid in 1931. Since Friday, when the committee found that the necessary expenditures were higher than the estimated revenues, the delinquent tax item has been boosted by a total of $1,610,000.

The other appropriations that go to make up the total budget are $14,400,000 from the highway fund; $3,882,000 from the bond and interest fund; $2,650,000 from the trust funds and $680,000 from the county employes' annuity and benefit fund.

TIMKEN HEIRESS PLANS TO MARRY POOR LAW CLERK

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Heir to $7,000,000 through her adoption seventeen years ago by the late Mrs. Georgiana Timken Fry, Miss Fredericka Fry, once a Chicago girl, but now one of the foremost sportswomen of the Greenwich, Conn., society group, today announced her engagement to Eligio Del Guercio of Mamaroneck. Del Guercio is said to be a penniless law clerk, son of an Italian printer. Miss Fry gets her income from the Timken roller bearing fortune.

Miss Fry gave Del Guercio a $14,500 automobile as an engagement present, it is said by her Greenwich friends. The girl is a dog fancier and her toy collie kennels on her Connecticut estate are famous.

Del Guercio, who is 25, was graduated from Fordham law school last June. He now works in the offices of E. Chase Crowley.

Miss Fry vanished from her estate soon after her intention to wed became known. Del Guercio, too, disappeared from the home of his father, Joseph Del Guercio of Mamaroneck. Friends of the couple believe they have eloped.

3 RAIL SUBWAYS ORDERED BY CITY ARE NEVER BUILT

Inaction Arouses the South Side.

Twenty years ago the city council passed an ordinance providing for elevation of the Nickel Plate railroad tracks from 83d street to Stony Island avenue. In 1924 the ordinance was amended to provide for three vehicular subways, at 93d street, 95th street, and Stony Island avenue, all to be constructed before the end of 1927.

Due to the failure of the city administration to execute the terms of the ordinance, none of the subways has been started.

Growth of District Retarded.

"The people in my ward are up in arms over this situation," declared Ald. William A. Rowan [Dem., 10th] yesterday. "With Stony Island avenue on the east and Cottage Grove avenue on the west and no connecting link between, the growth of the entire district is stifled."

In 1927, the year the ordinance was amended, a $100,000 bond issue to open 103d street was voted. The plan formulated by the railroad had been to move its switchyards to the 103d street neighborhood, but the protests have been so great that it has not done so. Neither has the ordinance calling for the subways been enforced.

Says City Should Act.

Recently the entire ordinance was carried before the Illinois commerce commission, which held that the city should have started mandamus proceedings to enforce the ordinance.

Among the leaders of the district in addition to Ald. Rowan who have been active in trying to secure action from the administration are E. H. Burke, president of the South Chicago Chamber of Commerce; Walter Roy, business manager of the South End Chamber of Commerce, and J. I. Molitor, president of the Calumet Gateway association.

Ald. Clement A. Nance [7th] addressed the fifth Sunday massmeeting yesterday at 103d street and Cottage Grove avenue to protest against the blocking of 103d street by the Nickel Plate railway switching tracks. The issue comes before the Illinois commerce commission for a final hearing tomorrow.

PLUMBERS MEET TO PRESS OUSTER OF ALL OFFICERS

Dissenting members of the plumbers' union were denied permission to hold meeting in the Union hall at 1340 Washington boulevard yesterday and for the second time they met at the Majestic building, 5452 West Madison street. About 1,000 of the 3,700 members were present to discuss ouster proceedings against all officials and to call an election. Those present said they had received many threats but that they would proceed in their plan and it was agreed that at the next regular semi-monthly meeting of the union to be held tomorrow a resolution would be presented which will declare all offices vacant. The meeting yesterday was under the protection of the state's attorney's office and the police and similar protection was promised for tomorrow's meeting.

WOMAN SCIENCE EXPERT SUICIDE AFTER QUARREL

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Dr. Helen Reiner, 26, brought what promised to be a brilliant scientific career to a tragic close today by swallowing poison after a quarrel with her husband, Dr. Lezso Reiner.

The Reiners, graduates of a Hungarian university, came here about a year ago as guests of New York university and Mrs. Reiner was engaged in research work into the bacteriology of infectious diseases.

The woman scientist, whose beauty, friends said, almost equaled the brilliance of her scientific attainments, was found dead by her husband on the floor of the Littauer research laboratory. Near her hand was a beaker which had contained poison.

REFUSE TO GIVE UP HOPE

Assembly Data Available to Public at City Hall

Frederick Rex, librarian of the municipal reference library in the city hall, announced yesterday that publications relating to the work of the 57th general assembly, now in session at Springfield, are being received each week and are available for free reference purposes. Included in the publications are descriptions of bills that are introduced and the action on them; copies of the bills and resolutions as introduced and copies of the Illinois State senate journal and the journal of the house for each day of their meeting.

Clara May Aid

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Possibility that Clara Bow will make another effort to intercede in behalf of her former confidante and secretary, Daisy De Boe, when the latter appears in Superior Judge William Doran's court next Tuesday, was suggested today by attorneys interested in the case.

Miss De Boe, who has been confined in county jail since her conviction on one count of grand theft of Clara's property, will return to court for sentence and a hearing on her probation application. Her attorneys are hopeful that probation will be granted and that she will be given a brief county jail sentence instead of one that would confine her in the state penitentiary at San Quentin.

Meanwhile her friends are striving to present a strong case in her behalf to Judge Doran. They will seek to have Clara Bow's "mercy" letter dispatched to District Attorney Fitts immediately after the conviction made part of the record, and in addition secure another written appeal from the actress.

ONE OF CANNON'S ACCUSERS CALLS VERDICT BLUNDER

'Doubly Sure of Charges,' He Says.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Bishop James Cannon Jr. today stood cleared of charges brought against him by four ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, but at least one of the accusing churchmen believes the result a "blunder."

As the militant prohibition leader prepared to resume his church activities as soon as his health permits, Dr. Costen J. Harrell, one of the four who filed the charges, issued a statement at Richmond, Va., saying they were "doubly sure" they were right after hearing the evidence.

Cannon Refuses Comment.

Dr. Harrell, a Richmond, Va., pastor, said:

"My co-signers and myself filed charges against Bishop Cannon after very careful investigation. We did this for the cause of righteousness and for the church. We were sure at that time that we were right.

"After we heard the evidence in Washington this week, including some very astonishing admissions by Bishop Cannon, we were doubly sure that we were right. The committee did not vote with us, but time will doubtless reveal their blunder."

Dr. Harrell returned to Richmond yesterday before the hearing was completed to attend a funeral.

Informed of the statement, Bishop Cannon said he had no comment. He spent the day in Sibley hospital.

It was the second time within a year that Bishop Cannon had emerged triumphant from accusations emanating from his own church. The first time was at the general conference last year in Dallas when he was accused of gambling in stocks.

Plans to Resume Duties.

Bishop Cannon has been ill for weeks with arthritis and has been undergoing treatment at Sibley hospital and at a Marlin, Tex., sanitarium. As soon as he improves sufficiently he plans to take up his duties as head of the Methodist board of temperance and social service and as missionary bishop to Africa and Brazil.

The decision last night was reached after a five day investigation behind the locked and guarded doors of the Mount Vernon Place church.

For three days Dr. Forrest J. Prettyman of Baltimore, Dr. I. P. Martin of Abingdon, Va., and Drs. Costen J. Harrell and J. T. Mastin of Richmond, Va., the four ministers who brought the charges, presented their case. For two days Bishop Cannon defended himself, assisted materially by Dr. J. Sidney Peters of Newport News, Va., and Dr. James Cannon III., the bishop's eldest son, a professor at Duke university, Durham, N. C.

Because of the gravity of the charges, Bishop W. N. Ainsworth of Birmingham, Ala., who presided, ruled the accused churchman should have the opportunity of cross examining witnesses and presenting such defense as he desired. Had the committee found the charges to be well founded, Bishop Cannon would have been suspended from all active duty for three years before he could have been brought to trial.

After the hearings ended late last night Bishop Cannon called the Associated Press and said he "had no statement to make now on any subject."

Seldom has the national capital seen such elaborate plans for secrecy as were made to keep the proceedings from the public. All the committee members, the four prosecutors, and others in the hearing were admonished by Bishop Ainsworth to "be on your honor not to tell anything."

Bishop Ainsworth came out of the church into the rain to give the decision to reporters rather than allow them to enter the church, although by that time every one had left except policemen and a Negro janitor.

ROGER W. KAHN, SON OF BANKER, WEDS ACTRESS

Flyer-Composer Marries Hannah Williams.

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Roger Wolfe Kahn, son of Otto H. Kahn, banker and chairman of the board of the Metropolitan Opera company, and Miss Hannah Williams, until last night featured in a current Broadway musical show, were married Jan. 26 at the Kahn mansion at Cold Springs Harbor, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. Kahn said tonight.

Performed by Justice.

The announcement, which came in the form of confirmation of the admission made earlier in the day by John Deans, justice of the peace of Huntington, N. Y., that he had performed the ceremony, said the senior Kahn was unable to be present owing to an attack of influenza.

Witnesses to the marriage were Mrs. Kahn, the bridegroom's mother, and his elder brother, Gilbert W. Kahn.

After the ceremony the couple left on an extended wedding trip.

Divorced in Chicago.

Miss Williams, who sang the ditty "Cheerful Little Earful" in "Sweet and Low," left the cast at the request of the bridegroom's father, the producer, Billy Rose said. In obtaining her marriage license, she said she was the former wife of Charles Kaley and the marriage was annulled in Cook county, Illinois, June 30, 1927.

She said she was born in Taylor, Pa., daughter of Thomas E. and Martha Hughes Williams. She said she was 20.

Kahn said he was 23 and gave his occupation as composer.

Find Jeweler Dead in Hotel Room; Hunt Girl Friend

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Dead from a fractured skull the body of H. H. Guber, Ottawa, Kas., jeweler, was found in his hotel room here late today. Police, who said a diamond stickpin, cuff links, and shirt studs worn by Guber were missing, began a search for a young woman reported in the room with the jeweler this morning. A bellboy said the woman was in the room when he carried a breakfast tray there at the order of the guest.

A CHRONICLE OF JAUNTS BY ONE GERALD P. NYE

Itinerary of the Traveling Senator Given.

gust when Senator Nye began traveling in earnest.

Aug. 6 found him on his way to Chicago, from there he went to Fargo, N. D. On Saturday, the 18th, he journeyed to his home in Cooperstown, N. D., for the week-end, returning to Fargo on the 21st. It then seemed wise to hold committee conferences and Glacier National park was picked as the site. The Glacier park meeting cost the hardy taxpayers something like $1,368.80.

Five Senators on Committee.

From the account it is not always easy to trace just what was spent for whom and for what. There were four other senators on the committee, Senators Dale, Patterson, Dill, and Wagner. There were clerks and assistant clerks and nearly a score of investigators at one time or another. Many of the payments were made by Donald O. Nye, the senator's brother, who seems to have acted as a sort of lord chamberlain without pay.

In fact an extremely reliable report has it that the committee's expense account was submitted to J. R. McCarl, comptroller general of the United States and that Mr. McCarl, who audits accounts for government departments, kept the expense account for three days and then gave up, with the admission that it was too tangled up for him to audit.

Side Trip to Wisconsin.

From Glacier park Senator Nye and his colleagues and staff went to Fargo again and from there to Chicago. The first days of September found them in Chicago with a side trip for Senator Nye to Wittenberg, Wis., for a couple of days.

Sept. 10 meant a trip from Chicago to Washington for Senator Nye and the 13th a trip back to Chicago again. Then out to Lincoln, Neb., on Sept. 20, then back to Chicago, and by the end of the month back to Washington again.

Oct. 9 to 11 shows an item for a trip to Wilmington, Del., New York and back again. A day or so later, there began a tour of some of the southern states, which must have been somewhat of an invasion en masse, for these items are recorded:

Southern Railway company, Oct. 13—For transportation furnished Senators Nye, Wagner, and Patterson and assistants, including Pullman charges, from Washington, D. C., to Raleigh, N. C., and to Nashville, Tenn., in the investigation of contributions and expenditures of senatorial candidates:

10 tickets, Washington, D. C., to Raleigh, N. C.	$102.40
8 drawing rooms, Washington to Raleigh	40.80
4 lower berths, Washington to Raleigh	15.00
4 tickets, Raleigh, N. C., to Nashville, Tenn.	91.20
1 drawing room and 2 lowers, Raleigh to Nashville	46.50
Total	$295.60

Paid to Sir Walter Raleigh hotel, Raleigh, N. C., for accommodations for Senators Nye, Patterson, and Wagner, and assistants, on Oct. 12 and 13, $90.80.

Paid to Battery Park hotel, Asheville, N. C., for accommodations for Senators Nye and Wagner and assistants from Oct. 12 to 16, $114.25.

Paid to Andrew Jackson ticket office, Nashville, Tenn., for transportation, including Pullman charges, for Senators Nye and Wagner and assistants, from Nashville to Memphis, on Oct. 16, $135.80.

Paid to Peabody ticket office, Memphis, Tenn., for transportation, including Pullman charges for Senators Nye and Wagner and assistants, as follows: Memphis to New York, $128.92; Memphis to Washington, D. C., $45.13; Memphis to Omaha, Neb., $66.08. Total, $240.13.

Paid to Hotel Peabody, Memphis, Tenn., for accommodations for Senators Nye and Wagner and assistants from Oct. 17 to 20, $264.92.

Out to Montana, Too.

From Memphis, the chairman went to Omaha, Neb., from Omaha to Lincoln, Neb., from Lincoln to Denver, Colo., from Denver to Billings, Mont., from Billings to Fargo, N. D., to Cooperstown, to St. Paul, and back to Washington again.

November saw the traveling senator slowing down a bit, making one last swing which took him to Denver, to Lincoln, to Chicago, to Memphis, and back to Washington. Dec. 2 records one final trip to New York, and then congress was in session again.

BANKS IN PARIS AND STRASBOURG FORCED TO CLOSE

PARIS, Feb. 8.—(AP)—The Banque de Guyenne and Rouerque, with about 100 branches mostly in central and southwestern France, was closed today. The manager and assistant manager were arrested.

Alsatian Bank Closed.

STRASBOURG, France, Feb. 8.—(AP)—The Banque Populaire Alsatienne will remain closed tomorrow, legal authorities having placed seals on the doors. The bank's liabilities were given as $1,000,000.

Investigation into the affairs of the bank were instituted after police received a note from the manager,

TWINS BORN TO MOTHER SAVED FROM GALLOWS

LONDON, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Conservative Englishmen, stirred to protest against the inexorable laws of their country last month when a mother of four children was condemned to hang for the murder of her baby, were aroused again today by news that the woman had borne twins in prison.

The Daily Express says Mrs. Olive Catherine Wise, whose death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment by the home secretary, gave birth to a boy and a girl in Holloway prison Friday.

FARM BOARD IS NEARING CRISIS; LOSS 70 MILLIONS

injured by cotton stabilization operations. One communication from a southern banker to the senate appropriations committee asserted that fully 50 per cent of the bank failures in the south had been due to the board's inability to maintain its policy which was, in effect, about a year ago to loan 16 cents a pound on cotton. Recently the market price has been only about 10 cents a pound. On the basis of present prices the board has lost from 6 to 7 cents a pound on its 1,300,000 bales of cotton, held for a year in stabilization operations.

The American Cotton Shippers' association, which was represented recently by a delegation before the senate appropriations committee, asked the withdrawal of the federal government from all participation in the merchandising of cotton except for liquidation and the repeal of the farm board act.

Southern senators insist that the farm board is using government money to encourage speculation when the cotton cooperatives buy futures at the same time they sell their cotton. If there is a profit, according to these senators, it goes to the cooperatives while, if there is a loss, the government bears it.

There is pending in the senate an amendment by Senator Hugo L. Black (Dem., Ala.) to provide that none of the proposed 100 million dollar appropriation shall be used for the purchase of futures contracts.

Mr. Legge thinks that the board will be able to operate indefinitely on the 500 million dollar revolving loan fund, but he admits he can only guess what may happen.

"No man can foresee what is ahead of us," said Mr. Legge, before a house committee, "but if you can conjure up any combination of circumstances in the future worse than we are going through now, I cannot picture it."

IOWA SENDS FREE FOOD TO HUNGRY IN DROUGHT AREA

Corn, Wheat and Eggs Supplied by Farmers.

BY PAUL POTTER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ames, Ia., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Carloads of farm products are on their way or soon will be moving from this land of plenty to feed the distressed of Arkansas and other drought ridden areas. Under the guidance of the Red Cross in some cases and of civic and farm groups in others, corn, wheat and eggs are being gathered from farms in many parts of Iowa to be assembled in Des Moines and routed via St. Louis to points of great need.

Farmers have been holding onto their corn when not needed for their live stock, and cribs still are well filled with this grain selling at less than 50 cents a bushel, considerably under its value for more than fifty years. Now they are bringing small loads to country elevators and the grain is sent along weekly with most of its transportation cost gratis to furnish "corn pone" for the southerners.

Free Transportation Furnished.

Corn is being ground into meal or stock feeds at the point of consumption to furnish labor where work is scarcest. Poultry flocks are also contributing their share. Reports from many sections of Iowa here today showed farm women able to get but 19 cents a dozen for fresh eggs, and this usually being paid with groceries. Warm weather has kept the hens on full laying schedules, and the poultrymen and hatcherymen of the state express concern over the flood of eggs coming into market. As local business men contribute the crates and egg cases, farmers are bringing in their eggs to be packed for shipment.

The produce dealers and hatcherymen in many cities are announcing free handling of the shipments, while the express company is furnishing free transportation to Des Moines, the centralizing point. Reports of this activity have been received from Fort Dodge, Iowa Falls, Lost Nation, and Ames, others being expected daily.

Wheat Added to Foodstuffs.

Under sponsorship of a Des Moines farm paper, a carload of wheat is also to be added to the foodstuffs Iowa is sending southward.

Officials of the Red Cross here declare they expect donated materials such as pork, beef and farm seeds to be augmented by clothing from Iowa's farms and cities during the remainder of the winter and spring.

"We could ship a trainload of eggs, corn and wheat without making a dent in the visible supply of these products in the state," declared a local poultry association secretary. The first shipments are expected to leave Des Moines next Wednesday.

With farmers overstocked on nearly every kind of product in Iowa, cream checks, poultry shipments and other means of securing cash income reflect the lowest commodity values since pre-war markets. Such items as are perishable are being sacrificed, yet cows, hogs, cattle and sheep are being held back from the market as much as possible.

Chauffeur Shot When He Starts Row in Saloon

Herbert Tholl, 30 years old, 1220 Roscoe street, a chauffeur, was found seriously wounded last night in an alley back of a soft drink parlor at 1417 Fullerton avenue. Hudson avenue police took into custody William Schenck, proprietor; Paul Gorowsky, his bartender, and Alfred Hagen, 1754 Fletcher street. Their stories, all the same, were that Tholl, who had been drinking, had drawn a revolver and threatened to rob the place. Frank Jenkins, a customer, wrestled with him for the gun and in the scuffle Tholl was shot. He staggered to the alley and fell unconscious. He is at the Alexian Brothers' hospital.

MINISTERS URGE GIFTS AS RELIEF DRIVE NEARS END

Clarke Asks $300,000 to Fill Quota.

Under the direction of George W. Dixon, chairman of the church committee of Gov. Emmerson's unemployment commission, pastors of many of Chicago's churches in their sermons yesterday made a special appeal for the commission's $5,000,000 relief fund.

With but three days remaining before the fund campaign closes on Wednesday, Philip R. Clarke, campaign chairman, declared last night that the $300,000 as yet unsubscribed must come from "plus" subscriptions or sources as yet unresponsive, if the campaign is to be successful.

Has Faith in Final Result.

"The universe was created in only six days," said Mr. Clarke last night, "and much can be done in three days. We who have been on the job for more than three months cannot bring ourselves to believe that Chicago will not do all expected of it in this grave emergency, when 70,000 families are requiring relief and 700 new families daily are being added to the list of applicants for assistance.

"In past campaigns there always has been a big burst of speed in the 'stretch,' and we are hopeful that the big gap now existing will be spanned before Wednesday night.

Workers Renew Efforts.

"Although pretty well tired out, our trades divisions and special committees are putting the best efforts into the final days of the drive. They have made real sacrifices in this campaign, and are entitled to full encouragement, which will be forthcoming if individuals and business concerns among the 'absentees' recognize their civic and humanitarian duty and help us make the grade.

"Five million dollars should not be unattainable when we consider the widespread suffering in our midst—suffering by families that have been the backbone of the community."

MANY DROUGHT AREAS GET RAIN, REVIVING HOPES

Arkansas Is Visited by Downpour.

Little Rock, Ark., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Rain brought brightened prospects to parts of the drought burned south and southwest today.

Rainfall was confined largely to points west of Mississippi and centered in Arkansas, where last summer's sun was responsible for the greatest damage.

Although the drought actually was broken last fall, its after effects still threaten prospects for a spring crop, since it is still too dry to cultivate or begin extensive spring plantings.

General Rain in Arkansas.

Rain was general last night and today over all of Arkansas. At Fort Smith, in the west on the Oklahoma border, 3.28 inches fell, while at Jonesboro in the northeast, the fall was about three inches.

The weather bureau reported .94 inches at Cairo, Ill., and other Illinois points had soaking downpours. Rain was badly needed over the whole of southern Illinois. To the south, in Louisiana, New Orleans reported light showers with more rain predicted tomorrow. Some portions of Texas had streams out of banks.

With additional rains over the drought area, problems engendered by the drought may be quickly solved, Red Cross officials said. As soon as the dry subsoil has absorbed sufficient moisture, spring planting can begin in earnest and individual relief again will be possible.

Floods in Texas.

Wichita Falls, Tex., visited by a 2.61 inch rain, was threatened by flood waters of Lake Wichita and Holliday creek. Scores of homes in low sections may be inunduated by the advancing flood.

At variance with fears of many southwest farmers, anxious lest the drought damage winter grain crops, growers at Electra, Tex., were apprehensive plantings would be damaged by further precipitation.

Corsicana, in central Texas, reported rainfall of .61 of an inch.

At Wichita, Kas., half an inch of rain was recorded. Springfield, Mo., on the edge of the Ozark region, enjoyed a shower.

Steady Downpour in Egypt.

Anna, Ill., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—A steady downpour of rain for the last 24 hours has brought relief to farmers who have been forced to haul water for their stock and domestic use. The state reservoir supplying the Anna State hospital has been almost dry for several weeks.

Rain Still Falling.

Metropolis, Ill., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Rainfall during the last 24 hours at the government dam at Brookport registered 1.70 inches. The rainfall was general over this section. Rain still was falling tonight, and small streams were high for the first time in a year.

THE FLEET'S IN AT PANAMA; TARS THRONG STREETS

PANAMA CITY, Feb. 8.—(AP)—The fleet's in and Panama City's narrow streets were thronged today with crowds of white clad American sailors as the first thousands came to this town on shore leave.

From now until the United States navy's annual war games end late next month there will be approximately 130,000 sailors in this region and Panama will get to see plenty of them, although only 10,000 or 12,000 will be allowed leave at a time.

In the meantime the great naval dirigible, Los Angeles, unhitched from the U. S. S. Patoka, its mast ship, today and went for a cruise while awaiting part in the defense of the canal. The battle fleet is on its way from the Pacific coast to simulate attack upon this important world waterway. When all are here there will be approximately 130 craft of war—in other words, all of the United States fleet except the Asiatic squadron.

Husband, Wife, Mother in Auto Robbed of Gems

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Ellis Jr., 6817 Merrill avenue, and his mother, 6731 Jeffery avenue, were held up last night by two gunmen in front of the mother's home. The Ellises had driven her there in their car following an evening spent at their apartment. The gunmen compelled Mr. Ellis to drive to an alley, six blocks away, where they took $25 from him, a $200 ring from his mother, and a $1,200 bracelet and a $200 ring from his wife. Then they removed the distributor from the car and left.

FINDS CITY LAX IN PLANNING FOR WASHINGTON FETE

Woman Tells of Event for 1932.

Surprise at the dilatory attitude of Chicago and of Illinois toward preparations to celebrate the bi-centennial of George Washington's birth in 1932 was expressed yesterday by Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook on her arrival here from Washington. Mrs. Cook, the only woman member of the executive committee of the bi-centennial commission appointed by President Coolidge, is one of the two women members of the whole commission, and is a past president general of the D. A. R.

"President Hoover is chairman of the commission," Mrs. Cook said. "Our meetings have been held mainly in the East room in the White House. The quarters now occupied by the staff comprise twenty rooms in the Washington building, near the Willard hotel, and sixty clerks are employed in various phases of the work.

Plan to Open Pageants.

So far we have been doing mainly organization work. The commission contemplates opening the nine months of pageantry and programs of the bi-centennial with an address by President Hoover before congress on Feb. 11, 1932, which by the old style calendar would be the actual birth date of Washington.

"Our five years of work since our appointment by President Coolidge has included the mapping out of the character and extent of the celebrations we hope will mark the anniversary. It is planned to have a commission appointed in each state to coöperate with the national, and subcommittees in the various cities of each state which will handle the local arrangements. Each state legislature is also to be asked to appropriate funds to finance the observance, although I understand Illinois has made no such move in either direction.

Born in Wakefield, Va.

"It is surprising to discover how few people know where Washington was born. It was in Wakefield, Va. The house was burned in 1780, and though no pictures remain, the original structure is being reproduced of handmade brick on the old foundations which were found intact. John D. Rockefeller contributed $115,000 toward purchase of the 400 acres the Wakefield Memorial association now owns.

"The restoration of the Wakefield property will be completed in time to have it turned over to the government by Feb. 11, 1932, by Mrs. Harry Lee Rust, the association president, who is a descendant of the Washington family.

Mrs. Cook left last night to join her husband in Portland, Ore.

CHICAGOANS TO SEE RUINS

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes about to start from the Illinois Central station for New Orleans, thence to Uxmal, Yucatan, where they will view the evidences of Mayan civilization.

Rufus C. Dawes Family Starts Trip to Yucatan

Rufus C. Dawes, Mrs. Dawes, and their daughter, Margaret, started south yesterday for a trip into Yucatan to study the ancient ruins of Uxmal. It is proposed to reproduce that city on Chicago's lake front for the 1933 world's fair. Several Mayan temples are to be inspected by the party, with a view to reproducing in the exposition structures vivid coloring of the originals.

Detailed architectural studies of the buildings already have been made by an expedition headed by Dr. Franz Blom of Tulane university.

Spanish Grain Men Ask Ban on Foreign Wheat

MADRID, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Spanish grain men met today to discuss methods of dealing with the low wheat prices. They resolved to ask the government to take steps to hold up wheat quotations and to prohibit importation of foreign wheat.

MORE DRINKING BY OLD, YOUNG, SURVEY SHOWS

Former Dry States Made Wet by Police Records.

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Increased drunkenness among the young, a steady rise in the number of arrests for intoxication among adults despite the unemployment situation, an upward trend of the alcoholism death rate, and a growing demand for repeal of the eighteenth amendment are asserted by the Moderation League, Inc.

The league's report of its sixth national survey was made public today. "By far the most distressing result of the Volstead act is the increase in drinking among boys and girls and young people generally," says Research Director Stanley Shirk. "Apparently the largest increase has taken place among those from 15 to 25 years of age."

Figures between 1924-1929 were supplied the survey by 675 police departments; 509 departments gave figures for the 1920-1929 period, and 389 departments gave figures covering the sixteen year period 1914-1929.

Gives Police Records.

Arrests for intoxication increased from 750,774 in 1928 to 757,989 in 1929, according to police department records.

"Previously there had always been each year a quite noticeable rise over the prior year, but in 1929 the rise was very slight, and this, in our judgment, was due to the panic with resulting hard times," says the report. It adds that, "inasmuch as 1930 has been a very bad year economically and unemployment has been very acute, we confidently expect that the figures for drunkenness for 1930 will show a very noticeable decline."

The 1929 increase occurred in both wet and dry communities.

In wet states—those which had no state prohibition law before the advent of national prohibition—the low point of arrests for drunkenness was 1920, the first year of national prohibition, when 172,761 were recorded. Since then they have increased to 442,206 in 1929, the highest number in any year, save the war boom peak of 1916, which indicates, according to the report, that "drunkenness in these states may therefore be considered to have risen substantially to the level of pre-prohibition or saloon days."

Former Dry States Wet.

"Quite remarkable" are the figures for the dry states—those which had state prohibition before the national dry law went into effect—according to the report.

"The low point of arrests for drunkenness in these states was in 1919, the year before national prohibition, and not in 1920, as in the wet states," the report says. "This fact is supported by the United States census bureau death rates from alcoholism.

"In other words, in these states, drunkenness actually began to increase in 1920, the first year under the eighteenth amendment. The rise became very sharp in 1921, 1922 and 1923. In these three years the figures increased over 80 per cent above 1920.

"In 1929 the arrests for drunkenness in the places reporting from the dry states were 145,029 as compared with 104,478 in 1914. This is 39 per cent above the 1914 level and indicates that conditions of intemperance in these 'dry' states are worse today than before national prohibition."

The statements contained in the report are supported by figures when such data were obtainable.

ENGINEERS WILL OPEN CONFERENCE HERE TOMORROW

Problems of construction confronting builders of the Chicago subway, abatement of the smoke nuisance and similar subjects will be discussed by internationally known engineers during the annual convention of the Midwest Power Engineering conference of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, opening at the Stevens hotel tomorrow. Approximately $1,000,000 worth of recent improvements in engineering machinery will be on display during the convention, which will continue until Saturday.

One of the features of the display will be the thyratron tube, the sponsors of which say it will revolutionize the use of eletcricity by increasing its efficiency, transmitting electrical power to new distances, and enabling the use of greater power in congested areas.

KILLS HIS WIFE AT DOOR OF HOME AND GOES TO B

Husband Confesses A Body Is Found.

Suspecting that his wife, [illegible] 29 years old, had been unfaithful to him, Charles Micelli, 35 years old, tailor, shot her to death early yesterday on the threshold of their home flat at 1632 Julian street. He confessed the killing to Chief of Detectives John Norton.

The couple had been married [illegible] years and have one child, Sarah, 4 years old. For the last two years, Micelli said, he had been unable to get steady employment. His wife worked nights as a bookbinder for the Ludwig Printing company, 4600 Diversey avenue, the job keeping her away from home until 1 a. m.

Loads Gun and Waits.

Two weeks ago, according to Micelli's story, he discovered his wife instead of working Friday and Saturday nights, as he supposed, she had been in the company of other men. Early Saturday night he resolved to kill her. He loaded his pistol, and sat up in the vestibule to keep vigil until his wife returned.

The wife had unlocked the door and was about to come in at 6 a. m. when Micelli opened the door from within and, without uttering a reproach, shot her through the heart. Leaving the door partly open, he cleaned the pistol and lay down in the bedroom, six feet from where his wife's body lay on the pavestone.

The shot was not heard by his daughter, Sarah, and Mrs. [illegible] parents, John and Agnes Hinz, who were sleeping in a rear bedroom. The body lay undisturbed until [illegible] Saturday, passing by at daybreak, [illegible] form on the threshold and called the police.

Accept Accident Story.

The grandmother was preparing breakfast and the child was getting ready for church when a police sergeant entered, carrying the body. Sarah, feigning sleepiness, was rubbing her eyes as the policemen brought her from his bedroom. Pretending grief, he sobbed that his wife was subject to spells and suggested she might have fallen, fracturing her skull.

On the assumption the death accidental, the squadmen had the body removed to the county morgue. Coroner Norton, called out of bed on the case, ordered the body examined for a bullet wound, which was found. After questioning, Micelli confessed. His request to see the daughter was granted. The child appeared unmoved as she slept.

EX-TOBACCO KING IS BACK HOME TO RUN RADIO SHOP

Springfield Mo., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Forty years ago James M. Dixon left Drury college and this city to seek fame and fortune. He succeeded, far beyond his fondest hopes. After a colorful career as the president of a $150,000,000 corporation, he has returned to the scene of his boyhood days, to the simple life of a small town shopkeeper.

Mr. Dixon entered the employ of the American Tobacco company as a youth and after ten years with the company was sent to Europe to establish and later manage its far flung properties. In 1913 he joined the Tobacco Products corporation and became its president six years later. He closed a deal leasing its brands to the American Tobacco company in 1924 and retired.

Today at 58 he sits serenely in his small radio shop near the public square and visits with the friends he has known and loved through the years. Some say he still retains part of his once vast fortune, while others say he has nothing. Radio is a hobby with him now, and he seems content.

WRITER CHARGES DOUBLE DEALING BY THE BRITISH

Tells of Secret Treaties to Hamper U. S.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—A direct charge that Great Britain took advantage of American participation in the world war to attempt the negotiation of a secret treaty with Brazil designed to promote British trade and to hamper future development of United States commercial relations with South America is made in a book entitled "England, Her Treatment of America," just off the press.

G. H. PAYNE.
[Underwood & Underwood.]

The theme of this new publication, which may stir reverberations in congress as well as abroad, is "England's Contempt for the United States." The Brazilian case as well as numerous other British-American diplomatic brushes are introduced by George Henry Payne of New York, the author, in support of his contention that the British have not only always held this country in contempt but have constantly sought to get the better of the United States by trickery if necessary. He terms his book, which has a foreword by Senator George H. Moses [Rep., N. H.], a chronological survey of England's attitude toward America since the revolution.

Moses Alludes to Naval Pact.

"This book seems to me to be most timely in its appearance," says Senator Moses. "It comes at a sufficient interval after the London pact to enable us to realize the implications and the obligations of that instrument as they project themselves against the background of a panorama of similar and other incidents in which we have been jolly well had, if I may borrow the vernacular of overseas. It comes also at a time when all the devices of propaganda to which one portion of the book is devoted are being brought into renewed and intensified play, in the hope of racing the United States into entanglement with one section of the gigantic web the league of nations has spread over Europe, and into which we are forbidden to enter in the sacred name of a wanton peace as written into the treaty of Versailles."

Mr. Payne presents documents in support of his contention that Great Britain constantly has attempted to restrict the size of the American navy and its merchant marine. He quotes Admiral William Benson, retired, naval member of the war mission, as stating that British admirals told Josephus Daniels, then secretary of the navy, at a meeting in Paris in 1919, that Great Britain always had been supreme on the sea and that she intends to continue to be so. In this connection Admiral Benson is quoted as stating during that interview that such a course as certain British admirals were following would lead to war if persisted in.

Tells of Brazil Incident.

"Probably the most interesting and amazing example of England's single-mindedness when she is engaged in the business of pursuing foreign advantages was the De Bunson mission to South America in 1918," Mr. Payne stated in recounting the Brazil incident. "It came at a time when America was bending every nerve to play her part in the war alongside of Great Britain. Into the office of a cabinet member in Washington one day in 1918 walked a gentleman who is still alive, and reported to the secretary the outline of the proposed treaty which was about to be made between Great Britain and Brazil.

"To the amazement of the secretary, he discovered that while America was doing everything in her power to assist the allies abroad, Great Britain was negotiating a treaty by which every exclusive trade advantage that possibly could be obtained was given by Brazil to Great Britain, and, looking further ahead, England was even luring the South American republic into giving her a practical monopoly of the building of shipyards and ships. The American cabinet officer was so amazed after reading the document that in a short time the wires were hot between Washington and England."

Mr. Payne quotes at length from Admiral Benson to support his contention that Great Britain placed every possible obstacle in the way of the development of an American navy and a merchant marine.

RADICALS' WAR ON 'PRIVILEGE' HAS LIMITATIONS

Taunted with Their Own Demands on Tariff.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—While the radicals describe their mission as dedicated to warfare upon special privilege, their zeal in that undertaking, according to their critics, seems to be affected materially by whose special privilege happens to be involved.

The left wing Republicans and Democrats assail the tariff protection enjoyed by manufacturers as an iniquitous species of special privilege that enables them to fix the prices of their products, with consumers paying the piper in the form of increased living costs.

Thereupon the conservatives fling back the taunt that the agrarian radicals are willing, nay eager, to obtain precisely this kind of special privilege for the farmers in such cases as it is possible to make the tariff on farm products effective. And the radicals retort that the farmers never have asked or received a tariff representing more than the difference in cost of production at home and abroad, while the manufacturing industry has demanded and obtained a tariff bonus above the difference in production costs.

Intolerant of Other Fellow.

To prove that the radicals are intolerant only of the other fellow's special privilege the conservatives point out that one of the principal arguments for the McNary-Haugen bill and similar legislation to boost the prices of farm products was that the farmer should be accorded the same special privilege as the tariff affords the manufacturer.

The radicals claim chief credit for the enactment of anti-trust legislation and their critics point out that the radicals also have been chiefly responsible for legislation exempting the farm organizations and labor unions from the jurisdiction of the anti-trust laws, thus procuring special privilege for two classes of the population.

Conservative criticism also pictures the current proposal of the radicals to outlaw the use of the injunction in labor disputes as an effort to procure special privilege for union labor and the farm product export debenture bill as the latest contrivance to confer special privilege upon agriculture.

Senator Borah's Views.

As to the export debenture, Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho], one of the chief spokesmen of the radical group, retorts that "there is no possible way by which to give the farmer his equality under the protective system except by the bounty or the debenture which was originally conceived by Hamilton, Clay and Webster to be a part of the protective system to take care of agriculture."

When the tariff bill was before the senate Senator Borah pictured the agrarian senators of the west as making a last stand against the tariff privilege of the industrial east in "the only body left in the government where we have anything like an equality."

None of the radicals has enunciated more clearly their political philosophy than has Senator Borah, as, for example, when he said that "the tendency of taxation in this country, as it was in France, is to relieve the vast wealth of the country from its proportion of the burden and place it upon those less fitted and less capable of bearing it."

"Protecting the West."

Their party insurgency the radicals attribute to the obligation resting upon them to protect the west from exploitation by the privilege seeking east, which controls the Republican party.

"In the main where I have disagreed," said Senator George W. Norris [Rep., Neb.], who voted for La Follette in 1924 and supported Al Smith in 1928, "it has been a contest between the west and the east. I have tried to protect the interests of the great middle west. I have been compelled to fight the machines, sometimes in my own party, that received practically all their sinews of war from political machines in the east. I have had to fight those in the east who are opposed to farm relief for the west and in these contests I have often opposed the leaders of my own party, including the President of the United States."

He told his constituents in his canvass for reelection that he purposed to continue his insurgency whenever necessary.

"I do not want to serve my great state in the greatest legislative body in the world," he said, "if attached to my position is a command that I must suppress my conscience; that I must violate what I believe to be my trust before my country and before my God, and obey a master's voice behind the scenes who perhaps has contributed millions to the campaign fund of my own party. If you want such a senator do not vote for me."

In the fight against confirmation of the nomination of Charles E. Hughes to be chief justice of the Supreme court the radical philosophy was illuminated by Senator Norris when he said that "the man who has never felt the pinch of hunger and who has never known what it was to be cold, who has never associated with those who have earned their bread by the sweat of their faces, but who has lived in luxury, who has never wanted for anything that money could buy, is not fit to sit in judgment in a contest between organized wealth and those who toil."

Differ on Supreme Court Ideals.

In opposing Mr. Hughes, Senator Robert M. La Follette [Rep., Wis.] said that the Supreme court "has declared laws unconstitutional because the court or a majority of it did not agree with the legislative purpose and the objectives sought by congress. The court, through this usurpation of power, has now placed itself in the position where it defeats the popular will as expressed in legislation enacted by congress."

Some of the radicals would deprive the Supreme court of the power to declare a law unconstitutional and nearly all of them would provide that decisions must have the support of at least seven of the nine justices.

Senator La Follette put the radical view of the state of the union in a nutshell when he said:

"Wealth, arrogant in its power, is running riot; the commissions created to regulate monopoly and curb its abuses are being packed with individuals who are opposed to the regulation of monopoly and the curbing of its abuses. Gigantic mergers are on foot. They are being formed without check or hindrance by the department of justice, federal trade commission, or congress."

A Nonpartisan Viewpoint.

One of the most extreme of the radical group is Senator Lynn J. Frazier [Rep., N. D.], a political product of the Nonpartisan league, which was organized by eastern Socialists.

"It is said we are radicals," said Senator Frazier. "Perhaps we are. But after the fight we have gone through out there in those western agricultural states it is a wonder that we are not more radical than we are.

"Eighty per cent of the people of North Dakota make their living on the farms. It is a mighty poor living, but they subsist at least out on the farms. A delegation of farmers and representatives of farmers' organizations went to Bismarck during the session of the legislature when the elevator bill was up for consideration. They were actually told by members of the legislature, regular Republicans, too, to 'go home and slop your hogs and we will attend to the legislation.' It was immediately after the close of that session that the farmers of North Dakota started to organize and to take control of the political situation in the state."

Many theories have been advanced to account for the fact that with the exception of Wisconsin the states that send radicals to the senate send conservatives to the house. One explanation advanced is that the radical has publicity and a senator can command many times more publicity than a congressman. Being able to get publicity the congressman finds it does not pay to be a radical.

Why Nebraska continues to send Norris to the senate is accounted for by the editor of the Fremont [Neb.] Tribune, a Republican newspaper on the ground that Nebraska is suffering a grouch on the east and "George Norris is the burr Nebraska delights in putting under the eastern saddle."

[This is the final article in the series on the senate radicals.]

FOES OF DRY LAW PLAN SPRINGFIELD TRIP FOR REPEAL VOTE

Foes of prohibition will go to Springfield tomorrow when the O'Grady bill to repeal the Illinois state search and seizure laws is presented in the house of representatives for a vote to adopt after its third and final reading.

Representative Thomas O'Grady, author of the bill, said yesterday he felt certain that at least 100 votes will be cast in favor of the bill, although only 77 is needed for passage. The fight, he said, would take place in the senate, but the wet leaders are counting on 27 senators to support the measure, and a majority is 26.

Anton J. Cermak, Democratic candidate for mayor, Ralph Shaw, Col. Ira L. Reeves and other leaders in the anti-prohibition movement plan to go to Springfield tomorrow to support the bill.

POLICEMAN SHOT IN AUTOMOBILE IS NEAR DEATH

Policeman George Hespen of the Maxwell street station, who was found shot in the head early yesterday near 16th street and Ashland avenue, was reported in critical condition last night at the county hospital. Circumstances indicated he had attempted to take his own life, the police said.

Hespen's automobile was parked about a block from where he was found. His pistol, with one shot fired, was in the front seat. His uniform cap was on the floor in the rear seat. What appeared to be powder burns surrounded the wound in the head.

The police said they believed that Hespen had shot himself and then staggered from the automobile until he collapsed. Four years ago Hespen shot and killed a robber who was attempting to break into a cigar store. The policeman is married. His home is at 2608 22d place.

HELD AS SLAYER OF NIEC

Arthur Cramer, 66 years old, 144 Adams street, was held yesterday as the slayer of his niece, Mrs. Belle Gilbert, 35 yrs old, who was stabbed to death on Saturd afternoon during a liquor party in their home.

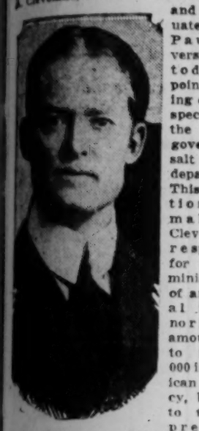
ILLINOISAN GETS JOB OF RUNNING CHINA'S SALT TAX

First American to Head a Revenue Division.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 8.—Dr. Frederick A. Cleveland, a native of Sterling, Ill., and a graduate of De Pauw university, was today appointed acting chief inspector of the Chinese government salt revenue department. This position will make Dr. Cleveland responsible for the administration of an annual revenue normally amounting to $25,000,000 in American currency, but due to the depreciation of silver it will now amount to only $12,000,000.



DR. F. A. CLEVELAND.

Dr. Cleveland's appointment was announced by T. V. Soong, Chinese minister of finance, who stated that the previous incumbent, an Englishman named F. Hussey-Freke, had been transferred to the advisorship in the ministry of finance.

It is the first time an American has ever been appointed head of an important revenue branch of the Chinese government. This position has always been held previously by British subjects.

Monopolizes Salt Sale.

The Chinese government salt administration monopolizes the production and sale of all salt consumed by the Chinese people, from which is derived the revenue which is used as security for large foreign and domestic loans, including the Anglo-French and some railway loans. The last mentioned is partly held in the United States.

Dr. Cleveland's duty will be to administer the collection of the salt revenue and to disburse the interest and principal payments on the loan obligations on behalf of the ministry of finance.

Has Worked in Chicago.

Dr. Cleveland came to China last year as a member of the Kemmerer commission of financial experts and he assisted the Chinese finance ministry in modernizing its accounting system. He has had a long career in public administration in government finance. He was chairman of the late President Taft's commission of economy and efficiency.

He was appointed auditor by President Wilson and investigated New York's customs administration. He has also occupied finance positions in Chicago and other cities. Dr. Cleveland's present home address is Norwood, Mass. His wife was formerly Jessica England Lindsay of Philadelphia.

Chicagoan Saves Red Chief from Swedish Schoolboys

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 8.—Three Fascist schoolboys, armed with revolvers, attacked the editorial offices of the New Day, a communist newspaper and headquarters of Swedish Reds. They intended kidnaping Hugo Sillen, communist leader, and painting him red. A. Lindbeck, who said he had just arrived from Chicago, was in the office and broke one of the boy's arms, when the latter aimed his pistol at him. Police arrested the other two boys.

SELLS MORTGAGED GEMS; SEIZED.

Charged with disposing of $5,000 worth of mortgaged jewelry belonging to a Dallas, Tex., concern, Harry S. Lyons, 52 years old, 6151 Winthrop avenue, was arrested yesterday by Sergts. William Gorman and Edward McGuire of the detective bureau.

INDIANS ANGRY AS BRITISH 'SNUB' PLEA OF GANDHI

Hope for Peace Fades; New Revolt Seen.

ALLAHABAD, India, Feb. 8.—(AP)—A deep gloom encircled the headquarterters of the National congress here today as a result of the reply of Viceroy Lord Irwin to the recent letter of Mahatma Gandhi asking an investigation into what the National leader termed gross cruelty and repression by police in subduing those engaged in the present liberation movement.

Whatever faint hope there might have been for acceptance of MacDonald's proposal for qualified Indian home rule is regarded now as gone forever.

Members of the working committee of congress, including Gandhi, profess to see the viceroy's reply no evidence the government really desires to make peace with the congress except on its own arbitrary terms. The message of the viceroy is termed "curt and coldly official."

Expect to Return to Jail.

The hopelessness of the situation may be gauged from the fact that many members of the working committee today frankly said they expect to be back in jail within a fortnight.

Gandhi himself is described as painfully disappointed and disillusioned by the viceroy's letter. The text of the correspondence betwen the Nationalist leader and the viceroy will be released in a few days. But because of the viceroy's blunt communication all hopes for peace have been abandoned by congress leaders.

Sir Tej Sapru, who attended the recent round table conference in London, had a four hour talk with Gandhi and other members of the working committee today. So far as is known Sapru failed to convince them they ought to accept England's latest's offer.

Intensified "Revolt" Seen.

Thus the congress situation remains exactly as it was before Gandhi and the other leaders were released from jail.

Present indications point to an early resumption of the congress' activities throughout India in an intensified form with its attendant lathi [bamboo stick] charges, arrests, imprisonment, trade slump and general uncertainty.

"A sudden drastic change of heart on the part of the Delhi government will 'save the situation,'" a prominent congress leader said today. "We have ceased to expect either changes or miracles from the British authorities, because they are wholly devoid of imagination and incapable of judging the heart, mind, and temper of the Indian masses, who are behind the independence movement."

MISSING

Florence Parker, 22 year old stepdaughter of New York bank official, who was last seen Jan. 26.
[Acme-P. & A. Photo.]

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Failure of Miss Florence Parker, 22, art student, to appear after publication of stories regarding her disappearance led her stepfather, James MacDonough, vice president of the Manufacturers Trust company, to hire private detectives to supplement the search being carried on by the city police. The family now fears the girl is being held somewhere against her will or that she is ill and in need of assistance.

Publication of Miss Parker's photograph here during the last few days resulted in several telephone "tips," but all such information proved groundless. In one case, Miss Parker was reported to be acting as an entertainer in a Greenwich Village night club, but police investigation proved this lead was merely a case of mistaken identity. A thorough search of other night clubs was made without success.

JUDGE FISHER CRITICIZED BY BAR ASSOCIATION

Criticism of Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher by the board of managers of the bar association was disclosed yesterday in the association's publication, the Record. The lawyers declared the judge made improper comment in sentencing Robert J. Tufts for embezzling money from a printers' organization. According to the report, Judge Fisher said:

"If I could see my way clear to inflict upon the business men back of this open shop movement the same penalty that I am about to impose on this defendant I would do so. They are simply a lot of conspirators banded together to work against the peace of the community. They, with their holier than thou attitude, hiding behind the term 'business man,' are like the men who compose the Landis award committee."

Dies of Wounds Received in Mysterious Shooting

Theodore Prindiville, 30 years old, 8026 South Michigan avenue, who was wounded three times in a mysterious shooting affray last Friday, died in St. Bernard's hospital yesterday. The police are holding Thomas White, 34 years old, 6722 South Bishop street, who took Prindiville to the hospital. White has refused to tell where he found the wounded man or what he knows, if anything, about the shooting.

EX-COLLEGE PRESIDENT DIES.

Pasadena, Cal., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Dr. John Willis Baer, banker and former president of Occidental college here, succumbed to a sudden heart attack today as he sat in his home conversing with his physician.

WOMAN ENDS LIFE BY GAS; VETERAN SHOOTS HIMSELF

Mrs. Margaret Mitchell, 30 years old, 3810 Newcastle avenue, committed suicide early this morning by turning on gas jets in the kitchen of her home. She was found by her stepson, Raymond, when he returned to the house shortly after midnight. Mrs. Mitchell had been in ill health, relatives said.

Stephen Stein, 44 years old, janitor of a flat building in Oak Park, last night attempted to end his life by shooting himself through the heart in the basement of his home at 5723 School street, Chicago. The bullet, deflected by a rib, missed the heart, but his condition is critical, it was said at the Belmont hospital. His wife, Stella, said he had been gassed and wounded in the world war and was subject to despondency over ill health.

SAVAGE INDIANS KILL AND LOOT IN JUNGLE FIGHT

Raid Village in Brazil; Slay Nut Collector.

BY ANTHONY PATRIC.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BELEM, Para, Brazil, Feb. 8.—Indians of the tribe of Gavioes, inhabiting a large district on the border of Para and Goyaz along the Tocantins and Araguaya rivers, yesterday attacked the village of Jacaunda Grande on the Toncantins, where Brazilian nut collectors are engaged in harvesting the crop.

One Brazilian was killed by the Gavioes, several houses were destroyed, and large quantities of foodstuffs and tools stolen. The Indians were able to retreat without casualities.

Third Attack of Season.

The whole nut growing district of the Tocantins river is greatly alarmed, as this was the third attack by the Indians since the beginning of the present nut season. The Gavioes only come to the Tocantins district during this harvest and attack the collectors in order to get sufficient food and supplies to last over winter. They are considered the most savage Indians in northern Brazil and refuse to come into contact with white men or the advanced posts maintained by federal officials for the protection of Indians.

The districts about the Tocantins and Araguaya rivers are largely inhabited by Indians, some of whom are already semi-civilized and live in great fear of the Gavioes. After the attack last December, when the Gavioes killed several Cabocios—civilized Indians—including two women and three children at the village of Cardoso, the Para state police sent special forces to clear the nut district of the Gavioes and stop Indian raids.

Battle with Arrows.

After twenty-six days of marching through thick jungles the police discovered a large center of Gavioes, and a battle ensued. The Gavioes are reputed to be the best arrow shooters in Brazil, scorning modern firearms. After a fierce battle the police force of only sixty compelled the Indians, 200 strong, to retreat, leaving one killed and two wounded. There were no police casualities. Because of the jungle land and lack of ammunition, the police were unable to continue operations against the Gavioes, but they did succeed in capturing a large supply of arrows found in the Indian huts.

Maj. Luis Guedes, sheriff of Maraba, reported late in January that the Tocantins district had been cleared of the savage Indians. A large number of the civilized Indians have joined the police at Maraba to fight the savages.

Dr. Eduardo Chermont, chief of police of Belem, has ordered more police to the Tocantins river, and meanwhile the nut collectors are abandoning the fields. Failure of the present crop is seen unless the government crushes the Indian raiders.

LYLE AGAINST CRIME.

Assistant State's Attorneys Harry Ditchburne and James Brown, fighting aids of Mr. Swanson in the city's war against organized crime, presented in Saturday's TRIBUNE a review of results obtained by the various law enforcing officials since Judge Lyle began his effort to bring the gangsters within the operation of the existing vagrancy law and to defeat the abuse of bail by criminals.

The review is timely as an encouragement of all agencies now engaged in the war on crime. It is needed also to offset the campaign of belittlement now being carried on against Judge Lyle by his political opponents.

The facts set forth need not be repeated here. It is enough to quote the opinions of the prosecutors upon its results. Of these Attorney Ditchburne says:

"Judge Lyle's drive has accomplished two things which are of inestimable value to the prosecuting authorities and the police. The first is that he stripped the leading criminals of the community of their false glamour and showed them up for what they are—just ordinary thieves, robbers, and graduated keepers of houses of prostitution. The second is that he has created a public sentiment which has taken away from the criminals the deference shown to them in the past when they were arrested and taken into the courts.

"As a molder of public sentiment Judge Lyle is outstanding. Lincoln said: 'Public sentiment is everything. With public sentiment nothing can fail. Without it nothing can succeed. Consequently he who molds public sentiment goes deeper than he who enacts statutes or pronounces decisions. He makes statutes or decisions possible or impossible of enactment.'"

This recognition of Judge Lyle's outstanding part in invigorating the administration of criminal justice in no way detracts from the honor due to other militant officials, to State's Attorney Swanson, to Chief Justice McGoorty, to Federal District Attorney Johnson, or Acting Police Commissioner Alcock. It detracts nothing from the credit of the crime commission and other agencies or individuals fighting faithfully for the city's honor and security. It does emphasize what is due Judge Lyle as a leader in the battle, unsurpassed for courage and vigorous initiative.

Citizens are being told that the drive is coming to little or nothing. Prosecutor Ditchburne, speaking from personal knowledge, says:

"The issuance of the vagrancy warrants started the ball rolling and as a result we have had a different kind of cooperation in the courts, the police department, and from law enforcing officials throughout the state. This is evidenced by the fact that Col. A. V. Smith, the state's attorney at Waukegan, tried to convict Moran when he was caught in Lake county.

"One of the unusual spectacles of the drive has been the conduct of these so-called big shots of gangland when taken into Judge Lyle's court. They actually cringed and begged for mercy. The minute they were taken before him they started to whimper for jury trials or changes of venue, anything to get out of his court. He certainly went a long way with his limited jurisdiction.

"This campaign, in addition to exposing the true character of the criminal leaders, has struck panic into their ranks and has demonstrated to them forcibly that after all they are social outcasts entitled only to the treatment accorded their type.

"It had become a custom with many public officials to curry favor with the hoodlum chiefs—some even to truckle to them—and the consequence was that many favors were given them which the smaller fry in crime did not enjoy. The leaders are now in the same class with any ordinary criminal due to the change in attitude since the vagrancy drive started.

"The criminals who once swaggered into the courts and were the recipients of deference by court attachés and even some judges have been made to feel that they are very small, despicable, and without influence. They have been put through the police bureau of identification—their photographs and their Bertillon measurements taken. If nothing else had been accomplished by this drive, this change in the attitude of officials toward the gangsters is worth the energy spent by those engaged in the campaign.

"All departments and agencies of our government are now awake to the serious problem of organized crime and the public mind has certainly been aroused as never before."

A criticism urged against Judge Lyle is based on his high bail policy. This was, in fact, an effort to defeat the abuse of bail and the practice of fixing bail without regard to the record and notorious character of defendants. There was no more flagrant evil in our ineffective defense from crime than the inadequacy of low bail which permitted criminals to escape from the slow and cumbersome process of our criminal administration. Judge Lyle was the first to confront this evil and to attempt energetically to cope with it. Many of his bail bonds were reduced, but Prosecutor Ditchburne points out that a radical change in the practice has been accomplished. The Supreme court, while reducing the bail in one important vagrancy case, itself set the amount at $5,000, whereas under previous procedure in vagrancy cases the usual bond was $400. In so doing the court held that the discretion of the judge in fixing bail should be influenced by the defendant's record. This was essentially the principle for which Judge Lyle was contending. Prosecutor Ditchburne also pointed out that other judges have raised bail bonds in cases of public enemies and that the grand jury has set the bail of Claude Maddox at $50,000. Mr. Ditchburne says that this increase of bail requirements has depleted the resources of gangsters and seriously restricted their ability to cheat justice.

These are the hard facts which speak for Judge Lyle, and we think they speak eloquently to the good citizenship of this community. He is being subjected now to a campaign of personal slander, a campaign so vile that it has had to be carried on behind closed doors, and now seems to have been given up for fear of its reaction on decent minded people. This is in the congenial hands of the political gang which has wasted in enormous graft the city's funds; has left the city streets go to ruin; has given aid and comfort to the public enemies, and made the name of Chicago unjustly notorious throughout the civilized world. On the other flank he is being attacked by quibbles in the name of law and by persistent effort to conceal the practical results of his courageous struggle to make law and the safety of citizens respected by their insolent enemies.

What the citizenship of Chicago will see behind this attempt of the underworld and its allies in unscrupulous politics, its allies direct and indirect, confessed or unconfessed, is the condition of this community when the drive on its enemies, in which Lyle is an outstanding leader, began. Then the underworld was insolent and generally triumphant. It is no longer so. It showed no fear of the police or of the courts, for neither were inspiring fear. Today it is fighting on the retreat, fighting with all resources left to it, especially against the foe it fears most, and that is Judge Lyle. To its aid comes the opposition, claiming respectability, accusing him of violating the due procedure of courts and of wanting in the "judicial temperament." Citizens will want to know why the procedure of the courts was offering them no adequate protection, and they will demand of the executive authority to which Judge Lyle aspires something more effectual for their defense and the restoration of their government than the judicial temperament.

The good citizenship of Chicago are in arms against the powers in crime and politics which have preyed so long upon them. It is war, and the militant leadership which Judge Lyle has fearlessly represented is essential to victory.

ANOTHER DIVERSION CASE.

The United States Supreme court has received a report on the Delaware river diversion case from Charles N. Burch. Mr. Burch served as special master in this litigation as Mr. Hughes, now chief justice, served in the lake level controversy affecting Chicago.

There is a considerable similarity between the cases. Chicago diverts water from the great lakes into the Mississippi for purposes of sanitation and navigation. New York City wishes to divert water from tributaries of the Delaware for domestic purposes. One of the points raised against Chicago by the lake states, including New York, was the alleged illegality of diverting water from one great watershed to another. Much the same point was made against New York. In the Chicago case the court seems to have sidestepped a direct statement on the issue, but as the drainage canal does take water from one watershed and delivers it in another, and as the court did not close the canal, it may be said that the principle put forward by the complaining lake states was not accepted. Mr. Burch has similarly recommended that New York be permitted to divert Delaware river water under conditions safeguarding navigation.

Mr. Burch has wisely avoided adopting the absurd theory of the sanctity of watersheds. The history of mankind's struggle for material comfort and security is largely the story of man's changing the face of nature to suit his own ends. There was a time when men lived in caves because they did not know how to build houses, climbed over mountains because they did not know how to tunnel them, and were halted by rivers because they did not know how to build bridges. Meanwhile we have learned to alter the surface of the earth and adapt it to our requirements. The fact that man can make important changes in the surface of the earth distinguishes him from other creatures as definitely as does the fact that he speaks in words and wears clothes. It is probably well within the truth to say that man's desire to adapt the face of nature to his ends is itself a law of human nature, a law which courts cannot successfully defy.

The courts can only see that the changes to be wrought for the benefit of one set of men do not jeopardize the rights of another set. Mr. Burch is properly interested in safeguarding navigation on the Delaware. Similarly, the courts might have made the diversion of water at Chicago conditional merely on the building of control works in the straits of the great lakes to maintain whatever depth may be regarded as most desirable for shipping. That would have removed every genuine ground for opposing Chicago's diversion except the jealousy of other cities.

The Other Side

LEGGE—SOME COROLLARIES.

[Brooklyn Eagle.]

Admirers of frankness will applaud Alexander Legge, chairman of the farm board, when he declares that the American wheat raiser has just as much chance as "a snowball in that other place" of producing wheat for the world market and making money at it. But the corollaries of this patent truth, its inevitable corollaries, have a keen interest for political economists.

Some 120,000,000 Americans have to eat bread. If American wheat farmers are incapable of competing in the world market; if there must be a high price here and a much lower price abroad, then it must follow as the night the day that every dollar of the margin between the two prices means a direct subsidization of wheat farmers at the expense of all other Americans, or, to put it in another way, a deliberate taking of money from a vast majority of American pockets to put into minority pockets. And this is equally true whether the legislative robbery takes the form of a tariff or investment of hundreds of millions of taxpayers' cash in wheat speculation. The method doesn't matter.

Not all of our citizens, not even a majority, are farmers. Of the farmers a majority do not raise wheat at all. What free acceptance of the world market rates would mean to the cheapening of living costs in this country is worth very much more discussion than it has received from our politicians.

IMPORTED DISEASES.

THERE are many who hold that malaria, yellow fever, and typhoid fever were brought to America from Africa by slaves. This theory, if it can be so dignified, is based on the history of disease among Indians prior to the coming of the white man; the history of disease among whites and Indians before and after the importation of slaves; the prevalence, or lack of prevalence, of certain diseases among Negroes in Africa and the United States; and the immunity and susceptibility of Negroes to certain diseases in comparison with whites.

The annual reports of the health departments of Tanganyika and other parts of Africa, and the studies of disease prevalent on the gold coast of Africa supply some support of this theory, as was set forth in a recent article. The Tanganyika report supplies some information on other phases of it.

If the white people of America react to yellow fever, typhoid, and malaria in a way that indicates that these are comparatively new racial enemies the Negroes in Tanganyika react to tuberculosis and pneumonia in a way that suggests that these diseases are new to them.

This is particularly true with consumption. This disease, with them, is almost like a somewhat drawn out pneumonia instead of a disease of years' duration, as with us. The same is true, though in lesser measure, of consumption among American Negroes. It seems that the white man is slowly acquiring immunity to consumption, the American Negro is following in his footsteps, but a few decades behind, and the African Negro is meeting a new enemy. The pneumonia picture is of the same general type, but it is not so true to form.

The Negro in America is comparatively immune to hookworm and other forms of intestinal parasites. This is not a characteristic of Negroes in Africa. These people, both in the bush and in the towns, are infected with more parasites than we of this country, white or black, know anything of. They have all of ours and others besides.

There has been controversy as to the country of origin of syphilis. The Negro in America reacts to syphilis after a fashion differing from that of the white man. The African Negro reacts much as does the black American. There is a closely related disease called yaws, that both whites and blacks in North America escape. It is one of the most prevalent disorders among Indians, Negroes, and racial mixed bloods in those sections of Central and South America from which the Spaniards have been charged with carrying syphilis to Europe in the early part of the sixteenth century.

The outstanding menace just now to the bush Negroes of Tanganyika is African sleeping sickness. It seems to be coming to certain tribes for the first time within tribal tradition.

CHASING OUT BEDBUGS.

Mrs. G. W. S. writes: Here is a safe, sure, and easy way to get rid of bedbugs. I do not think any one person has killed as many of these pests as I have and this is the method used.

Go to any drug store and buy about 20 cents worth of alum. Boil it in six quarts of water for about an hour. With a machine oil can, a sprayer, or an old paint brush—anything that will get the water into all cracks and back of baseboards and window casings—apply liberally and repeat in a few days.

If you have been thorough there will be no more bugs, as the alum is a strong astringent, and the eggs will not hatch.

SLEEPING IN A LOW BED.

D. L. writes: Is it harmful to sleep only 12 inches above the floor? We have a folding day bed and when it is opened out it is very close to the floor. We always feel dizzy when we get up from it.

REPLY.

If everything else is all right the air 12 inches above the floor will be wholesome.

LIVING ROOM HUMIDITY.

C. R. writes: What is the proper relative humidity and temperature for living rooms?

REPLY.

A relative humidity of around 50 and a temperature of around 68, with proper circulation of air, will generally be found to be satisfactory.

LEASE WOULD BE TERMINATED.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A leased his lot with a house to B for two years. Before the lease expired the house burned without the fault of either of them. Nothing was mentioned in the lease as to this condition. Can A enforce the lease? F. C. C.

Ordinarily, the lease would be terminated, but we cannot advise to advantage without having the wording before us.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

JUDGMENTS.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. If a judgment is obtained against a party and they refuse to pay the judgment and thereupon are sent to jail, are they released after serving part time of sentence? 2. Are they still liable for full amount of judgment or part of the full amount? I understand they can be held in jail for six months. A. K.

1. Imprisonment is not authorized under Illinois law for an ordinary judgment.
2. The judgment would still be enforceable against assets, if that is what you mean to ask. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DUMPING INVITED.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—[Friend of the People.]—The vacant property on the west side of California avenue between Irving Park boulevard and Byron street is being filled with ashes and old tin cans. These ashes are a foot higher than the alley and force the water to stand in the alley and back up into our yards. The tin cans are old used ones and will cause sickness, bring flies and other insects. M. N.

Report is made that lot referred to was low and at the request of the owner was filled with ashes and brought to grade. Alley is unimproved and is also below grade in some places.

Writer is evidently not aware of the fact that the greater part of Chicago was filled in this manner and that ashes mixed with tin cans, when packed, make a very satisfactory filling. P. J. DONOVAN,
Deputy Superintendent of Streets.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

mister and missus spiggs were sitting in their cozy little parlor on spruce avenue when mister spiggs said dearie you know me for being a one hundred per cent american and an upholder of all our countrys laws. yes indeed marmaduke said missus spiggs for such was our heros name you are a man of sterling worth and a true citizen of our glorious country what is your idea. I see in the papers the other day said mister spiggs that the senators said it was perfectly within the law to buy dried grapes or grape concentrate as theyre called and put them away and in two months—oh said missus spiggs clapping her hands i know in two months you have grape jelly. you do not said mister spiggs you have wine. oh said missus spiggs you mean grape juice wine that is unfermented wine like they have at church. no said mister spiggs you have wine that kicks harder than any two army mules you ever saw. i never saw an army mule said missus spiggs.

well if you didnt said mister spiggs you would see them with blue tails and green heads and yellow bodies and theyd be swinging by their hind legs from the chandelier if you drank too much grape concentrate for do you know what after that stuff has been put away two months it develops twenty per cent of alcohol. oh mercy said missus spiggs how horrible for any one to make wine like that when we have a prohibition law in our land. but thats the point said mister spiggs it isnt unlawful ask anybody and he will tell you the same thing. but at our womans club said missus spiggs they said that anything that contained more than one half of one per cent of alcohol is unlawful and goodness i wouldnt want the law enforcement officers coming in here and shooting all around theyd be sure to break our new piano lamp.

they wouldnt come in after this wine said mister spiggs because you see we wouldnt make it. well when you buy it and bring it home said missus spiggs they would catch you and put you in jail. no said mister spiggs what i bring home is perfectly legal there is no trace of alcohol in it. we just put it in a keg or we buy it in a keg and pour in five gallons of hot water and put it away and forget it. then in 2 months the men come in and bottle it and there we have our wine champagne sauterne port claret or any kind you want. oh i see said missus spiggs the men who come with the bottles put the alcohol in the wine. they do not said mister spiggs well for heavens sake said missus spiggs how does it get in there. nature said mister spiggs solemnly. but isnt that against the law said missus spiggs.

you nor the whole government of the united states nor nobody said mister spiggs cant stop nature. what said missus spiggs not under the 18th amendment. i thought that was why the law was passed. no said mister spiggs it was passed so that people themselves could not manufacture strong drink it could not stop nature. then they ought to pass another law said missus spiggs. they couldnt stop nature no matter how many laws they passed said mister spiggs and the people who raise grapes out in california happened to find that out. so they said we will dry our grapes and put them in a barrel there is nothing wrong in that and then you pour in hot water and sit down and wait while nature takes its course. and you get champagne or whatever you want with a twenty per cent kick to it. but that is against the law said missus spiggs. what is against the law said mister spiggs to pour hot water over dried grapes replied missus spiggs. oh act your age said mister spiggs.

i cannot understand it all said missus spiggs but it looks like a cunning way of eluding the sacred constitution and the laws of our country.

if there was any wrong in it said mister spiggs i would be the last man in the country to encourage such a thing for i believe that prohibition is a splendid thing and that it has not had a fair trial we must wait longer to find whether it is the best solution of the iniquitous liquor traffic.

splendid splendid said missus spiggs that is the way every good citizen should feel but while we are waiting i think we ought to get two or three of those little kegs of dried grapes because if we had a little real wine now and then it would make waiting much easier you said it said mister spiggs.

THE TOY MENDER.

I've mended all the broken toys that you
Have brought to me throughout the wastrel years,
Giving them back into your careless hands
With heart's blood painted, shining with my tears;

It did not matter, for I knew your grasp
At newer playthings for your games with life
Would drop them, one by one, along the way
Forgotten in futility of strife.

Today, you bring the loveliest toy of all
With the old question, "Can you mend it, dear?"
My lying lips are swift to answer "No!"
For you have found a toy whose hold I fear.

WHILE THE WORLD is still rocking with the story Smedley Butler told about him, a man said to be an American citizen bobs up in Rome with a plot to kill Il Duce. After he thinks over these two things Mussolini is going to come to the conclusion that he'd rather Americans would make after dinner speeches about him than shoot at him. Shouldn't wonder if Mussolini sent a dozen white c rnations to Smedley when the court martial starts.

AND, ANYHOW, the murder plot against Il Duce seems to show that making Smedley appear for trial before seven terrible admirals, all in gold braid and medals and things, is taking an after dinner speech just a little too seriously. Some day somebody is going to bob up and say the Americans have no sense of humor.

PROHIBITION

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 9, 1915.

CHICAGO.—Society welcomed the springtime of femininity last night at the gala opening of the "Made in Chicago" fashion show in the First Regiment armory. The crowd filled the armory to capacity and many were turned away. Mrs. Lockwood Honore was chairman of the official society delegation. With her were Mrs. Morris Johnston, Mrs. John A. Carpenter, Mrs. George C. Clarke, Mrs. John Borden, Mrs. Potter Palmer Jr., and Mrs. Joseph Coleman. On the jury were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brewster, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Winterbotham, Mr. and Mrs. Roy McWilliams, Miss Mary Waller, Miss Katherine Dudley, Mrs. Edward A. Leicht, and Mrs. James A. Morrison.

CHICAGO.—"Germania," or "No Man's Land," the eighty acres between the northern city limits at Howard avenue and Calvary cemetery, was annexed to Chicago by the city council last night, boosting Chicago's population 900 nearer the 3,000,000 mark.

LONDON.—Infantry fighting of a desperate character for nearly two days is indicated in the official statement of the French ministry of war. The fighting for positions south of the canal and southwest of La Bassee continues. In the Argonne the Germans have wrested from the French a portion of their fortified positions.

PETROGRAD.—Reports from the Carpathians say the Russians have succeeded definitely in repulsing the Austrian advance in the neighborhood of Dukla and have taken Rakotz, on the frontier.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 9, 1901.

CHICAGO.—Charles Ulysses Gordon announced that he is not an aspirant for reappointment as postmaster and it is practically certain that Frederick E. Coyne, now collector of internal revenue for this district, will be named in his place. Information from Washington is that Senators Mason and Cullom will visit President McKinley today and recommend Mr. Coyne.

CHICAGO.—This city is in the grasp of the second heavy snowstorm within a week. Five inches of snow had fallen at 2 a. m., and unless the predictions of the weather bureau fail there will be four inches more on the ground by noon.

CHICAGO.—"Eddie" Hall's career as a confidence man and "shell worker" came to an end in Judge Holdom's court after 14 years of notorious immunity from punishment. A jury found him guilty of robbery. The conviction of Hall was the result of THE TRIBUNE'S determination to offer the police of Chicago an example of what can be accomplished by energetic methods of handling law breakers. It was through THE TRIBUNE that the witnesses whose evidence convicted Hall were brought here from Kenosha.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo.—Gen. Benjamin M. Prentiss, one of the noted characters of the civil war, died at his home in Bethany, Mo., after a long illness, at the age of 81.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 9, 1881.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Weakened by the weight of snow, the roof of the monster depot of the New York Central and Hudson River railroad caved in, crushing four persons to death and burying a train standing on the track in front of the station. None in the train was hurt.

LONDON.—A gale is raging over the whole kingdom. Great damage to property was done today. A large schooner ran ashore at Woolwich. Nine barges sank in the Thames. A telegram from Ireland states that so violent a gale has not been experienced since the great storm of 1839.

ROME. — Caesar Cantu, the celebrated Italian historian, is dead at the age of 76.

ST. PAUL, Minn.—Crow-King, Sitting Bull's lieutenant, with 315 of Sitting Bull's Indians, has surrendered at Fort Buford. He expresses a desire to go after Sitting Bull into Canada, that he may induce that dusky warrior to make his peace with the United States authorities. The latter are not in a great hurry about the matter, believing that Sitting Bull and his followers soon will be out of supplies and quite willing to submit.

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full name and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

PORTERAGE.

Jacksonville, Fla., Feb. 2.—The Nye investigating committee seems to have developed a new weapon in its war upon alleged corruption in the primary elections in Illinois, Pennsylvania, and other states, and to have used it, perhaps, more extensively than its efficiency would justify. They called it "porterage."

The report indicates that it was used four times alone for a total of $93.27, but it seems to have been employed most extensively in connection with taxicabs. Under the head "taxicabs and porterage" it was used something like 85 times, for a total of about $1,932.08. It appears once under the head of "taxicabs, substance, and porterage" for an amount of $163.95. It is used three times with "meals and porterage" for a total of $63.38. It appears twice under the head of "porterage, telegrams, and telephones" to an amount of $61.88. It is even used to some extent in connection with the item "hire of automobiles," covering a total distance of something like 6,582 miles.

One of the few items of the report over which the shadow of "porterage" is not cast is the one for transcribing over one million words of testimony at 25 cents per 100 words and over five million carbon copies of same at 5 cents per 100 words.

There were many special investigators at $500 per month; clerks at the same salary; assistant clerks and stenographers as well as special accountants at $40, $25, and $15 per day. Most of these also had liberal, not to say lavish, expense accounts, including taxicabs, hired automobiles, and porterage. If any of the committee's stenographers or assistant clerks found time to do any transcribing, or even if they did not, the report will be so voluminous as to make that of the Wickersham committee look like a piker, while the whole thing was even more futile than the much discussed report of that famous committee. W. G. UNDERWOOD.

IN BUENOS AIRES.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—The papers bring news from Buenos Aires that a famous bandit, Severius Di Giovanni, has been condemned to be shot. Some of the papers even call him the "Al Capone of Argentine republic." The fact is that Di Giovanni is not a bandit but an intellectual anarchist, editor of two publications, a magazine, and a newspaper. If this execution takes place it will not pass unnoticed. JOHN ROSS.

BEATING A HORSE.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—It seems that for some reason a dairy company's horse had run away. Perhaps it had been frightened away or chased, but it was trotting slowly and the driver caught up to it and jumped in the wagon. He jerked the reins sharply and then holding them back proceeded to beat the horse with a whip in a most shameful fashion, jerking the reins back and probably hurting the horse's mouth.

This incident was witnessed by a number of people and happened at Clark and Princeton at 1 o'clock Wednesday, Jan. 28, 1931. OBSERVER.

THE CROSSWORD PUZZLES.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—The article by J. B. complaining of the difficulty in solving the crossword puzzles calls for some rejoinder. The headaches are probably caused by an established grouch; otherwise it is hard to understand why he does not look for the solution printed in the same issue, or leave the puzzles alone. I consider them of very good quality, and they are one of the many reasons why I buy your SUNDAY TRIBUNE. GRANVA.

A SOLUTION FOR UNEMPLOYMENT.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—Why not let those who wish to, go back into the army for six months or a year? I know that I would be glad of the chance.
EATON LINDBERG.

PRETTY PENNIES.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—Now that the 2½ per cent is essential to most business transactions, why should it not be made of a more pleasing material? What with this relic of the bronze age has forced us well, it is corrosive, heavy, and disagreeable to handle. Our government metallurgists could easily produce an aluminum alloy that would be light, hard, and beautiful. Decidedly the penny needs prinking up.
GEORGE H. OSS.

MR. BARBOUR'S DEFENSE.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—I resent the statement of Col. Reeves that the assistance from our district, the Hon. James A. Barbour, "succumbed" to the Democratic forces. He has been a dry leader in the senate and in Evanston, where we both live, as far back as I can remember. If he should censure us dry reformers occasionally for our laziness, it is no more than we deserve. He always votes dry and is a total abstainer. He has probably been off the water wagon.
CATHARINE WAUGH MCCULLOCH.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During those years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headache, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edward's Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c, and 60c.

SPAIN FEVERISH AS KING OPENS POLITICAL GATE

Foes, Freed from Gag Law, Set for Battle.

(Copyright: 1931: by the New York Times.)

MADRID, Feb. 8.—Spain is ready to begin tomorrow her greatest political battle since the restoration of the monarchy 55 years ago. The long drawn out struggle between King Alfonso and the Republicans and other politicians which began with the Moroccan disasters in 1921, reached its legal crux with today's publication of a royal decree calling elections for the chamber of deputies on March 1 and for the senate on March 15.

While the monarchistic parties are striving to revive themselves after their practical destruction by Primo de Rivera, the press and Republican and monarchical speakers stand ready to open the gates of propaganada and arouse the country to the heights of political passion.

Plotters Reported Seized.

El Imparcial, a morning newspaper, stated that the police had discovered early this morning a cache of arms and arrested some conspirators. According to El Imparcial, these arrests will be followed by sensational disclosures.

While the monarchistic newspapers call the decree the "true harbinger of liberty and the end of the dictatorship," El Sol, the leading liberal newspaper, announced this morning that with the lifting of censorship there would begin a series of articles to the effect that the December rebellion came nearer to complete fighting and success than the general public is aware.

The decree itself contains nothing unforeseen or sensational. It is a mere abbreviated résumé of the government's project as expressed in a more complete document published on Premier Berenguer's succession to power a year ago.

Pledges Honest Elections.

The decree's keynote is that the government has done everything possible to guarantee honest elections, that these should have the full support of the nation.

Gen. Berenguer himself, it is conceded, is sincere, though it is pointed out that the entire center and left wing of the political forces have announced a boycott of the elections as a protest against the dictatorships of the past seven years and what they consider unfair conditions in the elections themselves.

The decree restores during the election period freedom of speech, freedom of writing, freedom of lawful assembly and of political and religious organization period.

Shoot Up Embassy Auto.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 8.—A car belonging to the Spanish embassy, which was stolen last night, was found this morning riddled with bullets and the interior stained with blood in the slum district of east Berlin. The theft and shooting is believed to have been a demonstration by Spanish anarchists, who were trying to frighten representatives of King Alfonso here.

FORMER CASHIER ADMITS TRYING TO HOLD UP BANK

Framingham, Mass., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Frank Wood, alias Frank Nichols, one of two men arrested after an attempt to rob the Holliston Savings bank Saturday, admitted tonight, police said, that he was Frank F. Wood, a former national bank examiner.

Wood, who for years was cashier of the Mattapan [Mass.] National bank, was arrested in Millis with Joseph Kosak, 19, of Boston, an hour after they had attempted to rob the Holliston bank.

Police said Wood admitted participation in the attempted robbery, which was frustrated by the bank treasurer and a woman employé who sounded a burglar alarm.

Wood told the police he became assistant cashier at the Mattapan National bank in 1919. He held this position for 18 months and then became an assistant national bank examiner. He resigned to return as cashier of the Mattapan bank, and it was then that he fell under suspicion, severed his connections there, drifted into other work, and eventually found himself among the unemployed, Chief Holbrook said.

Indiana Democratic Leader Thrown by Horse; May Die

Fort Wayne, Ind., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Edward G. Hoffman, Fort Wayne bank official and former secretary of the Democratic national committee, was injured, perhaps fatally, today when he was thrown from his horse. His skull was fractured when his head struck the ground. Physicians at a local hospital held little hope for his recovery.

NEW QUAKES ROCK HAWKE BAY AREA OF NEW ZEALAND

High Seas Force Refugees from Shore Camps.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Heavy earthquake shocks again rocked the Napier and Hastings section of the Hawke Bay district, which was the scene of last Tuesday's disastrous quake in which many persons were killed. Today's tremors started at 2 p. m.

The face of a bluff overlooking Napier was sheered by further landslides. Heavy breakers swept the beaches and forced the terrified inhabitants, encamped about the town, to flee from the shore line to higher ground.

Dislocation of communication has made it difficult to obtain full details of the disturbances.

Deaths Placed at 103.

NAPIER, New Zealand, Feb. 8.—(AP)—The number of deaths in the recent severe earthquakes in Napier was placed at 103 today after further reconstruction and search of the ruins had been completed.

Among the survivors is James Colling, 90 years old, who dug himself out of the ruins of the Old Men's home. He was taken to a hospital, where he is reported to be doing well.

Fete Woman 100 Yrs. Old; Excitement Kills Her

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WEIMAR, Thuringia, Feb. 8.—The celebration of her hundredth birthday proved too much for Frau Wilhelmine Gose of Dielsdorf, near Weimar. The whole village of Dielsdorf helped her celebrate all day. As a result of the excitement she had a nervous breakdown and died two weeks later.

MITCHELL TOOL OF POWER TRUST, SCHALL CHARGES

Resents Refusal to Appoint Judge.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Senator Thomas D. Schall, radical Republican of Minnesota, issued a warm answer today to President Hoover's request that he cease recommending Ernest Michel, Minneapolis attorney, for a federal judgship and submit a list of "fit" candidates.

ERNEST MICHEL. [Acme-P. & A. Photo.]

Senator Schall, who is blind, retorted by charging that Attorney General Mitchell, who has consistently opposed Michel's appointment, has "corporation-public utility connections" which warp his judgment.

Assails Mitchell's Connections.

"The attempt of Attorney General Mitchell to name only corporation trained and public utility-minded attorneys for positions on the federal bench warrants the publication of the epast corporation-public utility connections of Mr. Mitchell," said Senator Schall.

"I intend to call to the attention of the President some of the former corporation connections of his attorney general with the hope that the President will realize that the attorney general's actions are warped by this corporation-public utility feeling and that the President has been misinformed concerning Mr. Michel.

"Shortly I hope to submit to the senate a list of former utility and corporation connections of Attorney General Mitchell so that other members of the senate may be guided by the information I am about to disclose."

Says State Supports Michel.

"I should think the entire Minnesota delegation, backed by over 600 lawyers of my state, over a score of judges headed by the chief justice of our Supreme court, would be sufficient to cause the President to hesitate in accepting the noxious campaign of the attorney general to destroy an upstanding, square, clean, God fearing Minnesota lawyer, though he may be only an attorney for the common people."

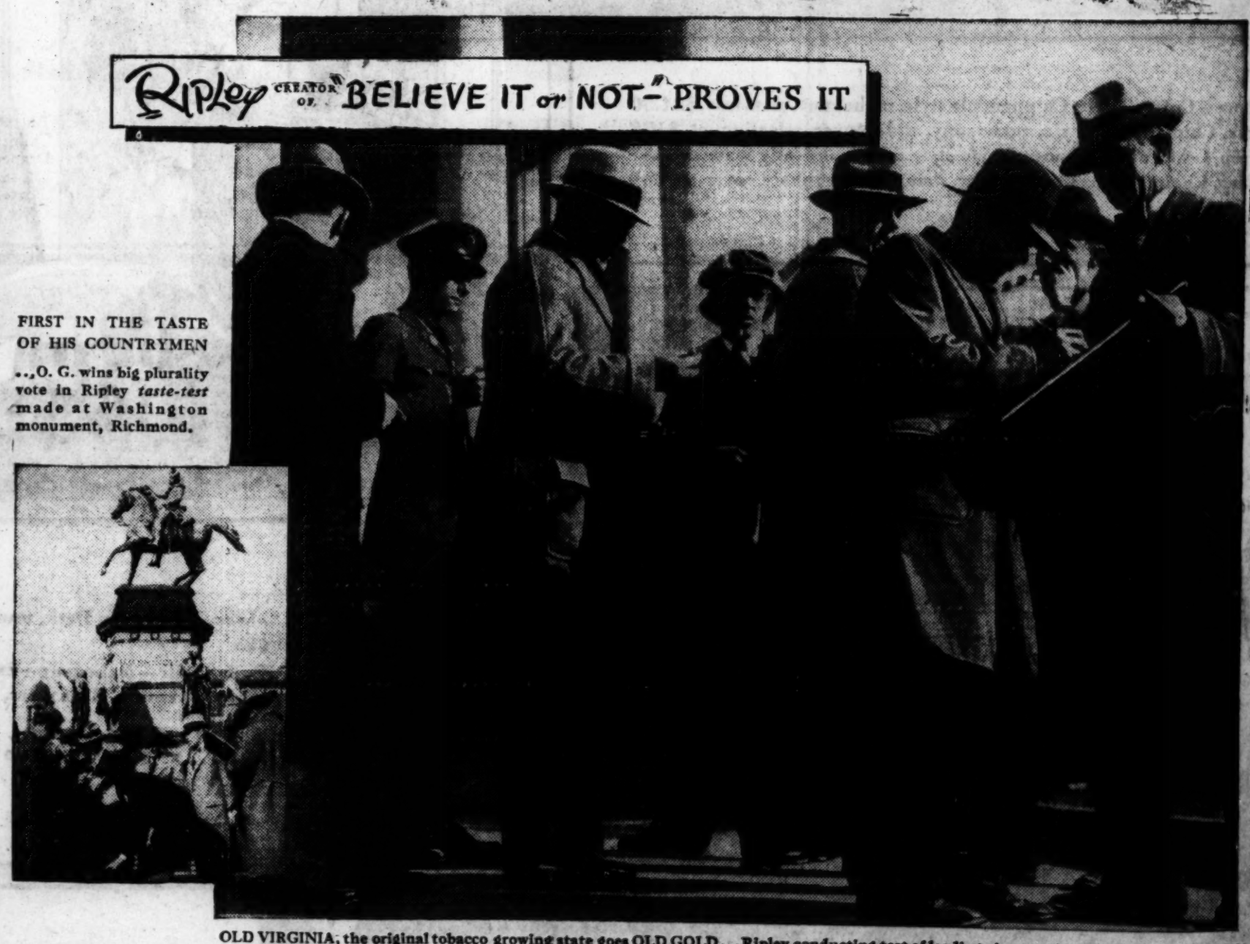
TOBACCO CAPITAL VOTES OLD GOLD BEST

Ripley CREATOR OF "BELIEVE IT or NOT" PROVES IT



FIRST IN THE TASTE OF HIS COUNTRYMEN

...O. G. wins big plurality vote in Ripley taste-test made at Washington monument, Richmond.

OLD VIRGINIA, the original tobacco growing state goes OLD GOLD... Ripley conducting test of leading cigarette brands in front of Capitol.

RICHMOND AWARDS O. G. BIG VICTORY OVER RIVAL BRANDS IN RIPLEY'S FIRST TASTE-TEST DOWN SOUTH

By ROBERT RIPLEY, Himself

I've been telling you all along that OLD GOLD is America's most appealing cigarette.

You can "believe it or not!" ... that's your privilege. But you can't laugh off the certified public taste-tests I'm conducting in every part of the country. For instance, I went down to Richmond, Virginia, the other day. Richmond, one of the nation's capitals in tobacco products, where they know tobacco like Detroit knows motor cars.

I gave 905 Richmond smokers one each of the four leading cigarettes ... with the names hidden by a black mask.

"Don't try to guess 'em, Richmond!" I said. "Just smoke 'em ... and pick out the cigarette that tastes best."

It was the same old story. Again, O. G. rolled up a decisive majority vote. Chosen by the world's foremost tobacco town for its superior throat-ease and smoothness.

If that isn't a Supreme-Court decision ... what is?

Feel Like a New Person Almost Before You Know It

If you want quick relief from a cold, go back to first principles and use something you know does the business—don't start "trying" a lot of fancy ideas or remedies. Even a "little" cold is too dangerous to take chances on.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up; poisons leave your system. Almost before you know it, you feel like a new person.

If it doesn't do that, your money back. Get a box now. You'll be surprised at the speed with which it works. Costs only a few cents.

Relief from Gas Stomach Pains Dizziness

The doctors tell us that 90 per cent of all sickness is due to stomach and bowel troubles. You can't be well if your digestion is bad; you are likely to get sick unless you relish food and digest it properly.

Tanlac has a wonderful record as a relief from digestive troubles, even those of years' standing.

Mr. L. B. Simmons, of 1434½ Larimer St., Denver, Colo., says: "Tanlac made me relish and digest my food fine. It also cured me of gas, dizzy spells and nervousness. Now I sleep well and can put in as good a day's work as a youngster."

If you suffer from gas, pains in the stomach or bowels, dizziness, nausea, constipation, or torpid liver; if you have no appetite, can't sleep and are nervous and all run down, you need Tanlac. It is good, pure medicine, made of roots, herbs and barks. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Money back if it doesn't help you.

UNGUENTINE CONES FOR HEMORRHOIDS

For over 30 years Unguentine Cones have been giving quick, blissful relief from the burning, itching and agony of piles. But that isn't all. In most cases, Unguentine Cones cause distressing piles to shrink and the trouble is gone.

Do not neglect piles—you are inviting the knife if you do and operations are painful and expensive.

4,000 RED TROOPS HUNT PHANTOM REVOLT LEADER

Finds Peasants Arming for War on Moscow.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 8.—A remarkable story of the growing peasant revolt in Russia, starting beyond the Caspian sea and spreading fanwise over Russia, has been revealed by a commercial traveler who has just returned from sovietland.

During the last six months, he declared, the unrest among the peasants has been assuming formidable proportions and has affected the Red army as well as civil officials. It originated at first in Moscow's purchase of all land produce at prices which, he said, were absurdly low.

"Even that price has not yet been paid," the traveler continued. "The workers are forced to rely on the old methods of barter.

Smuggle Arms for Peasants.

"About the same time a mysterious influx of arms and ammunition began coming through the Kazan republic on the northern border of Afghanistan. It was suspected that these were smuggled across by the followers of the former Emir Habibullah. Later some of the Afghan tribesmen, banished by the new rule of King Nadir Khan, also crossed the frontier and their leaders dispersed among the population on the soviet side.

"These bands went around the country as traders and disposed of rifles and a great deal of ammunition among the peasantry. Dissatisfied officers of the Red army, dismissed from government service, have joined these peasants and are now drilling the peasantry into a disciplined army of revolt.

"A mysterious leader has arisen among the peasants. He has established his own government and administration southward of the sea of Aral and seems to be fairly well equipped with arms and ammunition. Some say he is an Afghan general, others believe he is one of the missing generals of the czar's imperial army. Still others say he is one of the czar's family. He seems to have ample funds at his disposal, because his spies and emissaries have reached the remotest corners of soviet Russia in order to band together all those who are discontented with the present régime.

Source of Gold Mystery.

"There is also no doubt that this leader is receiving help from outside in both money and material. The communist guards have long known of enormous quantities of war material being smuggled through Persia and Afghanistan from countries in mid-Europe. It is sent to various dealers in the near east and then transmitted over mountain passes across the border to friends in Russia. Payment is made in gold to these traders. But where the gold comes from is a mystery.

"The soviet government has made tremendous efforts to stop this smuggling and the Red army leaders at Kazan have been asked to locate the mysterious leader. Over 4,000 Red cavalary troops have been scouring the country for months without success. It is believed that within a few months an uprising will flare in this part of Russia—accompanied by trouble all over the country."

RUSSIA TO DRAFT WOMEN IN LABOR SHORTAGE CRISIS

State Will Care for Their Children.

MOSCOW, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Employment of hundreds of thousands of women in industries to overcome the present shortage of labor is being considered by the government of the soviet union.

With thousands of jobs for which there are no takers, the country today has the greatest shortage of labor in its history. Millions of women are inactive and it is believed the problem can be solved by pressing them into service. The children would be cared for by the state while their mothers are working.

Admit Problem Is Acute.

"The problem of attracting hundreds of thousands of women to industrial labor is acute," said an official announcement. "In order to solve this problem as painlessly as possible the government, together with trade unions and other social organizations, has elaborated a number of measures directed toward freeing women from domestic work and securing children with the necessary care while the mothers are at work.

"The most important measures in this respect are the opening of a great number of new nurseries, extension of the network of dining rooms, and the building of laundries and other enterprises to free women from domestic work."

Will Care for 170,000 Children.

The government report considers the fact that 71,000 children were cared for in 1930, whereas this year 17,000 children will be looked after, and their budget was extended from about $13,500,000 to about $41,500,000.

In case accommodations are too small, only the children of women office workers would be cared for.

Another measure would permit 370,000 young girls to be trained in factory apprentice schools. At present there are 300,000 working women who are members of trade unions. According to the government statement, "conditions make them economically equal to men."

RUSSIA SEIZES LATVIAN PLANTS; HOLDS THE STAFF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Feb. 8.—The closing of the only Latvian concession operating in Russia was reported here today. Six factories of the firm of Richard Kazalzitz, opened in 1922, have been taken over by the soviets.

The firm manufactured fuel economy devices and special turbines. The soviets have announced that the undertakings will not be closed, but will continue under communist management. The soviets have also refused to permit the Latvian managers and technical staff to leave the country.

DRY ICELAND WINS ITS BATTLE FOR WINE BY A RUSE

BY AXEL THORSTEINSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Feb. 8.—The government wine monopoly has won a hard fought battle with the bone dry labor unions, which had threatened to boycott foreign ships delivering wine to several important coast towns.

Iceland has a prohibition law and hard liquor is banned, but Iceland's treaty with Spain stipulates that in return for Spain accepting large exports of cured fish, Iceland's government shops shall be plentifully stocked with Spanish wine in all the larger towns. Diplomatic troubles were feared when the unions took matters into their own hands, and by their decision rendered the pact inoperative. A siege between the unions and the government followed, both sides refusing to yield.

Finally, the government's wine monopoly in Reykjavik played a trump card. Five hundred bottles of the finest Spanish wines were sent by mail to Isafjord, where the trouble started. Steamship companies could not refuse to handle mail, and the unions did not dare touch the mails without openly revolting against the government.

So the 500 bottles were brought ashore without anything happening except a spirited rush on the wine shops, where long suffering thirsts were quickly relieved.

Now reports from Isafjord say the labor unions have withdrawn the ban on ships bringing wine to the port.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely, and that is to dissolve it. Then you destroy it entirely.

To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid Arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid Arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

HOW MANY COLDS MAKE AN EPIDEMIC?

THIS is dangerous weather. Raw, chill dampness breeds sickness. Don't neglect your children's colds!

Keep them warm and dry—make them drink lots of water—and at the first sign of a cold use MENTHOLATUM.

Rub it on their chests. Cover it with flannel. For though Mentholatum does not drug, the extra warmth speeds up its action.

Then put just a bit of Mentholatum in each nostril to clear their heads quickly. It breaks up congestion . . . soothes sore nose and throat surfaces.

Stop at the nearest druggist—and buy Mentholatum now. 30c in tube or jar—a reliable cold remedy for over 36 years. (60c for large-sized jar.)

THE LONG LOOP

BY B. M. BOWER

SYNOPSIS.

Dixon Larrabee, head of the Whistling Creek ranch, was swindled in an oil well frame-up by Owen Gray, neighboring rancher and banker. Everything he owned, except the home ranch, was mortgaged. Dix, an orphan, keeps from his grandmother and his young sister, Chuck, the true state of affairs. Gram has her heart set on seeing Chuck a belle, for his college tuition and material demands.

Mart McGuire tempts Dix with the idea of changing the brand of the cattle from Gray's O T ranch to a coffeepot symbol of Dix's own.

Tim, an Indian helper, discovers a lost valley with a geyser on the Coffeepot ranch. But one passage leads to it, through what is seemingly a blank cliff wall. It is an ideal retreat for cattle.

With vague misgivings Dix begins rustling from Gray's herd, hiding the stolen cattle in the lost valley. A blizzard obliterates all traces of the crime. After a second foray Dix is ready to call quits, but Mart and Tom continued night riding on their own. Dix's profits mounted steadily after every shipping.

Chuck and a flyer friend named Frosty arrive at the ranch. Chuck confesses to Dix that he has given up a medical career for aviation. He and Frosty plan to build secretly a competitive plane for a prize. A shed built against the crevice hiding the entrance to the valley seems to them the ideal place for their work.

Owen Gray's aunt and cousin Helen visit the O T ranch. Helen knew Chuck in Baltimore. From what Owen tells her, Helen guesses the true situation involving Dix. Later she and her friend, Josephine Parker, drive over to call on Larry, their nickname for Chuck.

INSTALLMENT XIX.

A CLOUD RIDER.

With his hat on the back of his head and his lips pursed and whistling "Minnetonka," Dix was setting a cold shoe on Coaly's right hind foot, or, to be more explicit, he was pulling the nails from what was left of a broken shoe and he was whistling over that job. With his blue-gray head turned against his sleek shoulder, Coaly was watching the operation interestedly, knowing perfectly well that he needn't give a rap about rocky trails when Dix got through with his feet. Then abruptly Coaly's head swung forward and up, ears pricked curiously as Owen Gray's blue roadster came purring up from the gate. Dix, recalled from gentle abstraction by the movement of the horse and the sound of the car, looked backward under his crooked arm and the horse's belly, then went on with his work, scowling to himself.

"Hoo-hoo-hoo!" chimed the new siren of the blue roadster which Dix despised. And as the last strains died away Dix very absent-mindedly burst forth in song:

"Moon, dear-r, how-w near your lo-ve de-vi-ne——"

"Hoo-oo, hoo, hoo-oo!" chimed the horn again sonorously, so close that Coaly shivered in every nerve [though he was afraid to move while Dix had a foot between his knees]. "Hoo-ooo, hoo-hoo!"

"Git to hell away from here!" Dix yelled. "You're scaring my horse! Ain't you got any sense?"

"O, I beg your pardon!" Helen purposely put extra sweetness into her voice. "I thought you were Larry and I wanted to surprise him!"

Dix dropped Coaly's foot so quickly that Coaly humped his back and jumped his full length. But Dix never noticed the horse at all. He just stood with his hat in one hand and the pliers in the other, staring at Helen from behind the wheel. As if invisible wires pulled him, he walked slowly up to the car, his eyes never once leaving her own startled gaze. When his hand grazed a front fender he blinked, darted a swift, uninterested glance at Coaly watching him fascinatedly, and looked again at Helen.

"Frosty, you know I told you that boy can ride."

"You'll just have to shoot me and leave me lay," he said with a little whimsical smile. "I only saw the wheels and running board of the car, and I thought it was Owen Gray I was cussing."

"Don't go and spoil it by apologizing," Helen said softly, and suddenly she reached out a hand to him which Dix dropped his pliers to take. "I'm Helen Blair, Owen's cousin from Arizona. This is my friend Josephine Parker—we went to school together, Hood's, if you know where that is, near Baltimore. We knew the same crowd Larry went with. I just discovered he's here, so we drove over. I—you must be his brother Dix. Aren't you?"

"What's left of him." Dix had forgotten to let go her hand, but his voice and manner gave no indication of the emotional upheaval that was taking place within him. He nodded in the general direction of the yellow haired girl, his eyes swinging back to Helen like a compass needle to the north. "You—came to see Chuck?"

"Larry—yes. We always called him Larry, you see."

"Yeah. Frosty calls him that, I notice. We always called him Chuck. Kinda nickname for Charlie, I guess."

"Larry's just a nickname too, of course. Short for Larrabee. You see how it is. It was simply inevitable that he should be called Larry. Don't you think so?"

"Well, for the love of Mike!" Josephine here interrupted them. "Sign of you two! We're all agreed that Chuck and Larry are perfectly natural and inevitable nicknames, but where's the little boy who answers to them?"

Dix let go Helen's hand and stepped back as if some one had pushed him. He stooped and picked up his pliers out of the dust and came up sane and himself again.

"Chuck and Frosty are up at Whistling Spring," he said in his habitual mild drawl. "That's up at the head of the basin, about a couple of miles. I could ride up and tell them you're here."

"There's a road to it, isn't there?" Helen's eyes were fixed intently upon Dix.

"Yess—yes, there's a road, but I don't believe you'd better tackle it. It's kinda rough."

"O, that won't matter in the least," Helen assured him. "Could—would you care to—if you'd show us the way—that is, if you aren't afraid of my driving——" Helen's color was high and a scarcely perceptible quiver was in her lips.

Josephine turned and stared at her in amazement, which she fortunately did not attempt to express, then her eyes turned wonderingly upon Dix. She knew that although he sat squeezed in beside her, she simply did not exist for him, and that his arm lay along the back of the seat behind her simply because his fingers could by that means touch Helen's slim shoulder.

At the first gate Dix got out, opened it, and let the car ease through, closed it and went up on the driver's side and rode on the running board, his elbow hooked over the door. It brought him closer. He felt a thousand miles away from her, sitting away over there beyond that other girl. Lonesome as the devil. So for a mile and a half of the rutty road that jounced the big car and made him cling with both hands Dix rode through Elysian fields. And when the car finally nosed through the willows and up to the very gate of the corral and through it, he came to earth with a jolt that made him gasp.

For Chuck and Frosty, peering out through the shed door to see who was invading their secret domain, gave an ecstatic whoop or two and came racing it across the corral and up to the car. Larry seized upon Helen Baird and pulled her from the car with one great swoop. Then he kissed her full on the mouth, and hell opened and let Dix down into its brimstone flames.

Of course. She had told him right in the start that she had come to see Chuck—Larry, she called him. Funny how she got him the minute he laid eyes on her, just as if he had been waiting all his life for her to come and as if she and everybody else ought to know as well as he did that she just naturally belonged to him and he belonged to her.

But hard cold facts hit him in the face and made him feel as if he must be crazy. She was Chuck's girl. She had practically told him so right at the start, only he had been knocked silly at the sight of her and hadn't paid any attention. Chuck's girl. Engaged, most likely. Chuck wouldn't be slow about getting his loop on her—a girl like that. Dix turned and started into the corral where two saddle horses stood backed into a corner, eying the car with extreme disgust.

"Say, I'll ride your horse back to the ranch, Chuck," he called crisply over his shoulder. "You and Frosty'll want to go down in the car."

"Aw, stick around a while, why don't you?" Chuck made perfunctory protest. "Don't rush off."

"Can't. I've got work to do,"—Dix said shortly, and caught the horses, mounting one and leading the other. He was glad in his heart that they were both afraid of the car and gave him all he wanted to do getting them through the gate and past the group. As he came opposite Chuck reached up with a wicked hand and held down the siren button, which started things.

"Frosty, you know I told you that boy can ride," he boasted as the four stood transfixed watching the show.

Jo took a turn at the siren button, using it to express applause and approval and encouragement all in one. Helen just gazed and never said a word.

"Air holes would mean nothing whatever to that boy. We'll have to get him up in the air once. He'll want to ride nothin' but clouds from then on," Frosty stated with renewed conviction.

"O, are you going to have a plane out here?" Jo immediately transferred her attention to Frosty. "Will you take me up with you?"

Frosty made solemn promise, though he never intended to keep it.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

In this picture the "It" girl is just as itful as ever—but the allure has a deeper, warmer urge.

"You sweet baby! You sweet little baby!" her picture husband whispers, brokenly, adoringly to her in one scene—and you say it with him. In this episode, and others, she IS sweet—really so—and does some fine and sincere acting. I would like to see somebody who understood her, take in hand this tempestuous youngster, who hasn't known just what to do with all the wealth and popularity suddenly showered upon her. Theres' good material in Clara Bow.

The story of "No Limit" is hard to believe. Still, it's interesting, and has more bulk than a lot of the yarns Miss Bow has drawn. For reasons you'll guess, it rings in a gambling house and a scene or two where Clara bets recklessly, voicing later the now famous utterance that she thought she was playing with fifty cent chips.

The heroine is a movie theater usherette named Bunny and is the fondest thing, Ole Olson a sailor, is of. He follows her about like a devoted and awkward Will Rogers looking and Charles Butterworth acting Newfoundland dog. When his uncle dies and leaves him a "co-op" building and a Rolls Royce, he hands Bunny the keys to both on the day before he sails away. She and her girl friend take possession of a gorgeous place that turns out to have been a gambling parlor run by the late Mr. Olson, and which automatically opens right up again under the noses of two astonished damsels.

Ole returns to find the maid of his dreams married to the man she has loved since she first laid eyes on him in the movie theater. Married—and in a lot of trouble is Bunny—and the film can tell you about that.

Norman Foster warms up after a couple of entrances and is likable and convincing. Stuart Erwin is a lamb as always. Thelma Todd is stunning in her several brief moments, and Harry Green is good for a number of laughs. HE'S clever, even if his lines aren't.

Direction, photography and sound are good; sets are flashy and modernistic.

"No Limit" may not be art—but it's "box office."

"CAPTAIN APPLEJACK."

Re: Captain Applejack:

He hath a red and pouting lip,
He weareth knife upon his hip,
In sooth he is a pirate bold
Who loveth women, wine, and gold.
He craveth lo, the open sea.
Instead of "you," he sayeth "ye."

And so on. And he lived a hundred or so years ago, this Captain Applejack, who indeed does figure in the story—but not so much as does one most conventional, modern day Ambrose Applejohn, whose belief that he's a descendant of the pirate leads him to perform strange actions during strange adventures that befall him in his own home—which is for sale.

The "home" is an ancestral English castle, built on a lonely cliff and pounded by the ocean. To it come, one dark and stormy night, unknown persons speaking of peculiar things, ALL of which Ambrose believes. Also, on that night Ambrose has a dream. After which, well—the rest of the story I'll leave for the picture to show you.

Much of the action takes place to the accompaniment of bombardments of thunder, flashing lightning, and the pounding of the sea referred to.

"You'll find yourselves in for some mystery, a bit of excitement, a laugh or two and a dash of romance as you view "Captain Applejack," which is a smoothly acted and moderately entertaining number.

See you tomorrow.

Dedicates Building Costing $4,000,000.

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—The nonsectarian Riverside church, pulpit of the Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick and place of worship of John D. Rockefeller Jr. and his family, was dedicated today with a warning by its pastor that civilization cannot be sustained without the message which the church of God is trying to convey.

A congregation of 2,400 persons filled the auditorium and galleries of the $4,000,000 Gothic edifice high above the Hudson beside Grant's tomb, and hundreds more heard the services by amplifiers in other rooms of the church or stood on snowy Riverside drive hoping in vain to enter.

Among the 2,400 was Mr. Rockefeller Jr., whose beneficience helped largely to build the church—the third which the congregation of Dr. Fosdick has occupied in the last nine years in an effort to obtain for him a place of worship ample for the throngs which seek to hear him.

Every Sunday since the church was opened for worship, Oct. 5, its auditorium has been inadequate to hold the crowds. Most of them come to hear the preaching of Dr. Fosdick and others doubtless are drawn by the newness of the building or to see its curiously sculptured frieze in which the image of Einstein is wrought among those of the great ones of the world.

"What happens to the Christian church," he said in his sermon of dedication today, "is one of the crucial problems of the modern world. In the face of censure commonly visited upon the church today—from books like 'Elmer Gantry,' whose author gets the Noble prize, to the far more deadly condemnation that lies in nonattendance and apathy—a devoted churchman's first instinct is to find some method of rebuttal.

"On this high occasion when we dedicate our new building we will not content ourselves with easy rebuttals. The church does deserve censure; the church does need reformation.

"But we stand by the church. It is trying to say something without which civilization cannot be sustained."

SEVEN NEGROES GET HONORS FOR MUSIC, TRADE, FARM, SCIENCE

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—The creative work of seven Negroes was rewarded today with the William E. Harmon awards for distinguished achievement.

The awards, consisting of a gold medal and $400, went to Hall Johnson for music; Albon L. Holsey for business; James Langston Hughes, literature; Thomas Monroe Campbell, farming and rural life; Charles S. Johnson, science; Henry A. Hunt, education; and Henry C. McDowell, religious service.

Hall Johnson, who lives in New York, won his award for his arrangement of Negro spirituals and his original compositions. His choir sings in the current Broadway stage success, "The Green Pastures."

Holsey, connected with Tuskegee Institute, Alabama, was praised as the originator of a successfully proven experiment, stores run by Negroes for Negro trade.

He organized a chain of 253 grocery stores, with branches in Dallas, New York, Omaha, Tulsa, and other places.

Hughes, a resident of Westfield, N. J., is the author of the novel "Not Without Laughter" and other works. The announcement said: "His writings are unique in their use of jazz rhythms in lyric verse, and in the attempt to capture a definite racial expression."

Campbell is connected with Tuskegee institute. As agent for seven southern states under the department of agriculture, he teaches Negro farmers home improvement, stock betterment, crop rotation, cooperative buying, and other matters.

Charles S. Johnson, Nashville, Tenn., is known for his findings in social science. His research has been summarized through his publication, "The Negro in American Civilization," and "The Negro in Chicago."

Hunt, of Fort Valley High and Industrial school, Fort Valley, Ga., developed a training center for Negro youth which the announcement said "improved the life in a community of 300,000 colored people."

McDowell, a native of Meriden, Miss., won his honor for work as a congregational missionary at Galangue, Angola, Portuguese West Africa. In his case the presentation ceremonies took place at Hartford, Conn. Other ceremonies were in New York, Nashville, Fort Valley, and Tuskegee.

Art Exhibit Tomorrow.

Gamma chapter of Phi Beta sorority of the American conservatory, will be special guests of Joseph P. Birren, Chicago painter, at an exhibition at his studio, 49 East Elm street, at 8 p. m. tomorrow. Mr. Birren is a patron of Phi Beta, and this is one of a number of special exhibitions he has planned for this season.

And others.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

HERE is Marika Cotopouli, come all the way from Athens to prove that the great race of tragediennes is not extinct. She is a thoroughgoing practitioner of the art of tragic acting, and has been called the foremost tragedienne of Europe, perhaps because she has few competitors in this era of realism, neglected classics and casual comedies. She gave "Elektra" in the popular idiom of modern Greece at the Studebaker theater last night before a keenly interested and warmly responsible audience of Greek-Americans.

In this case the ancient tragedy of Sophocles returns to the modern children of Hellas by way of Germany. Mme. Cotopouli uses Hugo von Hofmannsthal's version, translated by herself. It is, for reasons unknown to me, because I am unfamiliar with the text, regarded as an impressive modern retelling of Sophocles' work. Mrs. Patrick Campbell [now visiting in Chicago] gave it in New York, in English, of course, some twenty years ago, and it has also been used as the libretto of an opera. It follows the simple outline of the Sophoclean tragedy, but dispenses with the chorus. The psychology of Elektra, seeking revenge upon her mother and her mother's paramour for the murder of her father [good old Agamemnon, who was chief of staff at the siege of Troy], has apparently been modernized and even sensationalized by Von Hofmannsthal.

Mme. Cotopouli does not inherit the heroic stature of the old-fashioned tragic queens. She is slight of figure, and she does not tear her passions into tatters with emotional eloquence. Intensity of feeling expressed with naturalism is her method. She plays Elektra as a haggard, slovenly woman in a shabby black robe, ravaged physically as well as spiritually by the bloody destiny of her family. To express any kind of final opinion about an actress seen for the first time, who is giving a performance in a language that one does not understand, is, of course, impossible. I can only say that Mme. Cotopouli is a vivid personality who is apparently mistress of her art. She commands the attention of her audience in a play that contains little of the superficial elements of dramatic action.

This evening the actress-manager from Athens will give her second and final performance at the Studebaker. "Karagiozes," by Theodore Synodinos, a tragic satire with a folk character of modern Greece as its central figure, will be her vehicle. She uses draperies for stage settings, and is assisted by what appears to be a fairly competent company.

Ethel Barrymore announces that she will close her engagement at the Harris theater in "Scarlet Sister Mary" next Saturday night. She will also end her tour. After a brief rest she will revive "The Love Duel," the European comedy in which she appeared here about a year ago, for a tour of the cities of the south, which she has not visited for twenty years.

The Harris theater will be inactive next week, and the season of the Dramatic League of Chicago will be resumed there Monday evening, Feb. 23, with Jane Cowl in "Art and Mrs. Bottle." After three weeks of this comedy Miss Cowl will offer Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" for one week.

An engagement of Grace George and A. E. Matthews in a new play which Miss George is adapting from the French of Louis Verneuil is a possibility for the Harris theater in the spring. M. Verneuil wrote the play, which the American stage knows under the title of "Jealousy," for two characters; and this new piece that Miss George is preparing contains only three. . . . Another prospect for the Chicago theatrical calendar not yet definitely dated is "Up Pops the Devil," which was a New York success of last fall. It will come to the Apollo.

Mrs. Fiske's company in her revival of "Becky Sharp," which opens next Monday night, Feb. 16, for a week at the Blackstone theater, will include Leslie 'Austen as Rawdon Crawley; William Ingersoll, who is now playing the foreman in "Ladies of the Jury," as Lord Steyne; George Hoskins, and Carlton Cadell. Mrs. Fiske will give an extra matinée performance of "Becky Sharp" Thursday, Feb. 19.

Chicago's Boy Scouts Rally at the Churches

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Thousands of Boy Scouts of Chicago renewed their scout oaths in churches of this city yesterday. It was Boy Scout Sunday. The scouts laid special emphasis on oath No. 12—"a scout is reverent"—as they stood uniformed before their pastors and declared their allegiance to the scouting principle which says:

"A scout is reverent toward God. He is faithful in his religious duties, and respects the convictions of others in matters of custom and religion."

More than 100 uniformed scouts attended special services in their honor at Temple Sholom, 3480 Sheridan road where Scout Executive E. Urner Goodman of the Chicago council spoke, and Rabbi A. Hirschberg conducted scout devotions. The services at Temple Sholom and at other churches and synagogues marked the 21st anniversary of American Boy Scouting.

Scouts and officers of troop 516 assembled at Trinity Episcopal church, Michigan avenue and 19th street where the rector, the Rev. J. R. Pickells, conducted special services. At St. Chrysostom's church, troops 40 and 42 were presented a new American flag, the gift to the troops by Mrs. Joseph E. Otis. Troop 40 celebrated its 18th year of continuous work at the near north side church.

This week exhibitions of Scout work will be on display in the windows of many branches of the Chicago public library, while pilgrimages to St. Gaudens's statue of Abraham Lincoln in Lincoln park will be made during the week, particularly on Thursday, Lincoln's birthday. Special programs will be held at the Field museum and the Chicago Historical society.

The northwest district of the Chicouncil will stage a demonstration Wednesday night at the Olivet institute under the direction of George Schiner, field executive of the district. He will present awards won by various troops in the patrol achievement campaign held during the winter.

Cub Scouts have announced a Lincoln memorial program to be held Thursday morning at the Lincoln monument at 10 o'clock. The Cub Scouts are organized to include boys beneath the 12 year age limit for Scout membership.

Scouting was brought to America from England 21 years ago by a Chicago publisher, William D. Boyce. The Chicago man sought a difficult address in London and a boy approached him and asked if he could be of service. After Mr. Boyce had been directed to the address his proffered "tip" was refused with the words, "No sir, I am a Scout. Scouts do not accept tips for courtesies."

Mr. Boyce then made inquiries concerning the organization and brought the information to America on his return. He obtained the incorporation of the Boy Scouts of America on Feb. 8, 1910. On May 1, 1926, the American Scouts honored the unknown Boy Scout who aided Mr. Boyce with a bronze buffalo monument in Washington, D. C. It bears the inscription:

"To the unknown Scout whose faithfulness in the performance of the 'daily good turn' brought the Scout movement to the United States of America."

Chicago Boys' Club Opens $100,000 Home on the West Side

Joy was unconfined for a few hours yesterday in the Maxwell street district, as the Chicago Boys' club formally opened its new $100,000 clubhouse for boys at 1300 Newberry avenue. Most of the 500 boy members swarmed to the building with their parents, to roam through the various departments, to participate in the numerous games or demonstrations that made up the program, or to listen to orchestra music and speeches.

Brief talks on the opening of the new center, which is designed to direct the energies of growing boys in this congested area into constructive rather than destructive avenues of activity, were made by L. L. Valentine, president of the Chicago Boys' club; Irving Klein, Alderman William Pacelli, Samuel Bilsky, and E. H. Cross. W. Ryland Boorman is director of the club.

Athletic events held away in the gymnasium during the afternoon, and the visitors were shown through the various rooms in which technical training will be given, where boy members obligingly demonstrated what they already have learned and what they expect to learn. A marked reduction in juvenile delinquency in the district is the aim of the institution.

Trends in Spring Coiffure Styles Are Toward Longer Locks

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Reporting on the spring trend in coiffures, there is little new to tell, unless it is that the longs are taking on some new members all the time. These may not be content with what hair state they have arrived at. They may be mulling over in their mind, as many are, whether this long hair style of theirs has done anything handsome by them or whether they didn't look younger with the shorter cut. But Fashion, that Mussolini whose word we listen to, no matter what our secret suasion, presses more and more heavily on the type of hair dress that is consistent with one's frocks.

Anyway, we can say two things with positive fervor. One is that the short bob is passé, and that the waves you have set in your hair must be wide apart and very, very loose. You can't appear with the look about your head that used to be associated with a fresh marcel. You know what I mean. When you used to apologize and say: "It looks kinda corkscrewish now. It will be nicer in a few days." It's got to be nice like that now just as you step out of the hairdressing shop.

It's really amusing to see the way women do capitulate in spite of earlier protestation at what Fashion dictates. More women I know protested they never, never would let heir hair grow again. And, of course, there are some stout souls who manage to weather the trend holding to their convictions and their bob. Eventually, with most of us, however, the little drops of water—Fashion pressure—eventually wears away the stony reserve.

Anyway, hair styles now are charming, because so many of them have all the smooth, tidy, smart appearance the bob provided, yet let the head look as if it had grown up, as the lady in her long skirt looks. And the beauty of it is that you have a dozen ways to try yours out with. Maybe this is just as good a time as any to get discontented with your hair style and try a new one. You can't tell, but you may get a more fascinating one with practice or with the help of an expert hairdresser. It's as good for the morale to do one's head over, every now and then, as it is to get a new hat.

"Sally" Says Good Cooking Was Wasted on Her Boy Friend

BY DORIS BLAKE.

How about this cooking for the boy friend? Is it a paying ruse for the girl or a nonpaying one?

Following a recent suggestion, not entirely mine although it bore my endorsement as a trial system of captivating a young man, other measures seeming sterile so far as matrimonial offers are concerned, a good deal of fuss has been kicked up. And here's the way "Sally" feels about it after a first hand trial.

"Sally" went for a year with a young man, during which year he took her out exactly five times to shows and once to a lunch on Saturday. Charlie, the prudent suitor, is bright, intelligent and earning good money, picking up extras here and there, teaching, coaching and filling in at small town theaters during vacation periods.

He has no responsibilities of family, no young brothers or sisters depending on his help, nor dependent parents. But he believes in banking his money, so he frankly tells his Sally.

"Well, Miss Blake," Sally takes up the recital, "I cooked everything imaginable for him. He was at my home over the week-ends and my family thought a lot of him. My brother shared his room with him. Mother thought him wonderful—only none of them could understand why he didn't take me out.

"He says he likes to walk with me because people look at me. He says I am attractive—but that's the bologna, because all boys say the same thing, don't they? Well, a hint about being taken out only served to have the brave one decide just before Christmas to cut me—and the ugly part was that it comes to me he said: 'One Christmas present saved.'"

Now, the problem, in cooking terms, is whether it wasn't love's labor lost. Certainly the way to the man's heart was paved with good steaks, better lamb chops, vegetables and salads and diets containing all the needed vitamins, but the one vitamin Sally insists begins with L, and stands for love. Sally certainly does not think now that food ingredients have anything to do with that greatest of all viatmines, love; so when Charley's successor comes along there's going to be no more home culinary exhibitions. No, she's shining up the dancing slippers.

[The article on amusing the convalescent child which was promised for this week will appear next week, instead.]

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Popularity Complex.

"Dear Miss Blake: I like a boy who I think likes me but whenever we are together he speaks of other girls. Please advise. BROWN EYES."

It's just his way of trying to impress you with his popularity.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

MRS. F. X. S.: EACH CHILD should have his own wash cloth, which should be washed, rinsed, and hung up to dry after each using. At least once a week it should be boiled, destroying any germs which may lurk in the cloth.

L. V.: A TOILET SOAP SHOULD lather well for the cleansing property of the soap depends upon the lather. It should be made of clean fats, from which the excessive alkali has been removed.

Different Tactics Needed When Child Leaves Babyhood

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Do you remember Sunday's letter about the little boy who was developing sulks and pouts and injured feelings and who wouldn't obey, who resisted every step of the way? We couldn't quite finish suggestions yesterday for guidance in the face of that type of difficulty, so will continue them today.

If you feel a bit skeptical of the explanation that the second baby may partly account for such behavior I can easily understand it. It is an indirect cause to the casual observer, yet a real one. You would be amazed at how many descriptions of the sudden sprouting of tantrums, tears, defiance seems quite baffling until you find tucked in sometimes in a postscript, unwittingly, the cause—"I have a little baby, too," or "His eleven months old sister is sweet and amenable and no trouble at all." The second baby often accounts for a great deal.

But of course the new baby or younger child is not always the cause of these difficulties. Or she may be partly the cause, and other factors, too, may be responsible for the unmanageableness.

It may be, for instance, that, however loving and sympathetic a person is, she hasn't a clear conception of how to manage children. Some women, for instance, are marvelous with babies [and men, too, for that matter], but as soon as a child passes babyhood and loses a certain sweet dependence the same methods no longer work and the parents lose patience.

When a sense of power comes to a child through his ability to walk, climb, run, eat alone, talk, etc., other character qualities begin to show. He becomes more independent and venturesome. His initiative develops. He grows less docile. He is, in other words, much more of a person and needs to be studied and no longer handled like a baby.

Just about here in a child's life parents often need to pause and look around for a sign pointing the way to an understanding of child nature and a workable means of dealing with it. For this purpose I have arranged a list of brief reading and also of longer reading in child management.

Seeing Chicago Is Latest Thing; It's Surprising

BY THALIA

HAVE YOU ever gone sightseeing in your own home town? Lots of people haven't, but they're realizing more and more that there are a good many very fine sights to see in Chicago, and that it's high time they set about seeing them. When visitors from all parts of the world come here and exclaim about all the wonderful things there are about, it begins to sink in on us that maybe we're missing a bet if we don't get busy and absorb some first hand knowledge of our city's advantages, too. This was something of the idea I imagine that Mrs. Frank Hibbard had when she suggested to some of her friends that they make a few excursions around town, and they fell in with the plan enthusiastically.

There's no organization to it, but the group of women who are interested meets once a week for luncheon at somebody's house and afterwards makes a trip to some interesting place. They've had three of such jaunts already, one to the Shedd aquarium, another to the planetarium [anybody who has been there will tell you what a good show that is] and last week's to the Merchandise Mart. They haven't any set schedule of plans, but they have in mind going to the Field museum, the Art institute, and through Chinatown, among other things.

From Santa Barbara's sunny slopes Mrs. Horace Gray went down from San Francisco to meet her father and mother, the Arthur Meekers, on their arrival in Santa Barbara recently, and has been visiting the Francis V. Lloyds . . . Mrs. Gray's sons are both at school in Santa Barbara, Horace Jr. at the Santa Barbara school in Carpinteria, and Arthur at the Deane school in Montecito . . . the Meekers are at the Miramar where Mr. Meeker's brother-in-law and sister, the James Benham Walkers, are living, until they [the Meekers] get into their new house . . . Mrs. James H. Douglas and James H. Jr. have joined young Mrs. Douglas, who went out recently with her parents, the Robert G. McGanns . . . the Hobart Chatfield-Taylors have been at La Quinta and Palm Springs on the desert . . . Mrs. Clarence Mitchell, Mrs. Milton Wilson, and Mrs. Agnes Patten Wilder played in the women's medal play in the women's medal play tournament at the Valley club one day not long ago.

White Motor Pilgrim from Virginia Explores This City.

And speaking of sightseeing trips, Mrs. Ralph R. Richardson is going to do a thorough Cook's tour of Chicago during the next fortnight, because the Richardsons' guest, Mrs. Percy Randolph of Millwood, Va., who motored here last week with Miss Frances Richardson, has never been here before and she's thrilled to death with Chicago and wants to see every bit of it. The Richardsons will be going down to that lovely place of theirs in Virginia next month for the spring hunting. Miss Frances has been down there most of the winter, hunting three times a week, but the ground is too hard just now.

People who have seen the author's copy of Bob Eskridge's book, "Manga Reva, the Forgotten Islands," say that it's perfectly stunning. I hear that he intended giving the very first one to Mrs. William S. Monroe, but when it came there was an error in it, and so he asked her which she'd prefer—that one, mistake and all, or another one after the correction is made. She said she'd prefer the original, as is.

In the social panorama — Mr. and Mrs. William Shippen Jenks of 10 East Schiller street departed on Saturday for Pasadena, to spend the late winter and spring there . . . Catherine Noyes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Paul Noyes, who is at Vassar, went to the Yale prom last week as the guest of a New York man, Edward Hoffman, a member of St. Elmo's . . . Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Evans of Lake Forest have taken a house at Coronado Beach and hope to get away this week for California (Mrs. Evans hasn't been well, and their departure depends on her health) . . . Katherine Trowbridge has returned from a visit in Easton, Pa. . . . Kingman Douglass has gone to Santa Barbara to join Mrs. Douglass and the children, and they expect to go to Honolulu before returning to Chicago.

The Chauncey McCormicks Go Voyaging to West Indies.

And meanwhile, you'll be interested to hear . . . that Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick have departed on a cruise in West Indian waters as the guests of their uncle, Richard Howe, aboard his yacht, the Seaborn . . . that Dr. and Mrs. Stephen E. Keeler and the Chicago diocesan branch of the Girls' Friendly society are to give a reception on Thursday afternoon at St. Chrysostom's parish house for Mrs. Richard Austin of Cincinnati, successor to Mrs. Robert B. Gregory as midwest vice president of the Girls' Friendly society . . . that Mrs. Henry Haugan has been at La Jolla, Cal., recently . . . that Mrs. William Templeton, William Templeton Jr. and Mrs. James B. Card were at the El Mirador at Palm Springs in the desert last week, and the Bernard E. Sunnys registered at the Huntington, in Pasadena.

Masters' View About Lincoln Stirs Protest

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 8.—(AP)—The neighborhood that knew Abraham Lincoln best is stirred over Edgar Lee Masters' conception of the emancipator.

H. W. Fay, custodian of Lincoln's tomb, decried today the description of the civil war President as "grotesquely dressed and unkempt" in Masters' latest work, "Lincoln—The Man."

"I have three hundred pictures of Lincoln, taken at various ages after he was 5 years old, showing him in many poses, and not one even hints that he was 'unkempt.' On the contrary, in each he looks as though he had just stepped from a bandbox. His clothes were neat, his hair well combed, and his features pleasant."

Down in Petersburg, where Lincoln won the love of Ann Rutledge only to lose it through her death, there is talk of chiseling from the tombstone over her grave the epitaph written by Masters in his "Spoon River Anthology."

Many hereabouts have always objected to this epitaph, contending it should be removed. They believed the words are an injustice to Mary Todd Lincoln.

The epitaph reads:

The vibrations of deathless music!
"With malice toward none, with charity for all,"
Out of me forgiveness of millions toward millions,
And the beneficent fact of a nation
Shining with justice and truth,
I am Ann Rutledge, who sleeps beneath these words,
Beloved of Abraham Lincoln,
Wedded to him, not through union,
But through separation.
Bloom forever, O republic,
From the dust of my bosom.

Even though the epitaph is objectionable to some, it is quite probable that Ann Rutledge will rest forever under these words. No one knows who would have the authority to erase them from the tombstone.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Mrs. Hoover has chosen next Thursday, Feb. 12, as the date for the annual breakfast in her honor by the Congressional club. It will, as usual, be held in the Willard, with the retiring president of the club, Mrs. Porter H. Dale, wife of Senator Dale of Vermont, presiding.

Mrs. Dale, Mrs. William C. Ramseyer, wife of the representative from Iowa, and the board of directors, have arranged an unusual program of music.

Modern Music, Puppets Unite at the Goodman

BY EDWARD MOORE.

THE International Society for Contemporary Music did a good job at the Goodman theater yesterday afternoon—it will repeat the program tonight—and the best part of it was to demonstrate that contemporary music may be a great lot of fun and need not be a matter of strained attention over unpleasant dissonances.

"Master Peter's Puppet Show" to Manuel de Falla's music was as amusing a scene as one is likely to find on the stage. So was Igor Stravinsky's "The Story of the Soldier." So—in spots—was Louis Gruenberg's "Creation," though one suspects that James Weldon Johnson's libretto and George Garner's dealings with it were better than the music.

In "The Story of the Soldier" one suspects Stravinsky of having paid some attention to the more obvious points of the Chinese theater. The narrator, Hobart Sommers, acts part of the time as a detached, attentive, but unexcited stage manager as well, and rhythms are banged out of the orchestra in fairly Chinese manner. So Chinese technic is applied to a Russian folk tale and Stravinsky music, with three dancing and miming characters of goofy nature, done with great manner by Ruth Page, Jacques Cartier, and Blake Scott, and the blend is something entrancing.

In the de Falla scene we have life sized puppets and small sized puppets, with a squad of masked experts headed by Remo Bufano above, working the complex set of threads that move the figures, and causing them to act a story until Don Quixote's emotions grow too much for him and he lays into the little stage with disastrous results to Master Peter's property. Meanwhile from their places in the orchestra pit Joel Lay as Don Quixote, Arch Cannon as Master Peter, and Josephine Haynes as the announcing boy, sing the lines that connect the mimicry above.

The music is charming, quite the most delightful of the three. Here there is an orchestra of about thirty. The other two require about eight instruments each. Rudolph Ganz conducts all, and is first class in all. The repeated performance tonight is confidently recommended.

Of other music during the afternoon, Josef Lhevinne, the pianist, played Bach, Mozart, Hummel, Brahms, Debussy, and Chopin at the Civic theater. It was a pedagogue's program, but played with more than pedagogic ability, warmth and skill. In fact, it classified as a piano lesson de luxe.

Amelita Galli-Curci, soprano, appeared in what was announced as her only recital of the season at Orchestra hall, a typical Galli-Curci program of ancient works, art songs, and an occasional coloratura display with flute obbligato, this played by Raymond Williams. Her voice retains much of its lovely charm, an effect somewhat hampered by the business like briskness with which she goes through a song and turns at once to the next number. Certainty of manner is an excellent quality, but sometimes it may be made to stifle the flowering of imagination.

Josephine Lydston Seyl, diseuse, appeared at the Playhouse in a costume recital, the program emphasizing songs of French and Russian composers.

Sally Hears Story: Job, Without Pay, Adds to Suffering

Sally Joy Brown yesterday was asked to find a solution to the problem of a woman who since September has been supporting herself and daughter, her widowed sister and the latter's six children.

As if that situation in itself were not bad enough, the one worker's salary has not been paid for seven weeks, and she writes that she expects the firm to dissolve this coming week. Her eager hope is that Sally may find employment for her sister, a practical nurse, or for the husky young son who will do almost anything to earn a few dollars.

"They have registered at the Illinois Free Employment Service at 116 North Dearborn street," she writes, "but my sister had only one temporary job of nursing since before Thanksgiving. The son has not been able to find anything, nor have the two girls, who are 17 and 20, who are typists and operate switchboards. My own daughter works part time and has over $300 due her in salary that she can't collect."

Sally's mail yesterday was full of such appeals for help in finding the jobs that seem so scarce. There was the plea of the bride of a year, now an expectant mother, whose husband has not had work for eight months and who begs for a position for him, to be able to earn something for the necessary expenses. He is a general handy man, she writes. There was the high school and business college graduate, a girl whose mother is dependent on her, and who offers to work for a small salary at either factory or office work.

There was, also, the older man with a sick wife, fearing eviction because he is back in his rent, who wants a position as night watchman, elevator operator, at waxing floors or any other type of employment.

A neighbor writes about the W—— family, with a girl 22 and a boy 21 out of work, and with an ageing mother and crippled brother to care for. The two breadwinners are well educated but have not been able to get placed at any agency. Another request for help comes from a little Scotch girl, born at Paisley.

Housewives should utilize every particle of the marrow that comes with the bones in the meat they purchase. In fact, it would be wise to occasionally purchase some extra marrow bones. I suggest this because marrow is now considered one of the most important substances in the animal and the human body.

Bone marrow, the tissue which fills out the spaces in all the bones, is a soft, rich fat, easily digested and wholesome. In this substance the red corpuscles of the blood are manufactured.

When in normal condition bone marrow has many valuable dietetic uses. Experiments with rats have shown that an extract of bone marrow administered under the skin will cause the healing of rachitic bones. Drs. Friedenwald and Ruhrah say: "Many authorities recommend highly the feeding of bone marrow from the long bones of the ox or sheep given in doses of one ounce and a half. When well seasoned with pepper, the spicy commercial sauces, or tomato sauce it may be spread on bread or added to bouillon. An interesting case is recorded of a baby aged nine months, who entered a hospital with marked anemia and high fever. The white blood count was abnormally high, being 220,000. At this time one ounce of bone marrow was given every three hours during the day. In three weeks the count had dropped to 16,500.

Exiles in Siberia, during periods of famine, have been known to subsist largely upon bone marrow. When frozen it has the flavor of ice cream.

MARROW BALLS.

2 eggs.
Cracker crumbs.
¼ cup chopped almonds, if desired.
1 slice bread.

Beat the marrow until light; add the salt and the well beaten eggs. Soak the bread in water, squeeze it dry and then add sufficient cracked crumbs to make the mixture stiff enough to form into small balls. Drop into boiling soup.

CELERY AND MARROW.

10 slices toast.
Salt.

Clean celery roots. Scoop out the centers to form cups and cook in boiling salted water until tender, taking care not to break. Sauté marrow in a hot pan. When cooked put marrow in celery cups. Fry in 3 tablespoons butter 10 round slices of toast, the same size as the celery cups. Put in a vegetable dish, set a stuffed celery root in each and pour over the following sauce: Put 1 tablespoon butter and 1 tablespoon flour in a saucepan in which the marrows were cooked and mix well over the fire. Add bouillon and salt. Boil until fairly thick. Pass through a sieve and pour over the celery.

Yield: Ten servings. One serving: Total, 265 calories; protein, 7 calories; fat, 219 calories; carbohydrates, 39 calories.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Invalids Want Playing Cards.

"We are fourteen patients in the cottage at this tuberculosis sanitorium. We like to play cards to pass the time away and wonder if you could get a few decks, preferably pinochle decks, for us. We would feel greatly indebted to you for them. A. M."

Inveterate card players usually have more packs of cards than they really need, and discard them when they are only slightly soiled. Won't you keep this group of patients in mind when you are disposing of them in the future?

Offers Bird Cage.

"I have a bird cage which isn't being used and it occurred to me that some one might be able to make use of it. I shall be glad to give it to any one you suggest. Mrs. F. J."

If your pet canary needs new quarters here is a lovely cage for it. Write me if you think he'd be happy in it; please do not telephone.

Two Colors Twice as Smart as One in Paris

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special Correspondence.] —Two colors are more than twice as good as one, say Paris fashions, just now. Smart French women are wearing piebald hats and shoes. Suits feature color contrasts. Dresses of one shade have lingerie touches of another, and if you can't get your bicolored effect in any other way, you do it by adding vivid accessories to your plain colored costumes.

One of the smartest color combinations for Palm Beach is flag blue and white. This is the sea scheme, par excellence, and it is awfully fresh and nautical and jolly after the somber tones that so many women wore in the north this winter.

Lucile Paray makes the Palm Beach ensemble, sketched here, of flag blue woolen and blue white crêpe. The flag blue woolen skirt is flared slightly toward the hem by one wide front gore. It has a narrow hip yoke in the front but the back is plain. The smart little cutaway jacket shown on the small standing figure is also of the flag blue woolen. It's corded around the edge in the latest fashion, which gives it a great deal of dash, and corded loops at the neck replace a scarf in an amusing manner.

The blouse of white and flag blue crêpe goes in for the piebald effect with a vengeance. It is trimmed with four bias bands that are all white in back, while in front two on the upper right and the lower left side are of flag blue. The two bias bands trimming the lower sleeves are also divided in color.

Penalties—March [2], Graham.

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Helge Bostrum's long shot which took a queer bound into the Ranger net, decided a duel of speed in favor of the Chicago Blackhawks tonight, giving them a 3 to 2 triumph over the New York Rangers. The defeat dropped the Rangers back into fourth place in the American division of the National Hockey league.

In a give and take struggle in which neither team could gain much advantage, they reached the middle of the third period with the score tied at 2-2. Bostrum shot from mid ice and the puck bounced past Goalie John Roach after he had blocked it with his chest.

Three solo plays, two of them coming in the first three minutes of action, and one neat pass, brought the first three goals.

Rangers Score Early.

It took just a minute and eight seconds of flashy play to start the Rangers ahead. Getting in close on the left side, Frank Boucher lifted a shot at Gardiner, which slipped off the goalie's glove after he thought he had caught it, and passed between his leg and the goal post into the net.

The Hawks required only a few seconds longer to tie up the score on a similar play. Wentworth's shot hit Roach's leg pads and went right on into the net instead of bouncing away.

The Rangers regulars, combining speed and skill, gave New York a clear margin for a while as Boucher's clever poke checking stopped many Chicago drives. A weird decision cost Chicago a well earned goal. Johnson held Gottselig when he took the puck down, but Somers followed, picked up the rubber and shot it in just as the whistle blew to give Johnson a penalty.

Hawks' Speed Halted.

All of Chicago's speed could not break the stern defense while Johnson was off. With Jerwa playing center, the Rangers held control in the remaining two minutes, with one shot by Thompson that almost crossed the line into the net.

The second period opened with another burst of speed, which brought no results, since Johnson and Abel did some great defensive work. Jerwa went to the cooler for interference, but Abel followed him for holding Dillon as the youngster raced down the ice. They fought a drawn battle until the penalties ended. One raid led by Peters furnished the most serious threat of a session devoted principally to careful defensive hockey.

The Ranger regulars followed this drive with a couple like it that gave Gardiner a bad few minutes, but he managed to stop all the shots that got through to him, as the Hawk defense did a neat job of blocking the Ranger passes. He finally had to hold the puck, but the Hawks cut loose after the face off and took control again.

March Scores for Hawks.

A penalty to Johnson when he checked Ingram into the board turned the tide ever more completely and Chicago went into the lead. Adams laid a long pass from the boards directly on March's stick while he was loafing in front of the net and Mushy had only to flip it in.

The Rangers started the third period with four forwards in action, Bill Cook dropping back to fill a defense post and Dillon playing wing. But it was the one defense man, Johnson, who tied the score. He went down alone on the right side, swung to the center, and blazed a high shot past Gardiner just as Abel body checked him.

A tripping penalty to March brought further complications and another odd decision that cost a goal. Gardiner fell on the puck after stopping Keeling's shot and as he turned appeared to slide into the net. The goal judge flashed the light, but the referees called it back.

Bostrum Scores Goal.

Graham went off on another tripping penalty in the next speedy exchange, but this time the Blackhawk defense was more effective. For the next few minutes it was a struggle between Dillon and Gardiner, the former making the plays and the latter stopping them. The change came suddenly in the midst of a session of roughing as Bostrum cut loose from almost the center of the ice and a queer bound sent the puck into the net. It hit Roach's chest and dropped in front of him, then bounced between his legs for a score.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Chicago's twenty-fifth six day bicycle race, had a strong Italian flavor when the town clock struck 11 last night. It seemed that the rest of the flock of 30 international cyclists were unable to propel their machines as fast as four lads from Italy.

At the end of the first two hours of racing, Georgetti and Brocardo and Linari and Belloni were in a tie for first place. At midnight, the same condition prevailed, except that the four Italians had been joined by Ritter and Lands, and Letournier and Guimbretiere.

Steal 27 Laps.

There was a lot of spirited riding in the first hour. No less than 27 laps were swapped and in the succeeding two hours 13 more were added on the tally sheets.

Five spills in the first two hours helped some 12,000 addicts to enjoy themselves. Two of these gave Al Marxer, Chicago rookie, riding his first race, a chance to get a little falling practice. Young Al put on an especially fancy act for his first professional spill. Seeing a sprawl imminent in the course of a heavy jam, Al let loose of his handle bars and seized the guard rail in front of the press box at the top of the east turn. This completely awakened four experts and gave one a slash on his forehead. Al saved himself a wicked slide, but his dangling bike caught Linari and Grimm, who were bounced off the flat of the track. It was the worst tumble of the evening.

Bobby Starts a Jam.

In a third spill at 12:15 a. m. Marxer fell on his face and withdrew from the race at the suggestion of Dr. Lou's K. Eastman, course physician. His partner, Mike Rodak, also of Chicago, was given four hours to get a new partner.

Bobby Walthour, a scorned outlaw pedaler these last two years, didn't take long after the opening gun to serve notice that he is back in good standing. He precipitated the first jam of the bicycle race, just eleven minutes after the whirl had started.

Bobby probably designed the early rush to feel the pulse of the cycle public, for his golden locks were more resplendent than ever before and his baby blue sweater, a brand new baby blue sweater, no doubt, was perfectly arranged when he busted loose, much to the chagrin of the boys who have been paying dues during the two years that Bobby has been persona non grata.

Bobby and his partner, Cousin Jimmy Walthour, got the hand they had hoped for, the bugs applauding them right merrily. However, the welcome infuriated the orthodox artists and Bobby and Jimmy later were punished for their effrontery.

Hill in First Spill.

Linari and Belloni, Richill and Grimm, Letourneur and Guimbretiere, De Nef and Charlier, Spencer and Hill, and McNamara and Winter also did their stuff during the first twenty min-

West Section Golden Gloves Entries to Close Today

Entries close today for the west sectional trials of THE TRIBUNE Golden Gloves tournament. All letters bearing today's postmark will be accepted by the registration committee.

The west side tournament will be held next Monday and Tuesday at the Ashland Boulevard auditorium, Ashland avenue and Van Buren street. All contestants must report at 5 o'clock next Monday afternoon for physical examinations. Immediately afterward the drawings will be made for the first bouts. Two boys will qualify in each of the eight weight divisions. The same plan will be followed at the north sectional and south sectional meets.

Today is the last call for west side boys. The north side entries will close Thursday, while the south side contestants have until next Monday to enter.

Eddie Morgan, 22 year old Negro southpaw, has entered the south side sectional trials in the 118 pound division. Eddie left Wendell Phillips High school a year ago to work in the stock yards. He has had more than 200 fights in three years. Morgan was born in New Orleans and came to Chicago eight years ago. He lives with his parents at 4839 Champlain avenue.

A 23 year old foreman in a radio factory will be seen in the north side trials in the bantamweight class Feb. 19 at the Fronton. He is Tex Penny of 4065 Sheridan road. Penny was born in Oklahoma City and has been in Chicago for five years. He has been boxing for four years. In 1930 he was runner-up in the Central A. A. U. tournament. A broken hand forced him out.

William Haffey will make his first bid for a Golden Gloves crown this year. He will fight for the Nelson Boosters in the 118 pound class. Haffey is a former Lane Tech student, but dropped out a year ago to go to work. He is employed as a clerk in a railroad office.

Last year's Western Electric heavyweight champion will attempt to win a Golden Gloves title. He is Pete Smagatz, who has been boxing off and on for the last three and a half years. Smagatz has participated in twenty-five bouts, winning twenty-one, of which eleven were via the knockout route.

William Fitzsimmons, instructor of the Davis playground, has nominated five boxers for the Golden Gloves south side section trials.

BUSH ARRIVES TODAY TO PLAN WHITE SOX TRIP

Donie Bush, manager of the White Sox, will be in Chicago today to make final arrangements for the departure of his baseball team for the spring training camp at San Antonio, Tex.

Although the first squad will not leave Chicago until Feb. 21, a week later than last year, Bush is said to have some trading projects still pending and expects to go in conference with Vice President Lou Comiskey at the Congress hotel immediately upon his arrival here.

Chicagoans Win Western Squash Racquets Title

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Kansas City and Chicago carried off first honors in the western squash racquets tournament here today. Harvey Timsman, Kansas City, won the individual championship by defeating Lucian Strong, Minneapolis, 15-11, 18-6, 15-4. The team title went to Chicago which beat Minneapolis two matches to one.

SHAMROCKS LOSE 2D PLACE BATTLE TO PLA-MORS, 3-0

First Kansas City Victory Over Chicagoans.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 8.—(AP)—The Kansas City Pla-Mors gained undisputed possession of second place in the American Hockey league with a 3 to 0 victory tonight over the Chicago Shamrocks. The Shamrocks had been tied for second place. It was the first Kansas City victory over Chicago in four games this season.

Holding a one goal lead at the start of the third period Kansas City opened up its offensive and swept through a faltering Chicago defense. Wasp Campbell scored both goals in the period on passes from Goodman and Jamieson.

Brydson, Chicago wing and the league's leading scorer, sifted through the Kansas City defense many times, but his shots were successfully stopped by Goalie Byrne.

GOODFELLOW IS STAR AS FALCON SIX WINS, 2 TO 0

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 8.—(AP)—The Detroit Falcons scored a 2 to 0 victory over the Ottawa Senators here tonight in a National league hockey game.

Ebbie Goodfellow, league leading sharpshooter, figured in both Falcon goals, assisting Herbie Lewis, Detroit wingman, early in the first period, and scoring lone handed midway in the final period.

Only the work of Bill Beveridge, former Falcon goalie, in the Ottawa net, prevented a higher score. Twelve penalties were called, most of them during the second period, when Goodfellow and Len Grosvenor entertained the fans with a display of fisticuffs.

Bruins Beat Fort Wayne in 23-20 Battle

Playing one of their best games of the season, the Bruins defeated Fort Wayne last night, 23 to 20, at White City before a capacity crowd of 4,000. It was the first time in eight games that Chicago Pro five has been able to whip the Hoosiers.

The Bruins led at the end of the half, 16 to 7. Toward the end of the second period, Fort Wayne launched offensive that brought it within striking distance, but brilliant defensive work saved the Bruins.

Benny Borgemann, one of the Bruin aces, was out of the game with influenza.

The House of David defeated the Taylor Trunks, 25 to 22, in a preliminary game.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Minnesota meets Northwestern tonight at Patten gymnasium in the most important game of the Western conference basketball race. The Wildcats, who ripped Chicago's defense wide open in the second half Saturday night to win their fifth consecutive victory, 31 to 16, must win tonight to prevent the Gophers from tying for the leadership.

Minnesota has won four games and lost one, a one point defeat by Chicago, 21 to 20, at Bartlett gymnasium. However, if Northwestern can trounce Minnesota it will have a two game advantage over Purdue and Minnesota. This is more important in view of the remaining six games on the Wildcat schedule.

Play 6 More Games.

Northwestern has return games with Illinois, Ohio State, and Illinois, which already have been defeated. Iowa, apparently one of the weakest Big Ten teams, although the Hawkeyes' only victory so far was over Purdue, will be met twice. The return contest with Minnesota at Minneapolis completes Northwestern's schedule. It is evident that the Wildcats present the only serious opposition, not forgetting, of course, that a complete reversal of form may cost Northwestern a game on the road.

A triumph tonight will be mighty comforting to Coach Dutch Lonborg and his players. With a lead of two games, Northwestern need not worry about possible defeat at Columbus or Iowa City a reverse by Minnesota at Minneapolis. Ten victories and two defeats certainly should be sufficient to win the Big Ten championship, for Minnesota and Purdue, nearest rivals, must meet each other, which should eliminate one or both (if they divide the series) from the competition.

List N. U. Victories.

Northwestern	37;	Michigan	22
Northwestern	39;	Illinois	27
Northwestern	33;	Ohio State	22
Northwestern	31;	Chicago	16
Total	148	Total	108

Minnesota's record follows:

Minnesota	26;	Iowa	22
Minnesota	32;	Minnesota	31
Minnesota	28;	Wisconsin	26
Minnesota	30;	Chicago	27
Minnesota	36;	Iowa	14
Total	151	Total	121

Although total points scored by Northwestern and Minnesota apparently indicate the offenses may be of equal value, this isn't true. In the first place, it is a safe guess that Illinois and Ohio State have furnished more severe competition than any of Minnesota's opponents. Then Minnesota scored mean nothing tonight unless Northwestern's defense has met the tests and proved its worth.

The Battle of Centers.

Jack, the Gopher center had the edge on Parsons, Chicago's center, in controlling the ball in games between the two teams, but again, this does not indicate what Bob McCarnes will be able to do tonight. Parsons outjumped McCarnes in the first half Saturday night which was one of the reasons Northwestern was held to a 6 to 4 score at the half. But in the next period, McCarnes completely outplayed Parsons and Northwestern's offense, creating more scoring chances, soon ran away from the Maroons.

Purdue lost decisively to Purdue Saturday night, 39 to 23, but with Indiana invading Bloomington tonight, the Hoosiers should add another victory to the record.

Notwithstanding Purdue's erratic play in its first three games, when beaten by Michigan and Iowa, with a victory over Illinois, sent the 1930 champions into the second division and Boilermakers should finish easily in the first division. More than that, Northwestern whips Minnesota tonight, Purdue will be the best bet for second place, with an outside chance to tie for the title.

Shift May Help Purdue.

The shift which has placed Wooden in the forward line and Kellar at guard may be responsible for the increased effectiveness of Coach Lambert's team, but it is more logical to

Satin Spar Wins $5,000 Spa Handicap

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Satin Spar, four year old chestnut gelding, bore the colors of the Bill Bee stable to an easy five length victory in the $5,000 added stake, the Spa handicap, which featured the racing program here today. The time for the mile and one-sixteenth grind over the muddy track was 1:47.10.

Alexander Pantages, running for Rodney and Lloyd Pantages, furnished all the competition for the winner that the race afforded, but was never really dangerous. Alexander Pantages holds the track record of 1:43.10 for the distance, but did not fancy the heavy going.

Back of Alexander Pantages came Caruso, the W. R. Coe runner, to take third place, and on his heels finished McGonigle, the campaigner of the Greenbriar stable. Vanity and Shasta Broom made up the field, as five entries declined the issue when additional rain fell early today.

The victory of Satin Spar was clear cut and well earned. He was away with the leaders at the lifting of the barrier and took the lead almost at once and held it to the end. Two dollar mutuel tickets on the winner paid $16 to win, $4.20 to place and $2.80 to show.

The winning performance was worth $4,500 to the Bill Bee stable. Alexander Pantages rewarded his owners with second money of $1,000.

DEPRESSION HITS BADGERS; THEY'RE OUT OF CAPTAINS

Even Janitor May Be in Uniform Tonight.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Wisconsin's basketball team, which under the direction of two captains, stalled into a tie for fifth place in the first semester of the Big Ten race, will continue the season with no captain at all, Coach Walter E. Meanwell announced today. The first game under the new system will be played in the Badger field house tomorrow night, against Washington university of St. Louis.

Al Chmielewski of Chicago and Johnny Paul of Milton, Wis., the co-captains, were removed from the squad for graduation last week. Chmielewski's departure was expected, but Paul's action as a surprise, when the registrar, digging through the records, found he had enough credits to insure him a diploma.

Having no other seniors on the team, Dr. Meanwell decided to dispense with the election of another captain. Dr. Meanwell's troubles continue to come in bunches. Yesterday it was announced that Harry Griswold, Chisholm, Minn., reserve who was counted upon to fill Paul's place at center, will be out for the season because of a knee injury. Today Doc learned of an injury to Russ Tornowske, speedy guard forward, which will keep him out of the Washington game and perhaps also the battle with Minnesota here Saturday night.

"We didn't have much to start with, and now we've lost four-fifths of that," Doc commented ruefully. We may catch an opponent on an off night and win a game, but I can't see how we'll take more than one. I'm going to put the janitor in uniform tomorrow, just to fill the vacant places on the bench."

"We're just about good enough to win in the interfraternity league," he continued.

Fries May Be Center.

The fraternity athletes, it might be said, train on cigarets and work out in sorority drawing rooms as pre-lude to gymnasiums, so Doc's comment probably will not be relished by members of his team.

With Paul and Griswold missing, Bo Fries of Bowling Green, O., will be counted upon to play center. If he fails, Doug Nelson will be moved back from forward, and somebody, probably the janitor, will be sent in at Nelson's place.

The other positions may be filled by Dr. Meanwell follows his latest plan. Washington university is one of the stronger Missouri Valley teams. Its latest accomplishment was a 29 to 26 victory over Drake last Friday night.

Brickies Rout Olympia, 3-0, for 12 in Row

The Bricklayers extended their winning streak to 12 games by defeating the Olympia F. C. at De Paul field yesterday, 3 to 0, in the first round of the National Challenge cup soccer competition.

The opening goal involved brilliant team work, the ball traveling from Ogilvie to Maclean to Cuthbert. The latter booted the ball past the Olympia goal keeper.

Coutts scored the other goals for the Brickies in the second half. One was made from a scrimmage in front of goal and the other was headed into the net on a cross from Greenlees.

The losers were best served by the goal keeper, Witunski, and their full backs, Nevrika and Cechovsky.

Harvey Fights Dundee Friday in Return Bout

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—A return match in Madison Square Garden between Len Harvey, British middleweight champion, and Vince Dundee of the Baltimore Dundees, heads the national boxing schedule this week.

Harvey, who dropped a decision to Dundee in their first meeting and in his first American appearance, will try to wipe that defeat off his slate in the Garden Friday night.

The Briton had Dundee on the floor the last time they met, but the Baltimore Italian, younger brother of Joe Dundee, former welterweight champion, got up and roughed his way to a decision. Harvey again is the betting choice.

When the contest was resumed Bobby again touched off the works, keeping all thirty riders on the track during a series of jams which were continuous for a half hour. At midnight, however, Letourneur and Guimbretiere were the technical leaders, as a result of success in a jam at 11:50 o'clock and 24 points amassed in the 10 o'clock sprints.

MILWAUKEE MAT FANS TO ATTEND TITULAR MATCH

Wrestling fans of Milwaukee will attend the Jim Londos-George Zaharias heavyweight championship match at the Coliseum on Feb. 18.

Promoter Doc Krone said yesterday that more than 150 will come here on a special train with Joe Sweitzer in charge of the group.

In answer to a report that Greek wrestling fans did not approve of two of their countrymen wrestling each other, Krone said today that Zaharias was signed to meet the champion because, on the basis of his showing here this season, he is the outstanding challenger.

He pointed out that neither has any regard for the other, since Zaharias, a former pupil of Londos, believes that he is ready to beat the champion and had gone so far as to say that Jim was afraid to meet him.

Londos will arrive in Chicago early this week to wind up training for the championship match.

Wildcat and Gopher Fives Meet Tonight

believe that the inexperienced Purdue quintet has just now begun to function as a unit. In any event, Purdue must be reckoned with from now on, although its schedule is quite difficult. The Boilermakers play Illinois tomorrow night at Champaign.

Four games Saturday night conclude the period of inactivity because of examinations. Illinois, unless successful against Purdue, will invade Iowa City with the hope of breaking into the victory column. Minnesota's game at Madison should be won more easily by the Gophers than when the teams met at Minneapolis, for the Badgers have lost Paul and Chmielewski by graduation.

Last Saturday's games are duplicated this week end. Indiana plays at Purdue and Northwestern visits Bartlett gymnasium. There is no reason to believe that the results will differ.

COAST POLO STAR DROPS DEAD ON WAY TO STABLES

Delmonte, Cal., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Harlin E. Olmstead, 34, of New York, dropped dead near the Delmonte polo field here today. Olmstead was walking from his automobile to the stables where he intended to exercise some of his polo ponies when he fell. Physicians said a heart attack caused death. He was the son of Mrs. Vance McCormick of Harrisburg, Pa. As a result of his death all polo games today were postponed.

His stepfather was Vance Griswell McCormick, newspaper publisher and a prominent figure in Pennsylvania and national Democratic politics.

As a polo player Olmstead was known as Ted and for the last month he had played with various low goal teams. His last match was Thursday, when he played with the San Carlos team. Olmstead graduated from Harvard in 1921 and from Oxford in 1923.

Canadians Beat Yanks for World Hockey Title, 2-0

KRYNICA, Poland, Feb. 8.—(AP)—The University of Manitoba grads today gave Canada the world's international amateur hockey championship by defeating the Boston Hockey club, representing the United States, two goals to none, in the final round of the round-robin tournament.

The finalists put on a thrilling match, entirely different from those between European teams, which too often are inclined to adopt defensive tactics. Here fine aggressive play was seen, with both teams attacking at every opportunity.

Canada gained a one goal lead in the first period when Watson netted the puck from center ice. The battle raged up and down the ice in the second period, with the Americans holding a slight edge. Ed Dagnino of the Boston club netted the puck during one rally, but the goal was disallowed.

Manitoba flashed a furious offense in the third period, but the Boston goalie, Ted Frazer, was equal to all emergencies until Morris finally caught him napping and tallied Canada's second goal.

Austria gained third place in the final standings when today's match between Poland and Czecho-Slovakia ended in a draw. Poland was fourth, Czecho-Slovakia fifth, and Sweden sixth.

CASPER OIMEN SETS RECORD TO WIN SKI MEET

Anton Lekang of New York was second with one jump of 148 feet. Gunnar Oman of the Ogden Dunes Ski club, Illinois, was third.

Oimen compiled 225.5 points to take first place. Lekang had 223.2 points and Oman 221.3. In fourth place was Harold Sorensen, New York, with 220.2, and Roy Mikkelsen, Chicago, was fifth with 217.8 points.

DEATHS AT RAIL CROSSINGS SHOW DECLINE IN 1930

Find Better Protection in Metropolitan Area.

Ninety motorists lost their lives in railroad crossing collisions in the Chicago metropolitan area in 1930, as compared with 141 killed in the same type of accident the previous year.

The sharp reduction in grade crossing mortality is revealed in statistics provided by Coroner Bundesen for Cook county and by the coroners of Kane, Du Page, McHenry, Will and Lake counties which form the outer arc of the metropolitan district.

While the death rate in this type of accident was notably reduced in Cook, Kane, and Du Page counties, the rate rose in the other three counties. A table, comparing the 1929 and 1930 deaths at crossings in each of the six counties follows:

County—	1930.	1929.
Cook	56	109
Kane	5	8
McHenry	5	4
Du Page	4	10
Will	6	5
Lake	14	5

Various causes have been suggested for the Cook county reduction, among them the economic slump which has curtailed train service and taken some automobiles off the highways. There was a suggestion also that the railroads are improving the protection afforded at dangerous crossings.

Although his statistical department subjected the figures to detailed analysis, Coroner Bundesen declined to speculate on the possible cause of the reduction.

The analysis for Cook county showed that 31 deaths occurred at protected crossings and 25 at unguarded crossings, that the motorist disregarded a warning signal in 25 instances, that a motorist drove through a lowered gate in one instance and that a watchman failed to lower the gate in one instance.

See Better Guarded Crossings.

In 1929, according to the statistical report, 92 fatalities occurred at unguarded crossings, and in nine of 17 remaining cases the guard gates were not lowered. By comparison of the two years the conclusion was drawn that the railroads are giving better protection at crossings and that watchmen are exercising greater care.

While no detailed analysis was available in the other five counties the coroners in two instances were inclined to attribute the general lowering of the motorist death rate to widening of the highways and the reduction of railroad-automobile collisions to the construction of separated crossings.

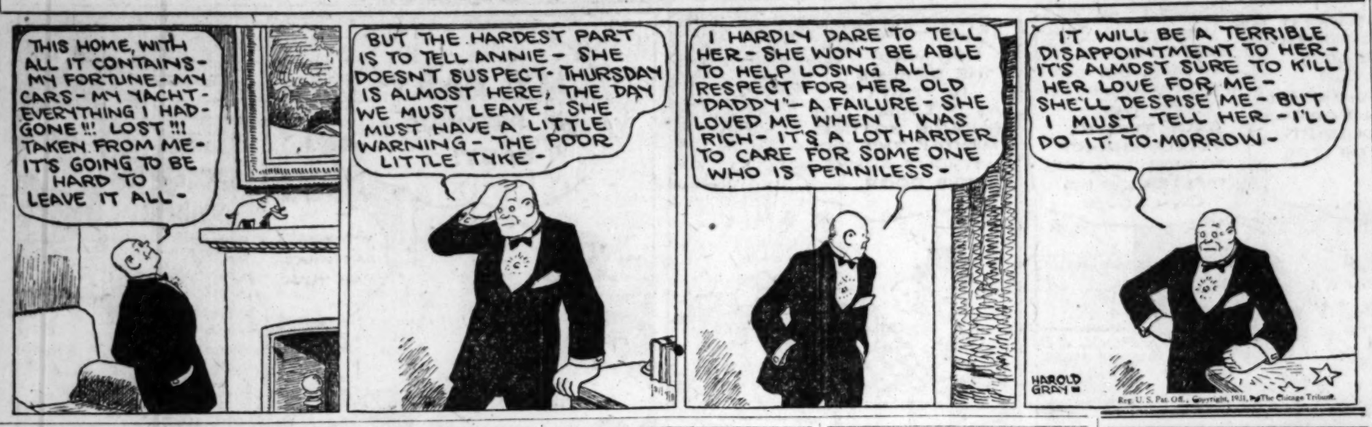
In Du Page county, it was pointed out, coincident with the widening of highway 64 to forty feet, the state program accomplished the elimination of one dangerous grade crossing over the Chicago, Aurora & Elgin interurban. Four persons met death at this crossing two years ago.

Eliminate Bad Crossing.

In Kane county, where grade crossing deaths were reduced from eight in 1929 to five in 1930, the dangerous crossing of Lake street and the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern tracks, was eliminated last year. In addition to these factors the coroners in Kane, Du Page and McHenry counties have urged better guarded crosisngs.

In Lake and Will counties, neither of which have benefited by any extensive widening or grade eliminating program, the fatal collisions occurred mainly where side roads cross the tracks. In Will county four persons were killed on the Rock Island tracks and two on the Wabash. In Lake county the fourteen deaths were divided among the North Shore, North Western, Milwaukee road and the Soo line.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Tomorrow



AUTO HITS AGED COUPLE; WIFE IS DEAD, MATE HURT

Struck Trying to Cross Street.

Confused by the heavy traffic, William Manley, 69 years old, 146 Marengo avenue, Forest Park, and his wife, Mary, 71 years old, were struck by an automobile last night as they attempted to cross the street in front of 4038 Jackson boulevard. Mrs. Manley died a short time later in the Garfield Park hospital. Manley, who also suffered a skull fracture, is in a serious condition. The west park police held the driver, John Doherty, 35 years old, 648 South Taylor avenue, Oak Park. Doherty said the aged couple stepped in front of his car and he was unable to stop in time to avoid hitting them.

This death and one other in Cook county raised the 1931 toll to 140.

James J. Karra, 23 years old, 5322 West 24th street, a former track athlete at Armour institute, died in the Holy Cross hospital from injuries received on Jan. 20 when an auto in which he and a companion were riding skidded and crashed into a pole at Crawford avenue and 79th street. His companion, John Kuhns, 7646 South Marquette avenue, was slightly injured.

He was on his way to Chicago from an old soldiers' home in Danville to visit his brother, Rutherford S. Pettit, 3329 South Ogden avenue.

Six Hurt in Crash.

Miss Sophie Kalee, 20 years old, 2147 North Homan avenue, is in the Belmont hospital suffering from a fractured skull, and five other persons are recovering from injuries as a result of a collision between two automobiles at Central Park and Diversey avenues. The machine in which Miss Kalee was riding, which was being driven by Michael Ferlict, 23 years old, 1806 North Paulina street, collided with one being driven by Matthew Jorgesen, 43 years old, 1938 Lowell avenue.

Besides Miss Kalee, Ferlict and Jorgesen, the injured are Miss Irene Dalatone, 25 years old, 4056 North Hermitage avenue; Harold Peterson, 23 years old, 1622 North Hamlin avenue, and Benjamin Sorisky, 22 years old, 2039 North Damen avenue.

A woman identified as Mrs. Mary Goriak, 41 years old, 1415 Noble street, who had been seriously injured by a hit and run driver at Lincoln avenue and Sedgwick street, was taken to the German Deaconess hospital by a motorist who did not give his name.

GENERAL RISE IN STEEL PRICES IS EXPECTED SOON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 8.—Another general increase in steel prices, reflecting the growing confidence felt by leaders of the country's largest basic industry, is being considered by some of the principal producing interests and, barring an unexpected change in conditions, probably will be announced shortly.

The advance, it is expected, will be made applicable to steel products ordered for delivery in the second quarter and will amount to $1 a ton on plates, shapes, and bars. A similar advance was announced early in December on bookings for delivery in the first three months of this year.

News that some of the large steel manufacturers were weighing the possibility of an early price increase will come as a surprise to Wall street, it is believed, for the reason that reports have been persistently circulated recently that a price reduction was in prospect.

Checks Reports.

It was learned today, however, that one of the largest producers had quietly checked up on these reports. Inquiry developed the fact that no orders were consumers able to place orders on the principal products at lower prices than those posted some time ago, which was $1.65 a hundredweight, Pittsburgh. It was found that producers generally were resisting demands for lower prices and were holding firm to the new schedule, in spite of severe pressure from certain consuming interests.

From an authoritative source information was obtained today that steel producers consider a measure of stability already has been achieved and that gains have been held satisfactorily all along the line. The main purpose of the producers has been to stabilize the steel market and it was made clear at the time of the last increase that there was to be no ill considered marking up of prices.

No Comment.

No comment on the likelihood of an early increase could be obtained today from steel executive, but privately one of the leaders of the industry, discussing rumors of price cutting, said it was plain stability has been achieved and he predicted that the next price change would be upward.

It was pointed out today in the steel trade that the steel producers had been impressed in 1930 with the folly of price cutting. Instead of stimulating demand, lowering of prices retarded buying. The earnings of the steel companies last year were poor. In the final quarter the United States Steel corporation, the largest organization in the industry, incurred a deficit in order to meet dividend requirements. The showing of some of the other companies was even more unfavorable.

Steel producers are slowly increasing their operations, in response to a gradual improvement in demand. There is a general feeling in the industry that this improvement will be accelerated from now on. Plans have already been announced for expanding operations this week in certain centers.

Cites Trend to Greater Co-operation

BY SCRUTATOR.

One of the good effects of the business depression which is ending or about to end has been the growth of coöperation among business interests.

"The trade association movement is booming," an executive of one of the large organizations remarked. "A year and a half ago we had about 65 per cent of the national output of our product represented in the membership. Now we have 90 per cent. In good times men don't see the bad effects of extreme individualism; when things grow a little worse they realize that improvement must be made in their mode of doing business and they come in."

That was an association of manufacturers. Retailers, also, seem to have come into the same sort of an epoch. The growth of voluntary chains in competition with chain stores has been marked, and it can be clearly noted that the arguments presented to the independents have gone beyond mere urging that volume buying power is essential. Emphasis is being placed more on the intra-store economies that often mean the difference between profits and losses for the proprietor.

Retail Distribution.

Some rather startling figures on the cost of the retail store's distribution of goods is contained in the study of Chicago trade in 1929, made by the bureau of the census. This showed that the city's 43,625 retail outlets sold more than two billion dollars of goods and had a salary and wage roll of more than 275 million dollars. On the average, everything sold in the city carried a pay roll charge equivalent to $1 when sales reached $7.83, or just less than 13 per cent of the gross.

Different types of stores had varying averages. In cigar stores $1 of wages produced an average of $18.56 of sales, in department stores it cost the same wage to sell $6.98, and in electrical appliance stores it appears that a pay roll charge of $1 represented only $4.25 of gross sales. Groceries ranked next to cigars, in that $1 meant sales of $17.84.

Three years ago the department of commerce surveyed nearly 80,000 retailers in eleven cities. They found that 28 per cent of all the merchants sold less than $5,000 gross a year and that the average of this group was $43 a week in sales. The futility of such merchandising can be realized. If the gross margin over wholesale prices is 25 per cent, the merchant would have $11 a week to pay his store expense and reward himself.

Cites Second Group.

There was a second group, comprising 18 per cent of the 80,000, who averaged gross sales of $140 a week and on the same basis would have $35 a week left to cover overhead and services. With such volume, it is unlikely that a coöperative association of any kind could do much for a retailer except to persuade him to get out of a losing business or to show him how to sell more in his establishment.

A merchant doing a very small business either must underpay himself or must charge his customers too much in order to make a bare living. Neither alternative is pleasant or economic. The voluntary chains are usually composed of retailers who have enough volume to justify their existence. Most of the trade associations and similar groups bear heavily on statistical and educational activities. There can be little doubt that they have improved both the financial condition of the merchants who follow them and the service offered by them to the public.

JEWEL TEA CO. HAS BEST NET IN ITS HISTORY

And now another company reports the largest earnings in its history despite last year's depression. It is the Jewel Tea company, and its annual statement, issued last night, shows that efficiency and economy in operation more than offset a somewhat smaller dollar volume of business.

Net sales for 1930 totaled $15,521,791, compared with $16,844,110 in 1929. But cost of sales was $13,798,962, compared with $15,261,904. Net profit for last year was $1,705,293, equivalent to $6.09 a share on 280,000 common shares outstanding, compared with $1,691,302, or $6.04 a share in 1929.

Dividends totaling $5 a share, including two extra dividends of $1 each, were paid. After paying these dividends the surplus was increased by $329,079 to $2,320,189. The balance sheet as of Dec. 27, 1930, shows current assets of $5,150,720 and current liabilities of $1,473,215.

"Of the decrease of 12.7 per cent in sales per week per wagon," President M. H. Karker says: "Approximately three-quarters was due to lower selling prices and the balance to smaller tonnage. The number of operating units was increased by 66 to 1,280 during the year. Inventories at the close of 1930 stood at the lowest figure in the history of the company."

The Jewel Tea sales for the four weeks ending Jan. 24 were $1,066,913, as compared with $1,202,513 for parallel weeks in 1930, a decrease of 11.28 per cent.

Straus National Bank Acquires Franklin Trust

Straus National Bank and Trust company of Chicago has acquired the business of Franklin Trust and Savings bank, effective today. S. J. T. Straus, president of the Straus National bank, said that no exchange of stock is involved. In January, 1930, the Franklin Trust and Savings made a cash distribution to its stockholders amounting to $700,000. The changing character of the district at 35th and Michigan avenue, where the Franklin bank has been located for years, is given as the reason for discontinuing its business in that location. The Straus bank is located at Jackson and Michigan boulevards.

MAJORITY OF CHAINS ENJOY JANUARY SALES RISE OVER YEAR AGO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 8.—Twenty of the 29 chain stores companies which reported their January sales during the last week show an increase over the same month in 1930 despite the heavy declines which have taken place in commodity prices during that time, according to a compilation of the companies' reports by the New York Times.

The remaining nine companies in the compilation include Sears, Roebuck & Co. and Montgomery, Ward & Co. and the total of the declines from 1930 are great enough to offset the gains made by the other 20 companies so that in the aggregate the 29 companies included in the compilation show an average percentage decline in sales of 2.73 per cent.

The aggregate sales of the twenty-nine companies in January of this year were $113,276,841 compared with $116,450,211 in January, 1930, an aggregate decrease of $3,173,370. For the nine companies which showed a decline during the month when compared with the preceding years, aggregate sales in January this year, were $53,591,803 compared with $60,932,823 in 1930, a decrease of $7,341,025 or 12.05 per cent. The twenty companies reporting an increase had aggregate sales of $56,685,038 compared with $55,517,383 last year.

General Motors Distributes $8,706,937 on Employe Fund

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 8.—The General Motors corporation is distributing $8,706,937 to 20,009 employés who invested in the company's savings and investment fund of 1925, which matured on Dec. 31, 1930, it was announced today by Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president. This sum is represented by $2,422,346 in cash and 149,388 shares of General Motors company stock.

During the twelve years that the savings and investment funds have been in operation, seven classes have matured and employés of the corporation have received $65,955,547, including 1,468,184 shares of General Motors common stock. There are five unmatured series, in which employés of the corporation have $82,544,634, representing cash, dividends and common stock, which will be available for distribution in the next five years, Mr. Sloan said. This makes a total for the twelve years of $148,500,181.

"Each employé who invested $300 in this fund in 1925 class is receiving a total of $1,054," Mr. Sloan said. "Of this, $414 is in cash, representing the original investment plus interest at 6 per cent. The balance consists of 18.09 shares of General Motors common stock valued at the closing price of the common stock [35⅝] on Dec. 31, 1930, representing accumulation on account of contributions by the corporation to the fund.

"All employés of General Motors corporation are eligible to participate in these savings funds. A new five-year class is started and one matures each year. Eligibles may pay in 20 per cent of their annual earnings, not to exceed $300. On the inauguration of each class General Motors contributes 50 cents to each dollar paid in by employés. The corporation's contribution is used to buy General Motors common stock and the dividends are used to purchase more stock.

120,000 Employés Participate.

"At present 120,000 employés are participating in the savings and investment funds. Approximately 26,000 individuals are helping to operate this plan. Of the 1925 class alone, 7,000 employés applied their savings against housing contracts amounting in the aggregate to $1,250,759.

"I should like to call particular attention to a feature of this plan which has a striking application to present conditions. That is the unemployment protection feature. The operation of this plan enables each employé who participates to automatically provide a measure of protection, in coöperation with the corporation, so that irrespective of business conditions every employé of the corporation who participates should have some financial resources to weather a period of business depression without the aid of public agencies."

EARNINGS OF U. S. RADIO EQUAL $4.25 FOR FIVE MONTHS

For the first five months [Aug. 1 to Dec. 31, 1930] of its fiscal year, United States Radio and Television corporation earned in excess of $4.25 a share after liberal charges, it is reliably reported by interests close to the company. The number of sets produced in January was substantially the same as during November and December. Orders for the new line of merchandise are coming in at a satisfactory rate, a statement declared.

Presumably the statement was issued in connection with the spectacular behavior of the company's stock on the Chicago exchange recently. The Saturday closing quotation of U. S. Radio was 27⅛. Its previous 1931 high was 25, while the 1931 low was 14⅜.

BUILDING TRADE SHOWS SIGNS OF MORE ACTIVITY

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Promising indications of renewed activity for the building and allied industries were furnished by results last month, F. W. Dodge corporation reports in its compilation of January building contracts.

Three of the thirteen Dodge territories showed gains over both January of last year and over December. Three additional territories showed gains over December and one additional district showed a gain over January, 1930.

Building activity in southern Michigan, western Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Louisiana, southwestern Arkansas, and southeastern Mississippi showed an increase last month over both January and December, 1930.

1930 NET OF CRUCIBLE STEEL DOESN'T COVER DIVIDEND PAYMENTS

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Net earnings of Crucible Steel company for 1930 were $454,223 less than the annual dividend payments, the annual report issued today disclosed. Net profit for the year was $4,045,122, and dividend disbursements during the year totaled $4,449,346.

In 1929 the company had net profit of $8,162,344, equal to $11.66 a share on the common stock.

The report to stockholders said earnings for 1930 were reduced somewhat by the policy of the management to keep employed as many of its workers as possible during the year. Unfilled orders as of Dec. 31 totaled 85,156 tons, against 123,073 tons at the end of 1929.

The Endicott Johnson corporation for 1930 reported net profit of $765,267, equal to 14 cents a share on the common stock, against $2,771,563, or $5.01 a share, in 1929. In his letter to stockholders George W. Johnson, president, said that the total volume of business for the year showed a decrease of 20.3 per cent from the previous year.

RUSSIA PLANS TO BOOST ITS WHEAT ACREAGE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Russian plans to increase wheat acreage ten per cent during 1931 are outlined by the bureau of agricultural economics in summarizing the week's world crop market prospects.

The crop report said Russian acreage for 1931 would total 277,000,000 acres and that the planned acreage of bread grains was 180,000,000 acres. The wheat acreage, representing an increase of 10 per cent and the bread grains acreage an increase of 16.8 per cent.

The bureau reported a continued restricted foreign outlet for American wheat in prospect for 1931 and 1932. It said low prices and plentiful supplies from other sources in foreign markets have reduced current United States wheat exports to negligible quantities.

The bureau estimated the 1930 world wheat crop at 3,777,000,000 bushels, 8 per cent above the 1929 estimate. Italian wheat producers reported an increase of 1.1 per cent in winter wheat acreage, which is expected to total 11,893,000 acres.

HOW DO FALLING PRICES RELATE TO DEPRESSION?

Jan. Has 2% Fall in Staple Values.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 8.—Last week's computations, showing a further average decline of more than 2 per cent in staple prices during January, on top of the 17 per cent decline during 1930, brought to the front again the question, What was the cause of this fall in prices and what was its relation, whether as cause or effect, or both, to the trade reaction?

Unlike many other episodes of the kind—in 1920 and 1893, for instance—the financial crisis of 1929 did not follow but preceded the downturn of commodity values. The prevalent idea, before the crisis of 1929, was unquestionably that prices of commodities had been "stabilized." But there had been, on the other hand, a good deal of quiet doubt expressed over continued maintenance of the existing scale or prices.

In the middle of 1929 the government's computation placed the general average 40 per cent above that of August, 1914, or of the whole year 1913. There were many careful observers who, on the basis of experience and existing circumstances, considered that margin as unwarranted. It was certainly less glaring than the average figure reached in May, 1920, which was 139 per cent above 1913; but 1920 was as wild a credit-inflation period in the producing markets as was 1929 on the stock exchange, and every one expected a crash in staple prices.

Change in Influences.

Since 1920 and 1921, moreover, visible influances on the price of commodities had changed immensely. Not only were such wartime influences as the prodigious military requisitions, restricted production for ordinary uses, and currency inflation removed entirely, and with them the immediate post-war inflation of producers credit, but the almost complete paralysis of European production was replaced, as

A NORTHERN TRUST INDIVIDUALIZED PLAN

To effect economies in the transfer of your property, to minimize estate shrinkage, to conserve assets

What is a Northern Trust Plan?
A NORTHERN TRUST PLAN is a carefully conceived and individualized arrangement, making it possible to coordinate the benefits of one's life insurance, business interests, real estate and personal property. It combines the judgments of the owner, his attorney and the trust officers of this institution to enable them to most economically and with greatest present and future advantage, transfer property to the family.
One, but by no means the only, purpose of a Northern Trust Plan is to protect the net value of the estate. A Plan seeks, as one major objective, to conserve now and in the future—to safeguard property and funds not only against unnecessary shrinkage in transfer, but against other possible contingencies.
In addition to economy, however, the other benefits are of a real and tangible nature, both immediate and for the future. These are outlined on the pages that follow.

THE Northern Trust Company here offers an important service in estate conservation.

It is based upon the building of an individualized Northern Trust Plan for your estate—a plan which finds and applies every legitimate economy in the transfer of your property.

Each Northern Trust Plan is developed to fit the needs of a particular family and estate. Each rests upon The Northern Trust Company's more than forty years of experience in every phase of probate procedure, estate conservation.

LACK OF RAIN IS BIG FACTOR IN WORLD WHEAT

Grain Trade Uncertain About Farm Board.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Weather in the American and Canadian northwest as well as in Argentina and Australia is an important factor in the world's wheat situation. Rain is needed all over North America's wheat fields, although the southwestern winter wheat sections are not suffering, and it is said would be better off without extensive rains for the next thirty days at least, as mild weather with plenty of moisture would cause rank growth of winter wheat and place the crop in no condition to stand dry hot weather later in the season. Well informed people in the southwest say that a rank growth early in the season is not favored, as usually reduced yields result.

Scattered Rains Fail.

Lack of rain all over the winter wheat country featured the Chicago and Winnipeg wheat markets last week, although there were scattered rains over the middle west and light rains in the southwest on Friday and Saturday. Subsoil moisture is deficient in the middle west and the American and Canadian northwest. In the latter sections there have been light snows and the mildest weather in years.

Until it is possible to determine how the winter wheat crop will come through both in the United States and in Europe, and the start secured by the spring wheat crop the world over, erratic markets are to be expected.

Grain traders are especially nervous over uncertainty as to what the farm board will do. There are to be hearings on exchange bills in Washington early this week, and trade leaders believe that they will be able to put the necessity of grain and all trading exchanges as a most important business factor before the committee in a way that will rectify the congressional committee's views.

With trading in futures in butter, eggs, potatoes, and hides started within the last few years, it shows the tendency of business to favor speculative activity as a material assistance in marketing products, especially when there is a surplus.

Fear Farm Board Selling.

Grain traders express the belief that the farm board is likely to liquidate its holdings of wheat a little late in the season, but without the exchanges it would be difficult to unload 225,000,000 bu said to be held by the federal farm board without a more severe loss to the government than would ensue were there no speculative trading.

Wheat statistics continue bearish, although they are not so radical as heretofore. Broomhall, however, presents a more encouraging situation in European requirements, raising them 32,000,000 bu to an aggregate of 768,000,000 bu, compared with actual shipments the previous season of 612,000,000 bu, and 917,000,000 bu two years ago. Non-European countries will need more wheat, which will probably be supplied by shipments from Australia and Argentina.

Wheat prices ranged higher in all markets last week and closed around the top, with July at Chicago 67⅛@67⅜c, a net gain of 1⅝c, and September at 67c, it being the first week of trading in the latter delivery. Old crop futures were ¼c lower to ⅛c higher. March being 79¼c and May 82@82¼c. Winnipeg May gained 4⅜c and closed at 62⅜c, and July was up 1¾c, with the finish at 63¾c. Spreading between these two markets was an important feature of the week's trading. Liverpool showed strength toward the last, but is still at a heavy discount under American markets. Corn Consumption Reduced.

Consumption of corn on farms this season has been reduced by mild weather, yet stocks on Jan. 1 were 200,000,000 bu less than last year and 250,000,000 bu below the five year average as given by the government report. Movement from the country increased on bulges, and primary markets are anxious to unload their winter shelled corn and are supplying industries on every bulge. Country holders are also taking advantage of bulges to unload.

Corn futures are being absorbed on breaks because of the low prices, and the oldest corn traders in the market are bearish. Others, however, think prices are too low to sell short. Closing prices were around the highest of the week, the reverse of the previous week. March being 64⅝c, May 66⅛@66¼c, July 66⅝@67⅜c, and September 67⅝@67½c, net gains being 2¼@3¼c. Oat Prices Advanced.

Strength in oats was largely a reflection of the heavy farm consumption, and lighter receipts than last year, although there was a gain in the primary movement over the previous week. Prices movements in May covered a range of 1⅜c, and the close was at net gains of 1¼@1⅜c, with March 33⅛c, May 33¾c, and July 33⅛c. Oat seeding has started in the middle west and a little in Iowa, the earliest in years. Prices for the week follow:

HOPE TO AVERT A RECEIVERSHIP FOR ROYAL MAIL

Believe White Star Will Try to Save It.

[Copyright: 1931: by the New York Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 8. — On the eve of two important meetings this week the impression is gaining strength that stockholders of the White Star Line will save the vast Royal Mail shipping group from going into a receivership.

Financial London is now confident that White Star shareholders will agree to a four month moratorium on their claims, although they have it in their power to bring the whole of Lord Kylsant's tottering edifice down with a crash. Despite the Royal Mail's default on the White Star dividends, which it had guaranteed, the White Star shareholders are expected to grant the delay, during which time the rearrangement, reorganization and reconstruction of the gigantic Royal Mail group can be carried on.

Great pressure has been brought to bear upon the White Star shareholders—by banks, by shipping interests and newspapers—to be patient instead of insisting upon their legal rights. The leaders of other shipping companies have appealed to them in the name of patriotism to save British shipping from such a blow as bankruptcy for the Royal Mail.

The most persuasive argument, however, is that the White Star stockholders would gain nothing and lose everything by precipitate action. It is argued that a bankrupt Royal Mail company would be worse than useless for them, while a reorganized Royal Mail might well be able in time to pay off its liabilities.

What London will witness Thursday will be the culmination of one of the worst business catastrophes modern Britain has known. Not only in its world wide repercussions but in its mere size alone the collapse of the Royal Mail merits the designation "catastrophe." In a little more than a decade an organization with a paid-up share and loan capital of more than $400,000,000 has been brought to virtual bankruptcy, until last week its shares could not be given away on the stock exchange.

WHOLESALE DIST. ENJOYS BUYING OF SPRING LINES

Chicago's great central wholesale district was busy and active last week, being host to two thousand or more retail merchants and buyers in attendance at the semi-annual convention of the Interstate Merchants' council and its accompanying trade exhibits and style shows.

Orders conservatively estimated at $1,500,000 were placed, according to the Chicago Association of Commerce, whose weekly review points out that the spring market week merely starts the buying of spring lines by retail merchants. Last week's volume of business should therefore continue, though perhaps on a lesser scale.

The large firms of the Chicago wholesale district reported good business. At the Gifts, Artwares and Novelties association exhibition in the Merchandise mart it was reported that buying was in rather good volume and was as good as "had been anticipated."

R. C. LUMBER EXPORTS.

Water borne shipments of lumber from British Columbia ports during 1930 amounted to 375,299,557 board feet, a decline of 11.1 per cent from the previous year's output of 801,518,422 feet. Exports from Washington and Oregon declined 23.3 per cent and 20 per cent respectively.

Deere & Co.

Will you please send me full information concerning Deere & Co. and oblige?—B. R.

Deere & Co. is one of the leading makers of farm implements, steel plows forming its chief output. The present company was incorporated in 1911 to carry on a business originally established in 1837. The company and its subsidiaries own fourteen plants, the largest located at Moline, Ill. There are 32 branch houses throughout the United States and five in Canada.

Earnings increased each year from 1921 to 1929, the company's best year, as a result of plant expansion, increased sales volume, and greater operating economies.

The fiscal year ends Oct. 31. Last year business was good during the first half, but fell off considerably the final six months. Expenses were reduced by curtailing factory operations, but the slump in business was so severe that an increase in manufacturing cost could not be prevented.

For the year ended Oct. 31, 1930, net income was $8,199,112, compared with $15,181,949 in the preceding year and $9,299,068 in the year ended Oct. 31, 1928.

Last year's earnings were equal, after preferred dividends, to $6.06 per share on the 988,135 no par common shares outstanding, against $13.13 per share on the same basis in the preceding year.

On Oct. 31, 1930, current assets were $81,900,000 and current liabilities were $11,100,000.

Reserves against possible losses in receivables were increased during the year because of the increase from $42,800,000 to $55,900,000 in notes and accounts receivable.

No large capital expenditures are contemplated for the current year. Last year such expenditures were $2,302,889, compared with $2,924,725 the preceding year.

The present no par common has been outstanding since April, 1930, when a five for one splitup was effected. In addition there is $31,500,000 of preferred. The company has no funded debt, but on Oct. 31, 1930, notes payable amounted to $4,900,000. Surplus was $22,977,415.

The current dividend rate on the no par common is $1.20 per year. The stock dividends have been discontinued. The preferred is rather high grade. The common deserves a fair rating.

Grand Trunk Railway.

Kindly give me your opinion of Grand Trunk 6½s of 1936, quoted on the New York curb.—Mrs. F. J. A.

Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada in 1921 issued $12,000,000 of 6½ per cent equipment trust notes, series F, due Feb. 1, 1936. These notes are secured by a first lien on locomotives and cars costing $16,000,562. They are guaranteed unconditionally by Canadian National Railway company and are considered sound.
